SAYS LOST LINER TOOK WRONG COURSE

The Monroe Violated Sea Rules and Was Speeding, Asserts the Nantucket's Captain.

HIS OWN ENGINES BACKING

Harrington's Charges of Neglect Denied — Sunken Vessel Located and Divers Will Seek Bodies.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 1.—Following a conference with officials of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company, Capt. Osmyn Berry, commander of the steamer Nantucket, which was in collision with the steamer Monroe of the Old Dominion Line Friday morning, issued a statement to-day in which he denied the allegations of Capt. Johnson of the Monroe that he (Capt. Berry) was at fault, and put the blame directly on Capt. Johnson, whom he accused of violating the rules of the sea in trying to pass starboard to starboard.

Capt. Barry also denied in his statement the allegations of Thomas F. Harrington of Bridgeport that no effort was made to resuscitate his wife, that a steward suggested that the body be thrown overboard, or that Mr. Harrington struck, or attempted to strike, any of the crew of the Nantucket.

The Nantucket arrived here this morning from Norfolk, and the statement was issued from the offices of the Merchants and Miners' Company. It is as follows:

> About 1:32 A. M., Jan. 30, while bound from Boston to Norfolk, Va., twenty-four miles southwest of Winters Quarters Shoal light vessel, and being on our usual course of southwest one-quarter west, fog signals of a vessel, afterward found to be the Monroe, were reported ahead. The fog was low-lying, and at times clearer than at others.
>
> The fog signals of the Nantucket were sounding at regular intervals. The fog signal of the Monroe was again heard, and this time on the Nantucket's port bow. The next whistles heard from the Monroe were two blasts, which indicated that the Monroe was trying to pass the Nantucket, starboard to starboard, contrary to the rule.
>
> Immediately after the two blasts, given by the Monroe, were heard, she was seen fully three points on the Nantucket's port bow. Had she been on her proper course and obeyed the rule in passing to the right, no collision could possibly have occurred.
>
> In an endeavor to avoid a collision and not to turn the head of the Nantucket toward the Monroe, her helm was hard-a-ported to keep to the right, but the Monroe proceeded at full speed and tried to cross the bow of the Nantucket.
>
> She succeeded in getting partly past the Nantucket's stem, when the vessels collided, the Nantucket's stem striking the Monroe's starboard bow forward of the pilothouse, about at right angles.

Says Engines Were Reversed.

The Monroe passed under such great speed that the stem of the Nantucket was bent sharply toward her starboard side and the Nantucket slewed around so that her port side was scraped by the Monroe, crushing one of the Nantucket's port boats, the Monroe passing on out of sight.

> At the time of the collision the Nantucket's engines were running at full speed astern, and had been so running full speed astern for some time previous to the collision.
>
> Realizing that there might be danger to the passengers of the Monroe, the Nantucket's officers and crew promptly lowered lifeboats and started in the direction of the Monroe for the work of rescue. Two boats from the Monroe, loaded with passengers and crew, were safely landed on the Nantucket, and the boats sent from the Nantucket to aid the Monroe returned with as many people as they could find, all of whom were taken aboard the Nantucket and immediate attention given with all necessary first aids.
>
> The crew was divided into relief squads so that the people from the Monroe would receive prompt attention and the physical damage to the Nantucket could be attended to in order to preserve the lives of all on board.

At the time of the collision the halyard to the aerial of the wireless broke, rendering communication with other vessels impossible. Attention was immediately directed to establishing wireless communication.

> The Nantucket appeared seriously injured, but she manoeuvered to aid in the work of rescue, continually using her searchlights. Wireless communication was established, and several vessels offered assistance, the first to arrive being the steamship Hamilton, about 5 A. M., which convoyed the Nantucket to Norfolk.
>
> The relief squad attending the passengers was increased by those who could be spared from attention to the safety of the Nantucket and under careful attention those suffering most from the collision were revived with the exception of one man, who, after great effort, could not be revived and also a Mrs. Harrington, who died after she had been assigned to a stateroom with her husband and all possible care and attention given her.

Contradicts Harrington.

The newspaper reports in which Mr. Harrington is stated to have said that no assistance was offered him or his wife, and that suggestions were made to throw his wife's body overboard, and that in her protection he had to attack some member of the crew, are positively denied.

On the other hand, it can be established that the steward, stewardess, and engineer worked incessantly in an effort to aid and revive Mrs. Harrington. There was no attack made by Mr. Harrington on any one, and there is no foundation for this report. The stewardess and others worked over her more than an hour, and stimulants and all other possible restoratives were applied. After her death her body was carried to Norfolk and wireless instructions were given in advance to care for it.

Many of the passengers of the Monroe, when received on board of the Nantucket, would have died, had they not been resuscitated. If Mr. Harrington did make such statements, it was doubtless due to his metal condition caused by the great ordeal through which he had passed.

The reported statement indicating that one of the Nantucket's boats had a plug out and was not equipped with life preservers is proven untrue by the fact that the Nantucket's boats returned with all the people they could find.

Line to Congratulate Berry.

The officials of the Merchants and Miners' Line decided to-day to present a letter to Capt. Berry setting forth their approbation and congratulating him on the number of lives he saved after the two vessels met. They state that he rescued 70 per cent. of those saved, and that the officers and crew of the Nantucket resuscitated seven women

DENIAL BY J. P. MORGAN.

No Profit to His Firm in the Millbrook-New Haven Deal.

The World published yesterday morning what purported to be a revelation of the destination of $12,000,000 belonging to the stockholders of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, a sum described by Chairman Prouty of the Interstate Commerce Commission as having "vanished into thin air."

Editorially The World declared that this money "vanished into the coffers of J. P. Morgan & Co." and that it was taken from the treasury of the New York, New Haven & Hartford by J. P. Morgan to recompense his banking house for loans made without security to a dummy corporation which was organized to conceal various financial manipulations in the construction of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway.

J. Pierpont Morgan, the present head of the banking house which the article attacked, made the following comment upon it last night:

"I have seen in a morning paper an article and an editorial, the latter making certain charges against our house in connection with the Millbrook Company and concerning the acquisition of the Westchester railway property by the New Haven.

"The whole transaction in quesion was done for the account of the New Haven road. Neither our firm nor any member of our firm had any interest whatever in any securities or property acquired by the New Haven.

"There was absolutely no profit in the transaction to our firm or to any member of our firm, which merely received ordinary interest per annum upon money temporarily advanced for or to the New Haven."

FIGHT CRY STARTS PANIC.

Scuffle Over Girl Causes Rush from Grand Street Theatre.

Some 1,600 persons were distributed throughout the auditorium of the old Grand Street Theatre shortly before 7 o'clock last evening, and the house was dark to show a moving picture on the screen, when a young Italian visiting the second balcony, or "family circle," found a young compatriot sitting with his girl. He started right in to make a disturbance. There was some cursing and a scuffle, and from the surrounding seats other patrons of the family circle called out:

"Don't fight! Don't fight!"

Now, the word "Fight" yelled out up in a balcony sounds a good deal like the word "Fire." Caught up and repeated downstairs, the word became "Fire," and at that call the entire audience rose and there was one sudden rush for the big exits and the broad stairs leading down from the three balconies to the street level.

The first sight of the audience plunging out on to sidewalk spread the fire myth through the neighborhood and some one turned in an alarm from the box at the corner. In another minute the clamor of the engines as they drove up to the theatre added to the frenzy of those still struggling to the exits.

By the time the theatre was about empty every one began to feel sheepish. The real state of affairs, once appreciated, was called out from section to section of the crowd. There was a gust of laughter, and the tide turned. Every man, woman, and child started back to the auditorium. Of course, return checks were out of the question. They just went back. The attendants could not have stopped them if they had wanted to. Furthermore, they could not stop the rest of Grand Street that decided to enter the theatre at this moment. The ushers could do nothing, and besides, they were too busy shoveling from the stairs the hats and purses and shawls and furs and coats and hairpins—the wreckage of the stampede. That no one was injured in the rush was a remarkable feature of the panic.

REOPENS CASTELLANE SUIT.

Rota Tribunal Will Take Testimony of New American Witnesses.

ROME, Feb. 1.—The suit of Count Boni de Castellane for an annulment of his marriage with Miss Anna Gould, now the Duchess de Talleyrand, was formally reopened to-day before the Rota Tribunal. On Jan. 10 the Cardinals composing the Segnatura Tribunal, or high court of the Roman Curia, rejected the appeal of the Duchess de Talleyrand from the verdict of the Rota Tribunal, and the case now comes up again as a matter of regular procedure.

Mgr. John Prior, Rector of the Beda College for Anglo-American Affairs, who figured in the previous trial, has been appointed Chairman of the Judges. He will conduct the examinations, in which work he will have the assistance of Signor Galli, a lawyer.

The trial is likely to extend over a long period, owing to the fact that new witnesses must be interrogated in the United States. This will be done through the ecclesiastical authorities of the dioceses in which the witnesses reside. It is expected that, after all the evidence has been submitted, two months will elapse before a decision is rendered.

BROTHERS DROWN SKATING.

Fire Department and a Crowd of 100 Fail to Save Them.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, Feb. 1.—Elmer Fitro, aged 10 years, and his brother Joseph, 12 years old, went skating on Pompton Lakes this afternoon in spite of a warning from their parents. The younger boy had his skates on first, and dashed away over the thin ice. When he was about 100 feet from shore the ice gave way. He screamed shrilly as he tumbled into the water.

As soon as he realized what had happened Joseph, without a thought for his own safety, ran out on the ice.

"Don't be afraid, Elmer, I'm coming," he cried, as he hurried along. A moment later the ice gave way under him also.

Joseph Anderson, 14 years old, who had accompanied the Fitro boys, realized that he could not rescue the brothers, and, running up the road, turned in a fire alarm, summoning the hook and ladder company. Mayor Henry G. Hershfield and a hundred residents of Pompton Lakes aided in the rescue work. Ladders were stretched over the ice, but it took fifteen minutes to get the boys out of the water. Dr. W. F. Colfax tried to revive them. After half an hour's work he pronounced the brothers dead.

BLAME NEW YORK CROOKS.

Five Albany Robberies Laid to Gangster Refugees by Police.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—Three house robberies and two holdups in the heart of the city early to-day are attributed by the police to New York gangsters driven from their old haunts.

None of the crooks was masked. They have not been captured.

$300,000 FOR AERO RACE AROUND WORLD

Prizes for Aviators Will Be Offered by the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

ROUTE BEING LAID OUT

Planned to Start Eastward from San Francisco in May, 1915—Aeronauts Welcome the Test.

The Aero Club of America announced yesterday that the next great event in aeronautics in this country would be a race around the world for motor-driven aircraft. As the official representative in the United States of the International Aeronautical Federation, the club has been asked by the management of the Panama Pacific Exposition to sanction the race. Already $150,000 has been raised for the race, and those having the exposition in charge say that as much more will be raised for prizes before a single craft takes to the air.

The Aero Club, through Alan R. Hawley, its President, has assured the Panama Pacific Exposition management that it will sanction the race and will co-operate in any way in its power. Full plans for the race have been mailed to the club here, and are expected to arrive within a day or two.

The race around the world in the air presents some startling possibilities. That it is possible to cross over water from continent to continent many men who have made a study of aerial navigation for years agree. Those who have laid out the course for the world race have planned it carefully and in the entire trip the longest across-water flight is 670 miles. This is not prohibitive, for only recently Garros, the French aviator, flew 600 miles over the Mediterranean from Cannes to Tunis.

The race will start early in May, 1915, from the exposition grounds in San Francisco, and the contestants will be allowed ninety days in which to make the flight of 22,000 miles. From the Pacific Coast the aviators will lay a course due east across the Sierra, thence by way of Reno, Kansas City, St. Louis or Chicago, and thence to this city.

From New York the machines will head northeast, following the coast line to Belle Island between New Foundland and Labrador. Here the real flight across the Atlantic will begin. The first leg of the over-the-water flight will be from Belle Island to Cape Farwell, at the south end of Greenland. This is a distance of 610 miles. From Greenland the course lies to Iceland, a leg of 670 miles. From Iceland to Stornaway in the Hebrides is 570 miles.

Route Through Europe.

In order to fix a definite route certain cities have been selected as points of visitation and the contestants must either stop at them or pass over them in order to comply with the rules and to be reported. After reaching Scotland the aviators will traverse well known aeroplane lanes by the way of Edinburgh, London, Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, St. Petersburg, Moscow, and then across Siberia following the lines of the Trans-Siberian railroad down through Manchuria to Vladivostock.

The flight will then be across the sea to Korea, then over the Japan Sea to Kobe. After making the stop in Japan, the contestants will head north to Kamchatka, in Siberia, and then running north to East Cape, which is only thirty miles across water to Alaska, thence from Vancouver to Seattle, from the latter stop flying direct to San Francisco.

The winner of the race will receive $100,000, the second man $30,000, and the third $20,000. Other prizes, amounting to $150,000 more, to be divided among the other contestants, according to a scale not yet made public. This fund will come from individuals and from cities along the line of the flight.

The work of organization will fall to Arnold Kruckman, whose appointment as the manager of Bureau of Aeronautics of the exposition was announced today. Mr. Kruckman was formerly Secretary of the Aeronautical Society in New York, and has to his credit the arrangement of the flight of Glenn H. Curtiss from Albany to New York and the later transcontinental flight in which Robert Fowler and Galbraith Rodgers participated. He will start east in a few weeks in a path-making trip around the world.

Besides this prize money the air pilot first to guide his craft across the Atlantic will receive the $50,000 standing prize offered by Lord Northcliffe and a $5,000 prize offered for the same feat by Lady Woodhall Martin. The prize money is said to be the largest offered for a single sporting event.

Many dangers will be minimized by the co-operation of the International Federation. Men who have studied the science of flying believe that while the rules permit the entry of the dirigible and any other type of motor-driven air craft, the majority of those who enter the race will pilot especially constructed aeroplanes.

The around-the-world race has not only met with favor from the Aero Club off America, but the officials of the exposition have the support of the Pacific Aero Club in the project. President Guy T. Slaughter of the Pacific Aero Club, in a telegram to the Aero Club of America, recommends that the sanction of the International Federation be extended. One thing, aviators here say, which will probably insure favorable consideration of the great event is the size of the cash prizes More than one aviator has entertained the ambition of being the first to cross the Atlantic in an aeroplane, but has been unable to take action because of the lack of finances. Even a $50,000 prize, it is said, would not much more than cover the cost of an aeroplane of special construction, equipment, and the expenses incident to the trip.

Ready to Try the Atlantic.

Henry Woodhouse, managing editor of Flying and prominent in the Aero Club of America, said that the race was a splendid project and one entirely feasible.

"Such a race presents, I believe, no difficulties that cannot be surmounted by present day air craft," he said. "The flight across the Atlantic, it was expected, would be accomplished this year. Ever since Lord Northcliff made the offer of $50,000 for any one who would cross the Atlantic through the air in seventy-two hours there has been activity, and many are now preparing for an attempt. I know that there are now about half a dozen aeroplanes being constructed here with that object in view. Vilas, the first man to fly across Lake Michigan, is now at Hot Springs, Ark., building a special aeroplane for crossing the Atlantic.

"An around-the-world trip presents three great difficulties. They are the crossing of mountains, deserts, and the sea. The first two are really not great difficulties any longer. The highest mountains of Europe have been crossed by aeroplanes. Vider flew from Paris to Berne across the Alps on Dec. 25. The altitude record is 20,295 feet, which is about as high as Mount McKinley.

"Desert flying has been made a spe-

HUGE BRONZE EAGLE STOLEN FROM PARK

Two Men Roll Its Half-Ton Bulk Down Fort Greene Mound and Sell It for $24 to Junkman.

When Foreman James Malone of Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn, was making his daily tour of inspection early yesterday morning, he was amazed to discover that one of the huge bronze eagles which weigh half a ton apiece and adorn the four corners of the granite base of the Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument was missing. He rubbed his eyes and looked again to make sure that the giant bird on the southwest corner of the monument had really disappeared as clearly as if it had spread its brazen wings in flight. Then he notified Patrolman Thomas J. Barrett of the Classon Avenue police station.

Barrett was as much dumfounded as was Malone. The monument stands upon the brow of a hill at the northwest end of the park overlooking the plaza and is reached by climbing a steep, grassy incline. There is no path or roadway leading to it. Barrett reported the case at his station, and Detectives James J. Donlin and James McVey were assigned to investigate.

The detectives found that the turf on the side of the hill leading down to the plaza was badly ripped and torn, showing that the vandals had rolled the eagle down hill after wrenching it from its fastenings. The detectives followed the marks on the turf as far as the roadway. Here they discovered the deep ruts of a three-wheeled vehicle—evidently a pushcart—which they followed as far as Willoughby Street, which is a paved thoroughfare. The detectives carefully measured the distance between the impressions left by the wheels and then decided to visit the nearest junkshop, feeling certain that the vandals would not wheel their heavy load any great distance over the rough cobblestones.

The first junkshop to which the detectives went was at 49 St. Edwards Street, owned by Bernard Sevitsky. Standing in front of the shop was a pushcart with a centre forward wheel which upon examination corresponded in width to the measurements taken of the ruts left in the park roadway. From within the shop came the noise of busy hammering, and the detectives decided to force open the door.

When they entered they found Sevitsky at work with a hammer and heavy chisel, demolishing the missing eagle. Two wings had already been shorn away, and in a corner of the shop a melting pot was heating to reduce the fragments to a mass of shapeless metal.

Sevitsky told the detectives that he had been visited on Saturday evening by two men, who asked him whether he would buy a bronze statue. When he replied in the affirmative, he said, the two men asked the loan of his pushcart, which he consented to rent to them for fifty cents. Two hours later they returned with the eagle, which he bought for $24. Sevissky vehemently protested that he did not know where the eagle had come from. He explained that his two customers had told him that they had three other eagles, which they would bring him at some future date. He was locked up, charged with receiving stolen goods and the mutilated eagle was taken to the police station.

The Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument consists of a granite shaft surmounted by a bronze urn. The shaft stands upon a pedestal on the four corners of which are perched American eagles. It was designed by the late Stanford White and was one of his last works.

TRUTH FIRST IN THE PRESS.

After That Seek Beauty, Says Birrell at Newspaper Dinner.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Augustine Birrell, responding to the toast "Literature and Journalism" at the newspaper men's dinner, said that nobody could say that journalism, because it was produced quickly to meet the occasion, was on that account necessarily not literature. A review of a book might be much better than the book itself. They might find literature even in the country newspaper, but he did not advise a young man to spend his life looking for it.

He urged that contributors to the press put truth first, and afterward beauty, if they could find it.

STAGE TAKES TO GREEN WIG.

Light Blue, However, Is Most Popular Color for New London Fashion.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The green coiffure has now made its appearance on the stage, an actress in Bernard Shaw's playlet, "The Music Cure," wearing a verdant wig, with the author's full approval.

Clarkson, a London costume maker, says he has received many orders from women well known in society and on the stage for the new coiffures. New York, he says, is not far behind London in its demand.

The most popular color is light blue or palish pink. Both light and dark greens are in vogue, while for dark women the favorite color is deep purple.

STARTLING STYLES APPEAR.

Straw Hats, Fur Anklets, and Pantaloon Skirts at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 1.—Straw hats, anklets of fur, and pantaloon skirts were features of the fashion turn-out on the Boardwalk to-day. The hats were small in circumference, but what was lost in area was made up in height. Tall feathers were conspicuous.

These are said to be but harbingers of more extreme styles to follow in the Easter promenade.

MANAGERS IN ROW OVER TICKET AGENCY

Klaw & Erlanger Angered by Shubert Lieutenant's Purchase of Tyson Co. Stock.

The relations between the theatrical firms of Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts, which had been more or less cordial for some time, have become strained once more. Last week F. Ray Comstock, manager of the Princess Theatre and a lieutenant in the Shubert forces, purchased an interest in the theatre ticket brokerage firm of The Tyson Company, and this provoked the trouble.

In THE TIMES to-day, over the advertisements of the theatres controlled by Klaw & Erlanger and their allies, will be found the following announcement:

> IMPORTANT TO THEATREGOERS!
>
> These theatres and attractions have no dealings whatever with The Tyson Company, and no tickets will be found on sale at any of their agencies or hotel stands. The best seats for all performances at these theatres can be obtained at the box offices at the regular box office prices.

The notice refers to all the Klaw & Erlanger, Frohman, Belasco and Cohan & Harris theatres, as well as houses of other firms allied with these interests.

Since the patching up of the troubles between the Shuberts and Klaw & Erlanger a year ago attractions of each firm have been playing in theatres controlled by the other. Just how this will affect the sale of tickets to The Tyson Company is not known, but the Shuberts, it is said, will demand that tickets for their attractions be sold wherever they choose to sell them, no matter what theatre the plays happen to be showing in at the time.

At the time of the sale of some of the stock in The Tyson Company last week it was generally reported that Comstock had put $20,000 into the concern and that the Shuberts would stand good for any of the firm's debts. This was denied, although J. J. Shubert admitted that the Shuberts had agreed to extend some credit to The Tyson Company. Mr. Comstock said that the amount of stock he purchased was far less than $20,000 worth, but would not state the exact amount. He also denied the report that he was to assume the management of the ticket company.

The Shuberts are expected to retaliate by cutting off the supply of tickets for their theatres now being sold to other ticket agencies, in which case the dividing line between the followers among the ticket brokers of Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts would be closely drawn

15,000 WOMEN ASSEMBLE.

Great Outpouring at a Chicago Meeting in the Interest of Registration.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—More than 15,000 women gathered to-day at a meeting called to stimulate interest in the registration of voters on Tuesday for the election on April 3. On that date they will have their first opportunity in Chicago to vote for all statutory officers.

The large hall would not hold a third of them, but they stood in the streets in freezing temperature, clamoring for the speakers they had come to hear. About a thousand of them were admitted at two overflow meetings, but still the others remained. When the muffled cheering from the indoor meetings reached the street the waiting women replied with the cry of "Votes for women!" which was heard for blocks.

Finally speakers from the main meeting appeared on the balcony of a hotel facing Michigan Avenue. Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, President of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, spoke for three minutes, and introduced Judge Julian W. Mack, who also made a speech.

The Board of Election Commissioners has prepared for a total registration of 750,000 men and women.

AFTER PENROSE'S TOGA.

Congressman Ainey to Fight for Senatorship in Republican Primaries

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Congressman W. D. B. Ainey of Montrose, representing the Fourteenth Pennsylvania District, to-night announced his candidacy for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Penrose. Mr. Ainey, whom Senator Penrose at Pittsburgh last week denominated "a half-baked Republican," a man "neither Progressive nor Republican," will try to defeat Penrose in the Republican primaries. In announcing his intention, he said he had carefully considered the question of throwing down the gauntlet to "this modern political Goliath," and had decided to make the fight.

Mr. Ainey was brought out as a Senatorial candidate by Representative C. E. Patton of Curwensville a few weeks ago. Mr. Patton is the Pennsylvania member of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, and typifies the progressive element in the delegation. Both he and Ainey, however, are among the nine Pennsylvania Congressmen whom the Progressive organization has marked for slaughter in the forthcoming election, because, it is charged, they failed to keep their pledges to the Washington party.

CAPE COD CANAL NEARLY CUT

Small Craft Will Be Allowed to Pass Through Next Summer.

SANDWICH, Mass., Feb. 1.—The Cape Cod canal is likely to be open for small craft within six months. This six-mile ditch connecting Cape Cod Bay with Buzzards Bay is 75 per cent. completed, according to the engineers, and it is believed that the waters of the two bays will meet the coming Summer.

When first opened the canal will not be sufficiently deep to admit coastwise vessels, but power boats and other small craft will be allowed to go through. Already several New England yacht clubs are planning cruises with the canal passage in view.

Two big dredges that entered the canal, one at each end, are now within 8,000 feet of each other at Bournedale. Between them, for nearly a mile, is a fifteen-foot trench which will be flooded when the dredges cut the barriers.

STOP SUNDAY SHOWS.

Newark Police Close All Amusement Places on the Sabbath.

For the first time in twenty years no Sunday theatrical performances were permitted in Newark yesterday. This included moving-picture shows.

Chief of Police Long issued an order that all theatres and moving-picture houses must close on Sundays hereafter, or until a law was passed giving them the right to stay open.

GIRL'S AUTO GUEST VICTIM OF DRUGGING

Money Gone, Dufreme Awakes in New Jersey Village in Strange Clothing.

VICTIM OF KNOCKOUT DROPS

Tries to Conceal Identity of the Young Woman — Authorities Puzzled by His Story.

Looking out of a front window of his home in Palisade, N. J., at noon yesterday, Paul T. Brady, financial manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, saw a young man stagger and fall to the sidewalk. Hurrying out with his son Bernard, Mr. Brady found the stranger unconscious. They carried him into the house, called a physician, and after several hours, when the young man finally was able to talk, they were able to turn him over to the local authorities.

That is how it happened that Mayor Edward White and the police of Fort Lee have on their hands to-day a mystery including as elements a girl, an automobile, a roadside inn, and the theft of money and diamonds.

When, after long ministration, the young man was able to talk, he said he was Eddie Dufreme, and that he had come to New York only last week from Charleston, S. C. He had put up at a hotel on Broadway, and, having his own opinion of New York, had deemed it wise to go to the Harriman Bank in Fifth Avenue and deposit most of the $3,000 in his possession.

That was on Friday night, and on Saturday morning he had in his pockets something less than $400. On Saturday morning he set forth for Greenwood Lake in company with a young woman he knew who had an automobile, and it was in her car that they were crossing the river to Weehawken when they espied an acquaintance of Dufreme in company with another young man.

These two were invited to join the party and the first stop for refreshments was made at a roadhouse on the Hudson Boulevard—just what one the central figure of the story could not tell yesterday. They had something to drink there and the rest is blank.

What happened between then and yesterday afternoon, when he found himself surrounded by solicitous strangers in Mr. Brady's Palisade home, the young man does not remember.

As he slowly collected his thoughts he studied his own appearance with interest. He found his diamond ring and his diamond pin gone. Of money he had none. And suddenly he disowned his entire costume. The clothing was not his own. Whoever had escorted him to the sidewalk in front of the Brady home had taken away everything he had.

Mayor White and the physician whom he called to examine the stranger, believe that knock-out drops were given to him. They are now anxious to learn in just what roadhouse this occurred.

Dufreme told his story haltingly, and balked absolutely at giving the name of the young woman. He said he suspected that the men who joined the party were responsible for his plight.

He finally gave the name of Alice Lovet to the Sergeant at headquarters in Fort Lee and an address in West Twenty-first Street, Manhattan, but his manner conveyed the impression that both name and address were fictitious.

In a more confidential discussion of his plight with Mayor White, later, he told more. It was pointed out to him that knockout drops might have been given to the girl herself and that it was essential for him to tell the truth.

He then gave a telephone number for an uptown apartment to Mayor White, and directed that inquiries be made in that way. By calling up, Mayor White heard that the young woman had arrived home shortly before midnight on Saturday night. The Mayor said last night that he had reason to believe he knew her name, and he hoped to have her assistance in making an investigation of the adventure. He also gave the names of the two men who joined the party to Mayor White.

Dufreme says that his brother was Provisional Mayor of San Juan, Porto Rico, in the early days of this Government's interest in that island.

Dufreme and Mayor White crossed to New York late yesterday and the Mayor put him on a car bound for Times Square.

ARRESTS BY ANGRY HUSBAND

Davis Drags Two Young Men from Automobile for Insult to Wife.

Charles T. Davis of 24 Cooke Avenue, Flatbush, member of the manufacturing firm of Davis & Geck, at 27 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, dragged two young men from a motor car and placed them under arrest at Surf Avenue and West Eighth Street at Coney Island yesterday on the charge of insulting his wife and Mrs. Joseph Cole of Morristown, N. J. Davis, with his wife, son, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cole in his automobile, had raced after the two men from King's Highway to the Island and when he overtook the other car he appealed to Policeman Henritty to arrest two of five men in the car. The policeman demurred on the ground that he had not witnessed the offense, but he offered to act as escort if Davis desied to take them in custody.

At the Coney Island station the prisoners described themselves as Alexander Kirsh, 19, a bookkeeper of 123 West 118th Street, and Benjamin Friedelson, 18, a salesman, 16 Lenox Court, Manhattan.

"When the car in which these prisoners were passed my machine these two men took off their hats to Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Cole, smiled and smirked, and called the ladies 'sweethearts,'" indignantly complained Davis to Lieut. Collum at the police station. The accused men were released on $500 bail to appear in the Coney Island Court today. They denied the charge.

WAR IN SHOE UNIONS.

One Organization Threatens Conspiracy Charges Against the Other.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—Petitions for a restraining order, charging conspiracy against the Hamilton Brown Shoe Company, and the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union will be filed this week in the Federal Court by Nicholas Klein, attorney for the United Shoe Workers of America. This was announced at a mass meeting to-day, which was attended by 1,500 United Workers.

According to S. M. Walsh of Lynn, Mass., and other officials of the United Workers, leaders of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and representatives of the Hamilton Brown Company conspired in Boston against the United Workers, who are secessionists from the labor federation. As a result, United officials asserted members of their organization had been locked out and prices for work reduced.

BREMNER HAS A SETBACK.

But Congressman's Brother Says He Has No Symptoms of Pneumonia.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 1.—Congressman Robert G. Bremner, who is under treatment for cancer in Dr. Howard A. Kelly's sanitarium, had another sinking spell to-day. While he suffered considerably, he did not lose consciousness, and was able to talk with his brothers and sister. William Bremner, one of the brothers, said late to-night that he was happy to say no symptoms of pneumonia had developed.

Mr. Bremner took a turn for the worse on Friday which caused much concern, but he rallied somewhat and was improved yesterday.

Dr. Kelly's assistants have not made as frequent applications of radium in the last few days as during the first two weeks that Mr. Bremner was in the sanitarium. Dr. Kelly's assistants are very reticent about the case.

OVERTIME IN HILL'S FACTORY

Mills Rushed, Despite Owner's Tariff Pessimism—Increase in Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 1.—Although only a few months ago ex-Congressman Ebenezer J. Hill, a Payne Republican Ways and Means Committee member, was pessimistic over the business outlook in New England, as a result of the new tariff, his Terryville factory, the Eagle Lock Works, will to-morrow begin running thirteen hours a day. Still another business straw is the announcement to-night that the Yantic Woolen Mills of Southern Connecticut, which failed in the early days of tariff uncertainty, will be out of the bankruptcy woods within a week.

The Eagle Lock Works always has been prosperous, but never has it been so rushed with orders as at present.

MILITANTS HECKLE BISHOP.

Angered by Holloway Letter, They Interrupt Consecration Service.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Bishop of London has incensed the militant suffragettes by his report, made after a personal investigation of conditions in Holloway Jail, that he found Mrs. Dacre-Fox's charges relative to the ill-treatment of suffragist prisoners groundless, and to-day a band of women created a disturbance during the service conducted by him at Golders Green.

The women kept chanting: "God spare the women who are suffering in prison for conscience's sake, and make our Bishops and clergy see the justice of their cause." Other women shouted questions regarding forcible feeding.

As the Bishop left the church one militant tried to break through the police lines, but without success.

DENVER, Feb. 1.—There was general surprise and much speculation in Episcopal Church circles to-day when it became known that the Rev. George Gallup, curate and first assistant to Dean Martin Hart, rector of St. John's Cathedral, the only Episcopal Cathedral in Denver, had disappeared. Dean Hart, when asked to give an explanation of the departure, would only say.

"Brother Gallup, like many other people, has done unworthily and of his own volition took himself off—where I do not know. He certainly was demented and wholly unnerved."

ARTIST BOEHM A SUICIDE.

He Kills Himself After Planning to Slay His Pet Cats.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF, Feb. 1.—Henry Richard Boehm, an artist, committed suicide in his cottage here this afternoon by shooting himself through the heart. It is believed that he temporarily was insane. A few minutes before he ended his life Boehm, his wife, and Dr. Bradley a veterinary surgeon, of Ossining, were talking in the parlor of the cottage. The Boehms had a number of valuable cats. According to Mrs. Boehm they were planning to go to New York to live, and, as they could not take the cats, they called in Dr. Bradley to get his advice about killing them.

While the discussion was in progress, Boehm left the room. Then the report of the revolver shot was heard upstairs. Boehm was 44 years old. Mrs. Boehm also is an artist.

BEGGAR HAD MONEY IN BANK

But He Didn't Want to Spend His $460, He Tells Magistrate.

Charged with soliciting alms at Fifth Avenue and 104th Street, Hyman Rachstein, 50 years old, of 212 East Ninety-eighth Street, was arrrested early last night by Policeman Bresnan of the East 104th Street Station. When searched in the station, according to the police, a bankbook showing deposits of $460, $6 in small bills, $4 in dimes, and 63 pennies were found in his clothing.

When arraigned in the Men's Night Court Rachstein was found guilty by Magistrate Freschi, who remanded him until Wednesday night for sentence, ordering the probation officer in the meantime to make a rigid investigation. When asked by the Court why he was soliciting alms when he had a bank account, he said his rent was due, his wife was ill and he did not want to touch his money in the bank.

DOG BITES AN AMBASSADOR.

Dr. Dumba of Austria-Hungary Hurt When Terrier Attacks His Spaniel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, the new Ambassador from Austria-Hungary, was bitten in the right hand by a dog this afternoon while he was trying to protect his own dog from the attack of another.

The Ambassador was in Dupont Circle, a block from the Embassy, leading his black spaniel, when a fox terrier belonging to James Ricks, butler for Edson Bradley, attacked the spaniel. The dogs had a lively fight, and when Dr. Dumba reached down to separate them the terrier bit him through the middle finger.

The Ambassador lost no time in going to the Naval Hospital, where the wound was cauterized by Surgeon A. W. Dunbar. Ricks turned his dog over to the police and to-morrow it will be examined at the bureau of animal industry. Should it be found to have rabies, the Ambassador will be advised to take the Pasteur treatment.

Ricks will appear in the police court to-morrow to explain why his dog was running at large.

20,000 SEE RESCUES AT FIRE IN TIMES SQ.

Fireman Seeking to Save Lodger Hurt in Jumping from Flames in the Lyric Hotel.

HOUSE MANAGER IS DYING

Kennedy, Trapped in the Burning Building, Suffers Mortal Injuries Before Firemen Save Him.

The Lyric Hotel, at Times Square and Forty-third Street, which before it changed owners a year or so ago, was known to frequenters of Broadway as "Dowling's," was destroyed by a fire which started soon after 6 o'clock last night. The flames spread so rapidly from room to room that many of the twenty or more men who were playing pool or billiards in an establishment on the second floor, or were asleep in the lodging rooms over it, were trapped and had narrow escapes from death.

Two men, one of whom it was said would die from his injuries, were rescued by firemen, and one fireman who had climbed a scaling ladder to aid an imperilled guest was forced to jump from the second story when flames enveloped him. He broke his ankle. The fire did not extend to the saloon on the ground floor, but the interior of this was ruined by the tons of water poured upon the blaze.

The flames, which within a few minutes after the fire was discovered, leaped high in the air from all the windows of the structure, attracted 20,000 persons to Times Square, and the western end of Forty-third Street, across which the police established a "fire line." The rescues were made in full view of this great throng, which cheered heartily the energetic work of the firemen. Diners in Shanley's restaurant across the street from the burning building, gathered at the doors and windows, and added their applause to that of those in the street.

The fire started, it was thought, in the large billiard room wihch extended the entire length of the building on the second floor. At 6:10 o'clock a man who was passing west in Forty-third Street saw that one end of this room was in flames. Within a few seconds the fire enveloped the room, and before an alarm could be turned in the window panes cracked and crashed to the street, and out of every window swept flames and volumes of dense smoke. The men in the billiard room fled panic stricken to the street, many of them having to fight their way through the blaze, so quickly did the fire spread to every part of the room.

Flames Spread Rapidly.

At 6:15 o'clock, five minutes after the first alarm was turned in, the second and third floors of the building, which was four stories high, were ablaze, the flames had eaten through the ceilings of the third floor and the walls of the rooms on the fourth floor were beginning to blaze. By the time the first fire engine arrived which was in less than seven minutes after the alarm was sounded, the three upper stories were on fire and tongues of flames that shot out of the Forty-third Street windows reached almost across the street.

In the few minutes that elapsed between the turning in of the first alarm and the arrival of the fire engines and trucks the crowd that had gathered in Forty-third Street and in Times Square north of that street saw a man in one of the Forty-third Street windows on the third floor. The flames were all about him, and it seemed impossible that he could be saved. The crowd shouted to him not to jump, for the first truck was heard coming a block away. He threw a white handkerchief to the street, evidently intending it to attract attention to his peril.

As soon as the first engine company arrived Fireman Gustave Gedman seized a scaling ladder and climbed like a squirrel to the rescue of the man in the window. He passed the first floor and was half way between that floor and the next when a sheet of flame swept against the window panes, then still intact. The window cracked, and Gedman, realizing his great danger, turned calmly and faced the crowd. He threw the ladder out of his way and jumped just as the glass broke and the flames enveloped the place where he had been. Gedman was carried to Flower Hospital, where it was found that his most serious injury was a broken ankle.

As for the man whose rescue Gedman attempted, he was given up for lost by the crowd, but he managed to grope his way through fire and smoke to the western side of the burning building, and there climbed to the roof of the Coddington restaurant, and from the roof to the street. He was Richard Murray, who had been in his room in the hotel when the fire started. He was uninjured.

Two Saved by Firemen.

Deputy Chief Martin, who came on the first alarm, turned in a second alarm. Martin was told that two men were believed to be hemmed in on the third floor near the western end of the building. He ordered Daniel Haney and William Kelly of Truck 24 to go to the rescue. Again the frail scaling ladders were brought into use, and the two firemen climbed the wall. The firemen had three streams of water playing on that part of the building, and Haney and Kelly were able to go inside. In a few minutes Haney appeared dragging a man. This was Max Kennedy, the manager of the hotel. Behind Haney came Kelly, and he was half carrying a man who, it was found later, was "Young Griffo," a former pugilist.

An extension ladder had been put in place by this time, and Kennedy and Griffo were assisted down it by the firemen, while the crowd that was held behind the police lines cheered.

Kennedy was carried to a restaurant a few doors west of the burning building. He said he was caught in his room by the flames and that when he found escape by the stairs and fire escapes cut off he sought refuge in an ante-room where he was found by Haney. The burns on Kennedy's hands were bandaged and lotions were applied to his burned face after which he came out into the street and walked about Times Square. He did not then seem to be injured seriously and it was not until an hour after he was rescued that his friends noticed that he seemed to be out of his mind.

John Broderick, one of those friends, hired a taxicab and drove the sufferer to Bellevue Hospital where the doctors found that his condition was serious from burns about the head and body. It was said at 11 o'clock last night he might die before morning.

Griffo was burned about the hands and arms, but his injuries were not serious. Frank Daly, another lodger, was in his room, playing pinochle with friends, when the fire was discovered. They succeeded in escaping before the flames cut off their retreat.

With the rescue of Kennedy and Griffo, Chief Martin announced that everybody who had been in the building when it caught fire had been accounted for. William Hammerstein reported that he and employes of the Victoria Theatre had saved a man and two women whom they had found on the fourth floor of the building facing the roof of the theatre.

The damage done by the flames was estimated at between $15,000 and $25,000. Street car traffic on the Broadway line and the Seventh Avenue line was tied up for an hour. The Lyric Hotel, on Feb. 14, 1913, passed into the control of James O'Donnell, who paid $200,000 for the business and good-will of the place and assumed a fifteen-year lease at an annual rental of $25,000.

$250,000 OIL PLANT FIRE.

Islands of Flame in River, Which Light Up the New Jersey Shore.

The shrill blasts of the great siren whistle at the Valvoline Oil Company's works, at Edgewater, N. J., opposite the foot of 110th Street, Manhattan, sounded a warning at 3 o'clock yesterday morning that fire had broken out at the plant. It caused scores of the employes whose homes are at Edgewater to turn out, and awakened thousands of persons living along the North River in uptown New York.

Half an hour after the fire was discovered it had eaten its way into the oil tanks, and the blazing oil poured down into the Hudson, forming huge rafts of fire, which were borne along by the slowly ebbing tide. The damage to the plant was estimated at from $200,000 to $250,000. It was by far the worst fire Edgewater has experienced. It was 8 o'clock yesterday morning before the flames were under control.

The fire was discovered in the grease room of the oil works by Stephen Huber, the night watchman, whose attention had been attracted by the sound of a muffled explosion. He knew that a serious blaze could not be averted unless instant action upon his part was successful, and for fifteen minutes he fought grimly to smother the blaze. Then, exhausted, he stumbled from the grease room and ran to turn in an alarm. The flames sprang out behind him, lighting his way.

Supt. Gates was the first to get the word from Huber, and he ordered the whistle sounded. Edgewater knew that there was serious trouble at the works then, for the whistle never sounds a warning unless there is real danger. Chief Frederick Ingold of the Edgewater Fire Department got on the scene with the auto chemical apparatus a moment later, followed by about 300 of the employes of the plant, who had been drilled for just such an emergency. The Chief gave a few hurried directions, and then telephoned to Cliffside, Fort Lee, and Coytesville for aid. Then he notified the Manhattan department, and the fireboat Duane was dispatched to his aid.

The quick work of the firemen kept the blaze confined to the lubricating plant, which is separated from the rest of the companys p'roperty by the River Road. First it attacked a tank containing 5,000 gallons of lubricating oil, and with a great roar the flames shot up into the air for perhaps 100 feet. The flames quickly caught in the case factory and the barrel room and made their way to the wharf in front of the plant, on which were stored 5,000 barrels and cans of oil, ready for shipment. When these were set ablaze the countryside was lit up, and huge islands of flame appeared in the river. They threatened other oil plants and docks along the shore, but employes had been warned by the siren whistle, and were able to save them.

The fireboat Duane shoved her nose into the front of the wharf, and, although surrounded by a sea of fire, held her place and poured thousands of gallons of water on to the wharf and buildings. Meanwhile the Jersey firemen fought on, undaunted by the fact that six of their number were injured by a falling wall and a score more were overcome by the smoke and tremendous heat. The flames for more than an hour seriously threatened a huge tank containing 12,000 gallons of oil. The firemen knew that it meant death to many of their number if the tank exploded, but they refused to give way, and kept six streams of water pouring on it until the danger was over.

Of the injured, three were attended by a physician. They were Guy Conger of Edgewater, who was severely cut on the head by the falling of a partition wall; Joseph Kline, a member of the Coytesville Fire Department, hurt about the head by falling bricks, and George Rolander of Edgewater, also injured about the head. Dr. Buckley dressed their wounds and they were taken to their homes.

Several families in Edgewater, believing that the town would be destroyed, collected their valuables and went to the police station, where they remained until the danger was over.

RESCUES FIVE CHILDREN.

Policeman Carries Them from Burning Building, Then Falls Exhausted.

Mrs. Louis Glazer, whose husband has a tailor shop on the ground floor of a five-story tenement at 226 East Fifty-ninth Street, ran out to the street crying for some one to rescue her four small children when a fire broke out and swept through the shop yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Patrolman Stein of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who first heard her, rushed into the place through blinding smoke. In a crib he found the youngest child, 3 years old. About it were huddled the other youngsters. Stein gathered all up in his arms, safely made his way to the street, where he gave them to their mother, and then fell, prostrated by the heat and smoke. The fire was extinguished after it had done about $500 damage.

SENATOR OLIVER IN PULPIT.

Answers Pastor's Challenge to Appear—Won't Seek Re-election.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—United States Senator George T. Oliver of Pittsburgh spoke in the pulpit of the Fairhill Baptist Church to-night, in the heart of the city's textile district, and gave definite answers to seventeen questions propounded by the pastor, the Rev. Charles E. McClellan. The Pittsburgh Senator and publisher came to accept a challenge from the pastor and to refute the alleged statement of the Rev. Mr. McClellan that Pennsylvania had no Senator whom he could call to his pulpit.

Senator Oliver said the laboring men should organize to gain by proper means the best wages their employers could afford to pay; that employers and employes should submti to arbitration before strikes were declared; that good wages could be paid only when business was prosperous; that he feared the Democratic tariff would cause industrial depression, and that all could be done was to "wait and see."

The congregation applauded when the Senator declared in favor of local option and again when he came out for women's suffrage. He disclaimed any connection with the Oliver steel mills in Pittsburgh, and added that no matter which might be the conditions in the mills "it is not fair play to charge it against me."

"The attacks against the owners of the plant," he added earnestly, "are mendacious and malicious. I dare say that if I were not in public life nothing would be said about them."

The Senator announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election. The initiative and referendum recall he denounced.

A Bill Against Dark Rooms.

Assemblyman Francis R. Stoddard will introduce this week a bill, urged by the New York Congestion Committee empowering the Tenement House Department to vacate rooms which are defective in lighting facilities and without easy access to fire escapes. John J. Murphy, Tenement House Commissioner, has approved the bill. The Congestion Committee says that the need for this bill is shown by the fact that there were 8,597 deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis and 1,432 deaths from other kinds of tuberculosis last year.

TWO TAFT PROBLEMS MAY WORRY WILSON

Literacy Test and Labor Trust Exemption Both Likely to Come Before President.

EACH MAY PROVOKE VETO

Approval Might Put Effective Weapon Into Hands of Republicans at Fall Elections.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—President Wilson soon will be confronted with a double problem involving politics and principle, a problem that is producing marked differences among Democratic members of Senate and House. This problem will embrace a recurrence of the effort to grant statutory exemption to labor unions and farmers' alliances from prosecution under the Sherman Anti-Trust law and the matter of providing a literacy test for immigrants.

The general immigration bill probably will be brought to a vote in the House to-morrow or Tuesday. The bone of contention is the literacy test. A bill in all respects similar was passed by the Democratic House and the Republican Senate toward the end of the Taft Administration, and was vetoed by President Taft because it contained the literacy test.

In the House debate last week the opposition to this feature came mainly from Representatives of city Congress districts, and a large proportion of these are Democrats. With 2,000,000 persons of foreign birth or immediately descended from alien immigrants among the 14,000,000 or 15,000,000 voters of the country, a vital matter of practical politics is presented which causes concern to Democratic Party leaders.

The Democratic members of the Senate Committee on Immigration are alive to the dangers of the situation, and they discussed it at a meeting last week. As a result of this meeting the Chairman, Senator Smith of South Carolina, will call on President Wilson in a day or two to ascertain what the President thinks the Senate should do when the Immigration bill comes before it for consideration. That the immigration bill will be passed by the Senate is generally conceded, but the question at issue is whether the upper house shall eliminate the literacy test if left in by the House.

The upshot may be that the President will have confronting him in an important Congressional election year the matter of determining whether a bill passed by a Democratic Congress shall be approved at the expense of offending 2,000,000 voters. Approval is bound to result in Republican campaign orators in Congressional districts populated largely by foreigners contrasting the veto of Mr. Taft with the contrary action of Mr. Wilson.

The elements in Congress responsible for the inclusion in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill of a provision forbidding the Department of Justice from utilizing any money appropriated for trust prosecutions to prosecute violations of the Sherman act by combinations of farmers or trades unionists are understood to contemplate a revival of this issue in connection with the consideration of the pending Administration trust bills.

The exemption provision in the Sundry Civil bill passed in February, 1913, caused President Taft to veto that great supply measure. He denounced the provision as vicious class legislation. When the Democrats came into complete control of Congress in March, 1913, they passed the Sundry Civil bill with the objectionable section included. President Wilson approved the measure, but attached to it a memorandum condemning the principle of special exemption of organizations of farmers or laboring men from prosecution for maintaining combinations in restraint of trade and commerce.

There are indications that when the Administration's trust legislation is under discussion at the present Congressional session an effort will be made to have one of the trust bills amended so as to provide a permanent exemption of trade unions and farmers' alliances from prosecution under the anti-trust statutes. Some inquiry has been made by Congressmen interested in the matter and a report is in circulation that President Wilson has declared that he will veto any of his own trust measures that contains such an exemption provision.

AGAINST IMMIGRATION BILL.

Jewish Institute Objects to a Literacy Test.

At the lecture given by Dr. Jacob Kohn under the auspices of the Society of the Jewish Institute before a large audience in Kessler's Second Avenue Theatre, Second Avenue and Second Street, the Chairman, Bernard G. Richards, brought up the matter of the Burnett immigration bill, now pending before the House of Representatives. This resolution was presented:

Whereas, There is now pending before Congress the so-called Burnett Immigration bill, and

Whereas, This bill contains a literacy test, making the ability to read and write a condition of entrance into this country, and

Whereas, We believe this legislation to be narrow and intolerant and contrary to the broad, humane spirit of Americanism and American freedom of opportunity, be it, therefore,

Resolved, That this meeting of Jews and American citizens enters its protest against the restrictionist policy which is pursued and the false standard of human worth which is set up by the proposed literacy test.

The resolution was adopted unanimously by those who attended Dr. Kohn's lecture.

MAIL CLERKS HURT ON TRAIN

Their Car Hit in Rear-End Crash on P. R. R.—Other Mishaps.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 1.—Three railway mail clerks were hurt in a rear end collision on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Perryman, Md., early this morning. The accident was caused by Frank B. Hall of Washington, engineer of a train of express cars, crashing into a train of mail cars after having been stopped by a flagman from the latter train. Hall was watching signals displayed from a tower for the train ahead and failed to see danger signals on the train itself.

The injured are A. T. F. Green, 555 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., cut forehead and left eye gashed; W. J. Archer, Havre de Grace, Md., sprained back, and R. Gavey of Baltimore, Md., contusions.

Archer is the most seriously injured. The other two managed to continue to Washington on their run. They were in the last mail car, which was badly damaged, and would probably have been killed had the other train been running faster. Hall's locomotive and one express car were derailed.

Traffic was delayed over an hour. Both trains were proceeding south and carried no passengers.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 1.—The derailment of a Pennsylvania freight train at the Greenmount Avenue entrance to the Union Tunnel here delayed traffic for nearly six hours to-day. Another three-hour delay was caused by the derailment of an empty passenger train at the Monroe Street bridge.

The locomotive of a Western Maryland passenger train, after crashing into the rear of a freight train to-night near Walbrook station, a suburb, rolled down a thirty-foot embankment. It landed in a burning mass on the roof of a stable and then toppled to the ground, pinning the engineer and fireman beneath it. The fireman was slightly injured.

MAIL PLAN TO AID CONSUMER

Burleson to Give Him Direct Access to the Farmer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The recent decision of the House Committee on Agriculture to ask for $194,000 instead of $94,000 to maintain the new Division of Markets in the Department of Agriculture, brings to light the plan of Postmaster General Burleson to use the Division of Markets and the parcel post to bring farmers and consumers together, with a view to lowering the cost of living.

Circulars are to be distributed along rural free delivery routes telling the farmers of the trade opportunity offered by the Postal Service. These circulars would ask farmers to record their names and addresses at convenient post offices and then periodically file statements of the produce they wish to market and the prices. The circulars would also contain information as to packing perishable products for shipment. These data would be classified and distributed among consumers in bulletin form.

The Department of Agriculture officials are at work on practical phases of this plan of distribution. The extra $100,000 which the Agricultural Committee has agreed to give is to be used to teach the farmers how to get and hold city trade.

EXPRESS OFFICES CLOSED.

Parcel Post Forcing Companies to Consolidate Up-State Branches.

CANANDAIGUA, Feb. 1.—The Adams Express Company has closed its office here and the business of the company will be handled by the local agent of the American Express Company. The local agent of the Adams company has been transferred to Buffalo.

The Adams company announces that the action is necessary to curtail expenses and adds that a similar consolidation will be effected in other small towns. Local patrons of the companies say the parcel post is causing the consolidations.

BATAVIA, Feb. 1.—The United States Express Company has closed its office in this city. John H. Wood, who for sixteen years, had been the local agent, said that since the inauguration of the parcel post, the express business had been greatly reduced n Batavia.

BEAT EX-WIFE'S HUSBAND.

Madden Is Sent to the Workhouse for Attack on Dentist.

Adolph Madden, who refused to give up hope of being reconciled with his former wife, although she divorced him a year ago and married Dr. Joseph Mann, a dentist of 317 Second Avenue, was sent to the workhouse for thirty days yesterday by Magistrate Levy in Essex Market Court because he assaulted the dentist.

According to Dr. Mann's story, Madden appeared at his home yesterday morning and demanded that he be permitted to see the former Mrs. Madden. Dr. Mann ordered him out, and Madden attacked the dentist, scratching his face and hitting him. Policeman McKay of the East Twenty-second Street Station placed Madden under arrest. Madden asserted that the divorce obtained by his wife was not legal.

Injured, Lies in Road Ten Hours.

Mrs. Margaret McQuinley, 72 years old, of 308 West 125th Street, was found injured and unconscious yesterday morning beneath an embankment on the River Road between Edgewater and Shadyside, N. J. She had fallen over the embankment when she wandered from the roadway in the darkness Saturday night while trying to reach friends at Weehawken. She was taken to the Edgewater Hospital, where the physicians fear she may not recover from the exposure of ten hours while she lay helpless.

GIRL IS DROWNED AS SUITORS ARGUE

Hunter and Haney Say Miss McDonnell Jumped Into River, but Both Are Arrested.

ON HER WAY TO BE MARRIED

Not Clear Which of Her Companions Was to be the Bridegroom—Efforts to Find Body Fruitless.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1. — While waiting for a ferry boat to take her across the Delaware River to be married, Miss Anna McDonnell, 17 years old, fell or was pushed from the pier and was drowned to-day, while two young men argued as to which had the better right to be the bridegroom. The girl's companions declare she ran from them and jumped into the water before they could prevent her, but the police arrested both on the possibility that one or the other might be responsible for her death.

The prisoners are Arthur Hunter and Charles Haney, each 23 years old, and the police say they have been intimate friends for eight years. Haney boarded at Hunter's home. When questioned, Hunter declared Miss McDonnell was engaged to Haney and said he was accompanying the couple to Camden to act as best man at their wedding. Haney contradicted his statement, and the girl's mother insisted that Anna was engaged to Hunter and intended to be married to him in Camden.

It was dark when a policeman, who said he was attracted to the pier by a girl's scream, rushed up to the two young men, whom he found gazing horror-stricken into the water. Hunter told him, he declared, that the girl was drowning, and while he went in search of assistance Haney is said to have disappeared. He was found later in his room.

When the policeman returned to the pier with several longshoremen there was not a ripple on the surface. After much searching, a black felt hat—it had been purchased for the girl by one of the young men on Saturday night—was found floating on the surface, but no sign of the body could be found.

Hunter and Haney had known Miss McDonnell since New Year's Eve, when they met her at a ball. Since then, the police say, they had been meeting her every other night or so, one not knowing the dates of the other's engagements. Hunter's father declared his son was not engaged to the girl and added that it could not be possible he contemplated matrimony, in view of the fact that he made only $10 a week as a driver. The elder Hunter insisted that the girl was mentally deranged.

Mrs. Eliza McDonnell, mother of the girl, watched the police as they grappled for the body of her daughter. She declared that Anna had not committed suicide, but she refused to incriminate either Hunter or Haney. In fact, she absolved them from any blame.

DRIVE HIM INTO RIVER.

Strikers' Missiles Make Barge Watchman Jump Off Pier.

Charles Moore, a watchman engaged by the Pinkerton Detective Agency to guard coal barges at the pier at the foot of West Eighteenth Street, was assaulted yesterday afternoon by strikers, who hurled bottles and stones at him. He jumped into the river, but the strikers continued their fire, severely cutting his right arm and lacerating his scalp. Moore then swam out a hundred feet from shore. He was picked up by the captain of a tugboat exhausted and greatly weakened by the loss of blood.

The strikers were throwing the coal overboard when more Pinkerton agents arrived and drove them off. Later in the afternoon Patrolman Nau of the West Seventeenth Street Station arrested William Brennan, a coal shoveler, of 93 Ninth Avenue, as one of Moore's assailants.

GIRL OF 16 TRIES SUICIDE.

Takes Poison, She Says, Because She Wants to Join Dead Father.

Phoebe Levy, 16 years old, living at 1,314 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, tried to kill herself at 10 o'clock last night by swallowing three tablets of bichloride of mercury. The girl was taken to the Lebanon Hospital.

When asked why she attempted to kill herself, the girl said that she had been melancholy since the death of her father two years ago, and that she wanted to join him. She is in a serious condition.

Children See Mother Fall Dead.

While at play with her children in her home at 12 French Place, Corona, yesterday afternoon Mrs. George Seiter, 30 years old, was seized with convulsions and dropped to the floor. Her husband, who was reading in another room, heard the children's cries and ran in to find his wife dead on the floor.

CASTILLO ASKS PROTECTION

Former Guatemalan Governor Says Spies Dog His Footsteps.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Feb. 1.—Declaring that he is in daily fear of assassination, and that spies of President Estrada Cabrera of Guatemala, after hounding him for years in Central America, are still following him, Gen. José Leon Castillo, formerly Governor of the States of Chiquimula and Totonicapam, Guatemala, has made complaint to the Chiefs of Police of Mobile and New Orleans, seeking protection.

Gen. Castillo says that during the last fifteen years scores of prominent political enemies of President Estrada Cabrera have been put to death by assassins, not only in Guatemala, but in neighboring Republics, and he instances particularly the assassination of Gen. Manuel Lisandro Barrillas, former President of Guatemala, who was killed in Mexico City in 1907.

Gen. Barrillas was killed by two Guatemalans, who made startling confessions.

LESSER CHARGES DROPPED.

Manufacturer Released from the Tombs After Thirty-nine Days.

Joseph S. Lesser of 258 Riverside Drive, an embroidery manufacturer, of this city, who was arrested on Dec. 23 and detained in the Tombs to await extradition papers from Switzerland on a charge of fraud, was released yesterday by United States Commissioner John A. Shields after it had been stated that the charge against Mr. Lesser had been withdrawn in Switzerland.

Mr. Lesser alleges that his arrest was the result of a conspiracy. The complaint against Mr. Lesser was made to the Swiss Government by Henri Failletaz of Zurich. Lesser and Failletaz established an embroidery factory together in Zurich some time ago. Later Lesser brought suit in Switzerland for $30,000 against his partner. The charge on which Failletaz obtained the arrest of Lesser through the Swiss Government was that of fraud in the same concern.

HANGS HIMSELF IN TOMBS.

Prisoner Uses His Belt to Commit Suicide.

Frank Henderson, 25 years old, a cook, of 408 West Fifty-eighth Street, committed suicide late last night by hanging himself in his cell in the Tombs, where he was a prisoner awaiting trial on a charge of petit larceny. He was to have been tried in Special Sessions to-day, and had been in the prison since Jan. 28, when he was committed by Magistrate Marsh from the Men's Night Court.

Keeper White saw the man sitting with his head bowed when he made his rounds at 10:30 o'clock. Shortly after 11 o'clock the keeper again went to the cell on his rounds, and he saw the man hanging from the door of his cell. He had fastened his belt around his neck and tied it to the iron bars at the top of the cell door.

White summoned Dr. Lichtenstein, the assistant physician at the Tombs, and the doctor said the man was dead.

BOYS UNMASK COIN PLANT.

Getting Counterfeit Money for Newspapers Puts Them on Trail.

BOSTON, Feb. 1.—Clews given to the police by newsboys resulted to-day in the seizure of a counterfeit plant in the West End and the arrest of eleven men. In the last seventeen days 6,000 bad half dollars have been circulated in this city and its vicinity. More than 1,000 of them were passed on Lynn Street cars.

Much of the spurious coin found its way into the pockets of newsboys. This put the boys on the alert, and when two of them saw a man passing some of the counterfeits last night they followed him, and then told their story to a policeman. The raid followed.

$15,000 AND EMPLOYE GONE.

Disappear in Syracuse—Money Was in Two Express Pouches.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 1. — Two pouches, together containing more than $15,000 in cash, consigned by the United States Express Company to New York, have disappeared. To-night four private detectives arrived here in an effort to trace the missing money.

Atrusted employe of the company also had disappeared. He appeared at teh railroad station with the money sacks, complained of feeling ill, and has not since been seen.

ALL STEPS AT HARVARD

But There Will Be Little Ragtime on "Junior Prom" Programme.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 1.—There will be no restrictions for dancers at the "Junior Prom." in the Harvard Union on Feb. 13.

Those who wish to dance any of the modern steps will be permitted to do so without interference by the college authorities, but the 'Prom" committee intends to have but little ragtime in the programme.

HIGH SCHOOL RUNS HOME AND BUSINESS

Girls Learn Domestic Science and Boys Trades by Working at Park Ridge, N. J.

DEPARTMENTS EARN MONEY

Rooms for Teachers Fitted Up by the Board of Education in a School Building.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, Feb. 1.—State Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall of Trenton is praising "a model school of practical education" in the Park Ridge High School. As a guest of Surrogate R. A. Sibbald, who is a member of the State Board of Education and the Park Ridge board, Commissioner Kendall has made a close inspection of the school.

The Park Ridge board hired a building close to the high school, in which is installed its manual training and domestic science departments, each in a room about 20 by 50. Overhead are eight rooms and a bathroom. The problem of properly housing teachers was met by furnishing these rooms and renting them to teachers who were unable to rent satisfactory boarding places. A complete kitchen was installed, and the girls were invited to learn household arts—not only cooking and properly serving food, but everything else, from scrubbing floors to taking care of a bedchamber. The girls did not think this work infra dig., but took hold enthusiastically, and since September have, under the tutelage of Miss Emmons, been serving to those pupils and teachers who desire it and to the public diversified luncheons of well-cooked food at very moderate prices. The teachers who occupy the rooms in the building cook their morning and evening meals.

The manual training workshop is a model, in which real, practical work is being done. The room in the main school building vacated by the manual training department has been turned into a printing establishment, where the school's monthly magazine and printed forms used by the school and general work are done.

The younger girls are being taught cutting and sewing by hand and machine. The boys of grammar grades have built a hennery and installed a number of chickens. The eggs are sold to the domestic science department. The refuse from the domestic science department and from the luncheons brought to school is preserved and used to feed the chickens. Each of these departments is earning money for itself and keeps its own books and accounts. The bills of goods bought for any of the departments are made the basis of lessons in history, arithmetic, spelling, and geography in the lower grades of the grammar school, and no bills are paid unless they have been checked and approved by the classes.

Commissioner Kendall, in response to queries addressed to the classes, found that the children were almost unanimous in their preference for this system of instruction rather than for the traditional method of obtaining knowledge.

It is the intention to establish a penny savings bank in connection with the school, to be run entirely by the scholars. Passbooks, printed in the school, will be issued, and regular ledger accounts will be opened and kept by the children in charge.

Educators from all over the State have been inspecting these new activities. The pupils themselves are enthusiastic. A splendid school spirit has developed. In brightening up the backward pupils it has made the discipline of the school practically perfect, and has to all intents and purposes wiped out truancy and non-attendance.

HEARS PASTOR SHE ACCUSES

Ethel Paine and Her Mother in Dr. Kidder's Large Congregation.

BAYONNE, N. J., Feb. 1.—An unusually large congregation turned out today in the expectation of hearing Dr. Scott Kidder, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, make an explanation of the charges brought last week against him by Ethel Paine, a 16-year-old girl, who lives with her mother at 11 West Thirty-fourth Street. Both the girl and her mother occupied their regular seats at the service. The congregation was disappointed, however, as Dr. Kidder did not refer to the charges at all.

Dr. Kidder will appear before Recorder Mara to-morrow morning for a hearing on the complaint made by Ethel Paine. It is said that Detective Capt. Edward M. Griffin, who was concealed in the Paine apartment during one of the minister's visits, has also been summoned to testify.

HAYWOOD ASSAILS THE FLAG

And Tells Hearers That He Is Against Patriotism.

William D. Haywood, the leader of the "direct action" faction of the Industrial Workers of the World, had to answer many questions yesterday afternoon when he appeared in a hall at 1,666 Madison Avenue to make an address under the auspices of the Industrial Socialist League. First members of the Cloakmakers' Union took exception to his remarks and then he got into an argument with representatives of the Socialist Party.

Haywood said among other things that trade unionism never would bring about the "emancipation" of workers. He argued for one big union, embracing all trades which eventually would seize all of the industries and run them.

"I have been asked at times," he said, "what would become of the capitalist when we have obtained control of all the industries. We'll give him a chance to work for his living with the rest of us. The workers under the capitalist system are slaves.

"Some of them were foolish enough to go to fight under the American flag in the war with Spain. We don't care for the flag, and we are against patriotism. We have learned that the American flag is not our flag. There is only one flag in the world for us, and that is the red flag."

JAIL FOR BREAD THIEF.

Freeport Man Stole Fifteen Loaves and Gets Sixty Days.

A sentence of sixty days in jail for stealing fifteen loaves of bread, or four days for each loaf, was imposed on Charles Whittaker of the Bennington Park section of Freeport, L. I., by Justice of the Peace Clinton M. Flint in that village yesterday. Whittaker said he was 20 years old, and that he was married just a year ago.

When H. C. Rindlaub, a Freeport baker, missed fifteen loaves of bread Saturday night, soon after having seen Whittaker loitering near his bakery, he told the police of his suspicions. Policeman Raynor, who was sent to Whittaker's home, testified that he had found fifteen loaves of bread there, after peeking through the window and seeing the prisoner apparently in the act of hiding them. The baker, he said, identified the bread. Whittaker denied that he had taken the bread from the bakery, but was unable to convince the Justice that he had purchased so many loaves for his own needs.

RAN AT "HANDS UP!"

Footpads Shot Pettis Twice, but He Saved His Roll, a Big One.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 1.—Pursued by bullets Frank C. Pettis, an oyster dealer, escaped early to-day from three highwaymen who tried unsuccessfully to rob him of several thousand dollars he was carrying home.

Pettis was just stepping from his automobile in front of his garage when two men and a boy appeared from the shadows, and commanded him to hold up his hands. Pettis ran down the street. Five shots were fired at him, only two of which took effect, although a third lodged in his clothing. Neither of the wounds is serious.

TWO FAINT WHEN ROBBED.

Louis Lifschitz, a paper box manufacturer, of 874 Union Avenue, and his wife were about to enter the Prospect Theatre, at Prospect and Westchester Avenues, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Lifschitz put his hand in his pocket and discovered he had been robbed of $265. Mrs. Lifschitz, on hearing the news promptly fainted. This was too much for Lifschitz. He gave one glance at his wife, and then fell in a faint beside her.

The incident caused much excitement in front of the theatre, and policemen came running from all directions to quiet the throng. An ambulance was summoned from Lebanon Hospital, and Dr. Weinberg of that institution revived Mrs. Lifschitz and her husband. The two then proceeded to the Morrisania Police Station, where Lifschitz reported the robbery.

DIGGS GIVES HIMSELF UP.

Girl Identifies Him as Man Accused—He Spends Night in Jail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1.—Maury I. Diggs, ex-State Architect, sought by the police since Friday on a warrant charging an offense against a 17-year-old girl, gave himself up to-night. Diggs's temporary disappearance caused no anxiety to the authorities, because he was at liberty under $20,000 bonds following conviction under the Mann White Slave act in a case which Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, was charged with trying to postpone. His son was a defendant with Diggs. Both were convicted.

Diggs was taken to the residence of Ida Pearing, who identified him as the man named in a complaint sworn to by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pearing. He was unable to furnish bonds in $10,000, but announced that he had made arrangements for them. He spent the night in jail.

Municipal Lodgings Too Small.

John A. Kingsbury, Commissioner of Charities, inspected Bellevue Hospital and the Municipal Lodging House yesterday. The Commissioner expressed himself as being very well pleased with conditions at the hospital, but said that the lodging house needed looking after. He said that it was not adequate to accommodate the great number who apply nightly for lodging.

CITY BREVITIES.

Mayor Mitchel, President George McAneny of the Board of Aldermen, and Controller William A. Prendergast will discuss the administration's social programme for New York City at the annual meeting of the Charity Organization Society at Aeolian Hall on the evening of Feb. 16.

The annual meeting of the New York Association of the Zeta Psi, College Fraternity, will be held Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Reisenweber's, Eighth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street.

A public hearing will be held by the committee on real estate mortgages and loan companies of the commission to revise the State banking laws at the Chamber of Commerce next Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Rev. Dr. A. E. Keigwin celebrated the ninth anniversary of his pastorate of West End Presbyterian Church, Amsterdam Avenue and 105th Street, yesterday. He announced that during the period 1,713 new members had been received, as well as contributions amounting to $331,000.

The Rev. Robert S. MacArthur, President of the World's Baptist Alliance and formerly pastor of Calvary Church, in West Fifty-seventh Street, returned yesterday on the Cunarder Carmania from Burma, where he had been to attend the hundredth anniversary of the landing of Dr. Edward Judson, the noted missionary.

$300,000 FOR AERO RACEAROUND WORLD

cial study by the French military aviators. In the past year army aviators have flown over the Sahara Desert carrying mail and provisions. Even ocean flying has received some attention. Garros has flown across the Mediterranean and the Baltic Sea has been crossed. The great difficulty of an Atlantic flight is the money necessary to build and equip an air craft for the voyage. This last difficulty has been overcome by the generous prizes offered by the Panama Pacific Exposition. I believe that the coming race will not only see a line-up of many types of air craft, but that more than one pilot will be successful in covering the entire course. Certainly the offer of the prizes comes at a time when everything is ripe for crossing the Atlantic by the air route."

The announcement of the around-the-world air race came as interesting news to Thomas Baldwin, the aviator.

"Such a race will be the greatest event in aeronautics," he said. "It is, moreover, an event possible of accomplishment. I estimate that the route would cover 28,000 miles, and to cover that course within the time specified would mean that an aviator would have to spend five hours a day in the air. Just think what such a race will mean to the science of aerial navigation! The entries would be international, and the interest in the race would extend to almost every country in the world."

$1,200,000 FOR AIR FLEET.

French Popular Fund Will Furnish 210 Army Aeroplanes.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The national subscription for the French aerial war fleet amounts to $1,200,000, according to an announcement made by Senator Reymond, President of the National Aviation Committee, at a fête at the Sorbonne to-day, presided over by M. Poincaré, President of the republic.

The lists are now closed, and the fund, Senator Reymond added, would enable the committee to present to the army 210 aeroplanes, pay for the training of seventy-five expert pilots, and erect seventy aeroplane sheds at ports of call.

It is intended to establish a complete system of military air ports throughout the country, so that military aeroplane pilots may acquire an intimate knowledge of every part of France without ever being out of reach of shelter and supplies.

SAYS LOST LINER TOOK WRONG COURSE

and thirty men who had become exhausted and were suffering from the effects of their fight for life in the water.

Had there been a lack of discipline among the crew of the Nantucket, the officials point out, the death toll would have been much greater, for most of those taken aboard from the Monroe were suffering untold agony and many were unconscious.

LOCATE MONROE BY HER MAST.

Searchers Find 15 Feet Sticking Up—Divers to Seek Bodies.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 1.—With fifteen feet of her mast showing above water, the Old Dominion liner Monroe, which was lost with forty-one lives when she was in collision with the steamship Nantucket Friday morning off the eastern shore of Virginia, was located to-day by the revenue cutter Onondaga. She lies twenty-four miles southwest one-quarter south of Winter Quarter Lightship, almost in the exact spot where the collision occurred.

The wrecking tug I. J. Merritt is standing by the sunken ship, and if the weather is favorable to-morrow she will send down two divers in an effort to recover bodies supposed to be in the wreck.

E. E. Palen, Assistant General Manager of the Old Dominion Line, said today that the ship would probably be blown up to clear the path of navigation.

A red light was twinkling in the masthead of the wreck to-night to warn passing vessels of danger.

HAD TO BREAK MAN'S CLUTCH.

Raymond Van Winkle Was Being Carried Under Water.

Raymond Van Winkle, a survivor of the steamer Monroe, reached the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Winkle at Union Hill, N. J., last night. He said he was one of the fortunate passengers who managed to get life preservers. With thirty others he waited on the deck, hoping the crew would launch a lifeboat. He did not see any of them try to do anything for the passengers. Two young girls, each of whom had an oar, were trying to calm the fears of a young man. Then a heavy wave carried all overboard. The two girls and the man were drowned, he thinks.

"After I had been swimming twenty minutes a man came up behind me, and, seizing me around the waist, carried me under," said Van Winkle. "Although I had a preserver, his struggles were more than I could contend with, and so I had to fight him off to save myself."

Van Winkle, who was on a business trip for a Newark concern for which he is salesman, was picked up by a lifeboat after he had been an hour in the water.

Alvah G. Brown, another survivor of the Monroe, reached his home at 156 Hooper Street, Williamsburg, yesterday and was immediately put under the care of a physician. Both legs were severely bruised as well as frost bitten. Mr. Brown is a salesman for Libbey & Riker, 677 Broadway, milliners.

Talking of his experience, Mr. Brown said:

"I was standing in my stateroom when the collision occurred. The impact threw me against the side of the room, badly bruising one of my legs. I hurried on deck and joined in trying to launch one of the lifeboats. It was swinging inside and we could not launch it.

"With others I climbed down the side of the boat until we got near the propeller. There I managed to grab an oar, which I gave to a woman to keep her afloat if she was washed off. I remained there until a heavy wave washed me off. Swimming about, I saw a lifeboat about one hundred feet away. When I reached the side, I saw it contained five men. They refused to take me into the boat and I gave up all hope. A few minutes later I saw another lifeboat about two hundred feet away. After twenty minutes' hard swimming I managed to reach this boat and was pulled in.

"I do not wish to criticize the Captain, as he undoubtedly did all in his power. I could hear him and other officers shouting, 'Women and children first in the boats.' Two boats were swamped, but three got away all right, and in these three the Captain and many of the crew managed to find room for themselves.

"The negro stewards and waiters were the only ones who openly showed fear. They threw themselves about the deck, praying."

Demi-Units—Do You Know What They Are?

They are half-size cabinets for filing cards, letters, etc. Width is uniform—10⅜ inches, so that cabinets can be placed one above another.

For a small business and for individuals or department heads in large offices, demi-units are ideal, because they make possible a great variety of sizes of filing trays in a limited space.

The illustration gives you a very good idea of the appearance of a stack of demi-units.

Look at it and you will see that it has drawers for correspondence, card trays of three different sizes in which all sorts of records can be kept, and files for folded documents, etc.

It is not necessary to buy all these at one time. You can begin with a single demi-unit, adding others as needed.

PLOT TO WRECK ASQUITH'S MEASURES

Chief of Times Parliamentary Corps Resigns in Protest Against It.

TO FORCE DISSOLUTION

Anger of Laborites Over Deportation of Strike Leaders a Factor in Plan to Squelch Home Rule.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 2.—Since the editorial staff of The Pall Mall Gazette resigned in a body, and, with the assistance of the late Sir George Newnes, founded the Liberal Westminster Gazette, because the new proprietor, William Waldorf Astor, wanted to change the political complexion of The Pall Mall Gazette, there have been few episodes in English political journalism which have attracted more attention than the resignation of A. P. Nicholson, who for many years has been chief Parliamentary correspondent of The Times.

Mr. Nicholson has given up one of the most prized posts on the London press because he is unable to accept certain methods by which the Unionist Party in Parliament intends to carry on its campaign against the Liberal Government, which methods, as a writer for The Times, he would have been required to present in a favorable light.

From The Times Mr. Nicholson has gone to The Daily News, in which today he writes on the Unionist plans in a way calculated to stir up considerable dust in the political arena. The Unionists, according to Mr. Nicholson, have just circularized their agents throughout the country to prepare for a general election in May, and he intimates that their intention is to bring about dissolution, either by creating disorders in the House or by some other device.

Parliament to Meet Next Week.

Parliament will meet next week for its third session under the Parliament act. If the session can be brought to an untimely end the two years' work which the Liberal Party has spent in passing such measures as the Home Rule bill, to which the Lords refused their assent, will have been fruitless.

Under the Parliament act, if the present Parliament is dissolved in the course of its forthcoming third session, the Government, even if returned to power by a new election, would have to begin its Parliament act procedure all over again. For instance, the Home Rule bill would have to be introduced as a new measure, and so would the Welsh Disestablishment bill. Thus two great measures with which the Liberal Party is identified would be hung up for another three years before they could obtain the royal assent and appear on the statute books.

The Daily News gives Mr. Nicholson's article the greatest prominence, describing it as a timely warning both to the nation and the Liberal Government.

Over and above the risks from Unionist attacks, Premier Asquith's Government, according to some sound observers of British politics, is just now facing serious danger from within its own ranks.

Asquith's South African Dilemma.

Premier Botha's deportation of the strike leaders from South Africa has roused the English Labor Party to an extreme pitch of exasperation, the full force of which will fall upon the Asquith Cabinet unless the British Premier succeeds in the task which newspapers of all parties agree is almost impossible. On the one hand are the rights of all subjects under the British flag to a fair trial; on the other are the rights of the self-governing colonies to direct their own affairs.

So serious is the situation from the imperial point of view that practically all the responsible papers in England are united in declaring that judgment upon Botha's action must be withheld until all the circumstances of the deportation and Botha's justification of his conduct are available.

Meanwhile, however, speculation as to what will be the outcome is at fever heat, and noteworthy among predictions is one that Mr. Asquith will find it hard to satisfy the Labor Party; that the Labor men will consequently withdraw their support from the Cabinet, and that the final result will be that the legislative fabric which the Government has built up during the two previous sessions of Parliament, and which is still incomplete, owing to the dissent of the Lords, will topple to the ground. Thus, say the prophets of woe, home rule for Ireland will receive its deathblow without any necessity of rebellion in Ulster.

CONDEMNED ON LAST BOOK.

Maeterlinck's Works Put on the Index Because of "La Mort."

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 2.—The Times's correspondent in Rome telegraphs:

"The condemnation of Maurice Maeterlinck's works, which were all put indiscriminately on the Index Friday, appears to have been caused by his last volume, 'La Mort.'

"After long consideration, it was decided by the Congregation of the Index that, as his other works displayed the same tendency in conflict with Christian doctrine, it was better to place them all under the same ban."

NICE, Feb. 1.—Maurice Maeterlinck, whose works have been classed as forbidden by the Sacred Congregation of the Index, is apparently neither surprised nor aggrieved by the action taken at Rome. He said to-day:

"It is comprehensible why the theories expressed in my book, 'La Mort,' have been disapproved by the Papacy, but I am unable to understand why the innocent fairy piece, 'The Bluebird'; the chaste and pure 'Pelleas and Melisande,' the pathetic 'Monna Vanna,' and the mystic 'Mary Magdalene' should be condemned."

'POPE'S DANCE' IS THE RAGE.

The Furlana Now Rivals the Tango in Popularity Among Italians.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, Feb. 1.—The furlana, the Venetian dance which the Pope is said to have recommended as modest, graceful, and picturesque, after witnessing the tango, is rivaling the "exotic" dances in popular favor.

The Italian papers are full of the furlana, which is now known universally as "the Pope's dance." The Pope's dance and "the dance of the devil," as some Bishops have called the tango, are thus competing for preeminence in the Eternal City.

CABLE ALLIANCE TO END?

Writer in London Hears Western Union's English Deal Is Doomed.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 2.—The Morning Post publishes a letter from a correspondent, who, referring to the proposals for a British Government owned Atlantic cable, advances as an argument against such a scheme "the rumor that, in line with the policy of the American Government in separating the Bell Telephone and Western Union, a separation of the Western Union and the English cable companies may soon be enforced."

SIGALL'S COMPANION KNOWN

Reported to be Langfield Wolf, an International Thief.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 2.—A dispatch from San Remo to The Chronicle, telling the story of the killing of Moritz Sigall while on an automobile tour, gives the name of his American companion as Langfield Wolf.

Wolf is described as a notorious international thief who was recently unable to meet his hotel bills.

Wolf is said not to be married to his girl companion, whose name is reported to be Keller.

LOST IN SIGHT OF PORT.

Nineteen Men of German Bark Hera Drowned Near Falmouth.

FALMOUTH, England, Feb. 1.—Capt. Lorenz, the first officer, and seventeen of the crew of the German bark Hera, from Pisagua, Chile, for Falmouth, lost their lives to-day through the vessel striking a rock as she had almost finished her voyage. The remaining five men were saved through the gallantry of the first officer, who, realizing that his own end was near, handed his whistle to a comrade, with orders to blow it.

This attracted the attention of the crew of a lifeboat, who rescued the men from the rigging.

The Hera encountered a gale at the entrance to the English Channel. She lost her course and struck on the rocks near Porthalla Bight. The vessel immediately filled, and the men took to the boats, which capsized. Eight succeeded in getting back to the ship, but three of them were washed off before the lifeboat arrived. The first officer, who was lashed to the rigging, blew his whistle until the rising tide had almost engulfed him. Then he passed it over with the remark: "Here, chum, you can do better with that than I can," and fell back dead.

SIGN OF FAVOR FOR REUTER.

Zabern Martinet Transferred to His Father's Old Regiment.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—Col. von Reuter of the Ninety-ninth Regiment, who was recently acquitted by court-martial of charges growing out of the troubles between the military and the townspeople at Zabern, Alsace, has been transferred to command the Second Brandenburg Regiment at Frankfort-on-Oder. Col. von Reuter's father, who was Colonel of the Brandenburg Regiment, was killed in 1870 in Alsace while leading his command.

Apparently the choice of this regiment for Col. von Reuter is a mark of favor, and designed to counteract any possible unfavorable comment due to his transfer.

Lieut. Baron von Forstner of the Ninety-ninth Regiment, one of the chief causes of the trouble in Zabern, has been transferred to the Third Pomeranian Regiment at Bromberg.

FINISH EAST AFRICAN ROAD.

Germans Complete It from Indian Ocean to Lake Tanganyika.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—It is announced that the East African Central Railroad has been completed to Lake Tanganyika. The line starts at Dar-Es-Salam, to the south of Zanzibar, on the Indian Ocean, and runs westerly to Ujiji, a distance of 790 miles.

From Ujiji it is planned to establish a motorboat or steamship service on Lake Tanganyika in the belief that a considerable freight traffic for the road can be built up from the ports on this great inland sea and from the agricultural regions adjacent to it.

Director Is in Splendid Physical Trim for Opening International Rate War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—On the opening day of formal hostilities in the great world rate war between his own line and the allied rival lines of England, Germany, America, Holland, and Scandinavia, Director Albert Ballin permits THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to publish the only personal statement he has made thus far, or intends to make.

"Ready as I am, as a rule," writes Herr Ballin, "to make communications to you for purposes of publication, I must nevertheless turn a deaf ear to your wishes on the present occasion, as I do not think it is in the interests of our company to discuss our motives, intentions, and plans in public.

"In the German industrial world three important syndicates have just been dissolved, and free competition has been re-established between the constituent works without public opinion being thrown off its balance and without many reports about it being spread in the newspapers. It does not, therefore, seem to me logical that a dispute between shipping lines should be exalted into a sensation.

"I am a friend and promoter of syndicates so long as they serve the interests of the undertaking for the management of which I am responsible. I separate myself from them when attempts are made to force me to remain under conditions which I am persuaded are no longer in keeping with my company's interests and when my company is better off in free competition than if closely hampered in its power of expansion by the hundred paragraphs of a pooling agreement."

A few days ago rumors were set afloat to the effect that Herr Ballin had "thrown up the sponge" in the fight against the German Government in connection with the San Francisco Exposition because it had wrecked his health. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is authorized to state that such reports are utterly unfounded and that "the merchant of Hamburg" enters the rate war, which is to be admittedly the hardest battle of his career, in the full enjoyment of his old-time fighting powers.

Bremen is prepared to risk everything to accomplish Ballin's defeat, as it is feared that any other result might mean the eventual absorption of the North German Lloyd by the Hamburg-American, which is said long to have contemplated the subjugation of its great rival.

JAPAN STARTS NAVY INQUIRY

Commission Will Investigate Charges of Corruption in Contracts.

TOKIO, Feb. 1.—Both the Public Prosecutor and a Naval Commission have opened inquiries into the charges of naval corruption. The Naval Commission, which is headed by Admiral Baron Shigeto Dewa, will inquire into the allegations that Vice Admiral Koichi Fujii, formerly Japanese Naval Attaché at Berlin, and other officers received illicit commissions on contracts. Many witnesses have been summoned to appear.

While certain Opposition groups are attempting to make use of the charges in an effort to discredit and overthrow the Ministry, there is no doubt that the public has been aroused over the allegations, and will exact a rigid investigation.

The increased naval estimates, which are included in the pending Budget, form the basis for another attack. Baron Saburo Shimada, who is leading the Opposition, has issued a statement to the effect that he will seek the rejection of the naval increases in the Diet because they are likely to arouse suspicion in the United States that they are aimed against that country.

CREW STILL ON WARRIOR.

Vanderbilt Yacht Seems Little Damaged—Wrecking Tug Near.

COLON, Feb. 1.—Latest advices from F. W. Vanderbilt's yacht Warrior, stranded off the coast of Colombia, are that the yacht is still aground, although apparently not badly damaged. The steamer Almirante found it impossible, owing to the unfavorable weather, to take off the crew, and proceeded for Kingston last evening.

A wrecking tug is still standing by, and Mr. Vanderbilt has instructed the Captain to rescue the Warrior's crew and send them to New York at the first opportunity.

EX-SHAH IN ST. PETERSBURG

Persian Government Hears That He Is Visiting Russia Incognito.

TEHERAN, Feb. 1.—According to official information, the former Shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, has arrived at St. Petersburg incognito.

Reports have been current that the ex-Shah was planning a raid on Persia, and his movements have been a source of great anxiety to the Government.

EHRLICH'S VIEW OF RADIUM.

He Expects Immense Progress in Curing Contagious Ills.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—Prof. Paul Ehrlich, the noted German scientist, who is spending his vacation in Paris, is engaged in experimenting on a remedy for the sleeping sickness, and he believes that he will be successful in his research. Prof. Ehrlich is spending his vacation in a characteristic fashion, making visits to the various hospitals and laboratories.

With regard to the advances in science, he said:

"I am convinced that the next ten years will see immense progress in the treatment of contagious diseases by radium and the X-rays, which are still imperfectly investigated. Perhaps cancer will be conquered. The new discoveries will be along the lines of chemico-radiotherapy. Vaccines and prophylactic serums, it seems to me, have yielded all that there is to be obtained from them."

BAN PIORKOWSKI REMEDY.

Can't Be Imported or Sold—No Report Yet on Friedmann "Cure."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The United States Public Health Service, which has been investigating the Friedmann and Piorkowski "turtle tuberculin" products for the treatment of tuberculosis, has officially refused to grant a license to the Piorkowski Laboratories for the importation and sale of its products in interstate commerce.

This fact was announced to-night in a bulletin issued by Surgeon General Rupert Blue. Recently Gen. Blue was informed that the statement was being circulated through agents and in printed pamphlets that the Treasury Department had licensed the Piorkowski laboratories to import the Piorkowski remedy.

The announcement to-night is intended as a warning to all persons that the Government intends vigorously to prosecute ay person importing or offering for sale in interstate commerce the Piorkowski remedy.

All the Public Health Service has made public respecting the Friedmann remedy was the preliminary statement last Summer that up to that time the investigation of the Friedmann remedy had not enabled the Government's experts to reach the conclusion that it was efficacious.

Friedmann and Piorkowski worked together in 1903 in Berlin in an effort to discover a turtle serum for the cure of tuberculosis. Published statements regarding the two remedies have inspired the question as to the extent to which they are alike. While no statement to that effect is forthcoming from the Public Health Service, there are intimations here that the action taken in the case of the Piorkowski remedy may serve to forecast the nature of the report on the Friedmann remedy.

BARS ABBE FROM COMMUNION

Dean Refuses the Sacrament to Suspended French Deputy.

HAZEBROUCK, France, Feb. 1.—The Abbé Jules Lemire, who recently resigned the Deputy Speakership of the Chamber of Deputies, after having been suspended by the Bishop of Lille, was turned away by the Dean of Hazebrouck when he presented himself for communion at the altar rail to-day in St. Elois Church.

The large congregation was deeply impressed by the incident.

JAPAN WILL EXHIBIT.

Ministry of Commerce Announces Participation at San Francisco.

TOKIO, Feb. 2.—The Ministry of Commerce made an official announcement today that Japan would participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

The committee of the Japanese Parliament last May made a favorable report on the proposed appropriation of $600,000 for the representation of Japan atthe exposition in San Francisco in 1915. In view of the recent events in California, more definite action on the part of Japan has been awaited.

Disastrous Floods in Brazil.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 1.—Floods in the State of Bahia, which have been sweeping over a large section of the country districts, are increasing. Several villages have been inundated, and one small town has disappeared. The inhabitants are taking refuge in the churches. Many lives have been lost, and the damage to property is enormous.

JUROR CUTS HIS THROAT.

Locked Up for 72 Hours, He Tries to End His Life.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—Louis Braun of Lebanon, Ill., who is serving on the jury that is trying Lester Grigsby, Chief of Detectives in East St. Louis, on charges of burglary and larceny, tried to kill himself in the jury room to-night by slashing his throat with a pocket knife. The jury had been locked up seventy-two hours.

Although Dr. J. H. Fulgham, who dressed Braun's wound, telephoned to Judge B. O. Pope, of Duquoin, Ill., and asked permission to remove the patient to the hospital, the request was denied. Judge Pope told Dr. Fulgham, it was said, that Braun would have to remain in the jury room and he could have ten physicians if it were necessary, but the jury could not be separated. Braun said he had no recollection of cutting his throat and had no idea why he had done it, unless he was temporarily insane.

MORE ARRESTS MADE IN HUERTA PLOT

But Evidence of Alleged Conspiracy Is Not Wholly Credited in Mexican Capital.

FIGHTING NEAR TORREON

Federals Meet the Advance of the Rebels—Americans to Open Smelter.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1.—The agents of the War Department have made a few additional arrests of persons alleged to be implicated in the plot against the Government, but the prisoners are not widely known nor of high standing. The people generally have received the news of the discovery of the conspiracy with some reserve, the evidence submitted by the secret agents not being credited in some quarters.

José Luis Requena, chief of the Felix Diaz political organization, and Pedro Villar, who were arrested yesterday on the charge of complicity in the plot, were released to-day. No official statement has been made with reference to their release, but it is understood that both have agreed to leave the country.

Gen. Blanquet, Minister of War, admitted to-night that fighting was in progress north of Torreon.

Reports from various parts of the Republic indicate a slight increase in the activity of the rebels, but the general situation as a whole is comparatively quiet. The Government announced late last week that it had succeeded in reopening the National railroad between San Luis Potosi and Saltillo, and, by utilizing the International Railroad from Monterey to Eagle Pass, had an open line from the capital to the border. But information from railroad sources today is to the effect that the rebels have cut the International again, rendering remote the resumption of traffic.

The line from San Luis Potosi to Tampico is so seriously interrupted that there appears little chance of a train service for some time. The rebels are in possession of various points between the coast and Cardenas, and there was sharp fighting to-day at two points near Cerritos and Cardenas, respectively.

The rebels have postponed their movement in force against Tampico, and San Luis Potosi is no longer seriously threatened. The campaign against Monterey has apparently been lost sight of.

Zacatecas is the centre of a country invested by rebels, but even there the rebels have shown no indications that they are preparing for an attempt to retake the town.

Friends of President Huerta regard the lull as indicative that he is slowly gaining the ascendency.

BAN ON DIAZ CURRENCY.

Rebels to Treat It as Counterfeit in Chihuahua—Rich in Bullion.

CHIHUAHUA, Feb. 1.—Currency issued by the Bank of Senora, the Bank of Minero and other banks established under the Diaz regime will be treated as counterfeit money after Feb. 10, under a decree issued by the Rebel Government to-day. The free and unlimited coinage of silver will be offered as a means of providing ample money.

The embargo against the old bank currency, which is frowned on as a survival of the Cientifico days, when the Creels and Terrazases were in power, will render worthless millions of dollars of paper money in the rebel territory. The circulation of all paper of individuals and corporations is prohibited after to-day. A mint has been established for the coinage of silver bearing the Constitutionalist stamp. The offer of free coinage will be extended to all bullion owners, but it has not been indicated to what extent the offer will be accepted.

The Rebel Government is already in possession of much bullion, which will be coined to enrich the treasury.

It was also announced that a large American smelting interest, which controls industries in Colorado and other parts of the United States, has arranged for the immediate reopening of a smelter in Chihuahua. The smelter will provide an outlet for thousands of tons of ore brought out of the Chihuahua mines since the revolution began. Under the terms the rebels are to receive a percentage of the mining and smelting profits.

While exorbitant prices are asked for food products in Chihuahua, the rebels have assumed control of the beef supply and are selling it at 6 cents a pound. The proceeds go into the treasury. All dealings in cattle, chiefly of the Terrazas ranches, are affairs of state, directed by Gen. Villa.

Assertions of Gen. Villa that, although his power is supreme in Chihuahua State, he is nevertheless second to Gen. Carranza, are confirmed by all the official documents which refer to Carranza as the chief. This is set forth in The Periodico Official, in which Carranza's decrees are published. The homes of the Creel, Terrazas, and other rich families continue to fall into the hands of the rebels, who use them as Government stables and cuartels.

In the absence of Gen. Carranza, Gen. Villa continues to wield the power of the court, the Legislature and all Government functions. He recently granted concessions sufficient to yield their owners large incomes.

Gen. Villa is expected to return from Juarez within a few days to begin the campaign against Torreon. Advices from the south to-day were that the Federals at Torreon would present a stubborn front to the rebel advance. The rebel base has been moved southward to Jiminez and Escalon.

EX-GOV. DEHESA RELEASED.

Back in Vera Cruz in Special Car Huerta Provided.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 1.—Teodore Dehesa, former Governor of Vera Cruz, returning to-day from Mexico City, on his release after being arrested here, stated that it was an error on the part of his political enemies to connect his name with the revolutionary scheme. He arrived in a special car furnished by President Huerta.

A United States battleship arrived to-day, relieving the Kansas.

FREED ON OUR DEMAND.

Federals Release Mexican Merchant Kidnapped on American Side.

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 1.—Samuel Cantu, a Mexican merchant of Lampasas, Mexico, whose release by the Mexican Federal authorities at Nuevo Laredo was demanded by the United States Government on representations that he was kidnapped from American territory, was turned over to United States Consul Garrett at Nuevo Laredo to-day. Cantu immediately crossed to this city.

Cantu was ordered shot after his arrest. Preparations for his execution were halted when demands were made by Consul Garrett.

Gen. Quintana, Federal commander at Nuevo Laredo, said to-day that Cantu was released voluntarily and not because of any American demands.

The charges against Cantu were not made public by the Mexican authorities.

HEAR OF FEDERAL MUTINY.

Rebels Report Revolt at Guaymas and Desertions to Them.

CULIACAN, Sinaloa, Feb. 1.—Federal troops on the outskirts of Guaymas have mutinied and are fighting among themselves, according to belated dispatches reaching Constitutionalists to-day. The evacuation of the city by Gen. Ojeda's forces is expected momentarily.

Gen. Obregon reported to headquarters that between 400 and 500 Federals revolted at San José de Guaymas on Friday, and that fifty of them, with several officers, deserted and joined the insurgent camp at Cruz de Piedras.

Heavy firing began on Saturday in the vicinity of Caro Preta, another outlying town, but it was asserted that the insurgent outposts took no part in the fighting. Continued rifle firing and cannonading indicated that the Federals were engaged in a combat among themselves.

Many rumors are current that Gen. Ojeda's troops are preparing to embark for points down the coast still held by the Huerta forces.

B'NAI B'RITH MEETING.

Officers Re-elected for No. 1 District at Springfield.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 1.—Three hundred Jews, representing a million and a half members of the Independent Order of B'Nai B'Rith, District No. 1, were in session here to-day for the first business meeting of a two-day annual convention. Last year's officers were re-elected as follows: President, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, pastor at Temple Emmanuel, New York City; First Vice President, Herman Asher of New York City; Second Vice President, Judge A. K. Cohen of Boston; Treasurer, Solomon Sulzberg of New York City; Secretary, Reginald E. Zunder of New York City; Sergeant-at-Arms, Herman Schallels of Boston.

A class of seventy-five candidates were initiated into the order by the Springfield lodge degree team. A dinner to all the delegates, addressed by a group of Jewish notables, closed to-night's programme. The convention will continue to-morrow and conclude with a ball in the evening.

STARTLED BY WEDDING MENU

Food Consumed at Polish Feast Makes Jersey Farmers Marvel.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, N. J., Feb. 1.—Miss Anne Pauski and Peter Kerwiski of Great Meadows were married on Wednesday, and the ceremony and festivities which followed it have given the staid American farmers of the neighborhood enough food for gossip to keep tongues a-clacking for the rest of the Winter.

One thing that set the farmers' mouths agape was the amount of food consumed by the wedding guests. The feasting lasted two days, and here are a few of the things eaten: A wagonload of oysters, 7 calves, 135 chickens, a barrel of whisky, and $100 worth of beer.

Following the old Polish custom, the bride danced with every man who gave her a quarter. She danced 176 times, and thereby obtained $44 for housekeeping expenses.

UP-STATE MEN TELL ABOUT GRAFT TO-DAY

Bank Accounts Likely to Figure in Testimony of John Doe Witnesses.

TO SET NET FOR GO-BETWEEN

Whitman Anxious to Entangle Some Agent of the Inner Ring of the Graft Conspiracy.

Many subpoenas have been served by District Attorney Whitman's men in Erie and Albany Counties, calling for the appearance of witnesses this afternoon in the John Doe graft inquiry before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. It happens that Mr. Whitman also has subpoenaed transcripts of the bank accounts of leading politicians in these counties, and it was hinted yesterday that to-day's witnesses would tell about these bank accounts and reveal the names of the politicians concerned. There are ten up-State politicians on the District Attorney's "suspected list," and some of them, it is known, live in Buffalo and Albany.

Mr. Whitman's flying trip to Buffalo on Saturday, it is believed, had something to do with the graft investigation. Ostensibly, Mr. Whitman went to Buffalo to deliver a lecture. He will be on hand when the investigation is resumed to-day.

The men from Erie County who have been mentioned most often in the graft investigation are William J. Conners, better known as "Fingy" Conners; William H. Fitzpatrick, ex-boss of Erie County, and Henry P. Burgard, Fitzpatrick's successor.

The District Attorney, it is expected, will call Burgard as a witness before long. Burgard testified early in the investigation, on Nov. 21. Burgard acknowledged that he aided G. C. Diehl, engineer of Buffalo, to obtain an appointment on Commisssioner Carlisle's Highway Advisory Board at pay of $60 a day. Diehl worked every day in the month and collected $60 for each day. Mr. Whitman had heard that Burgard was associated with Diehl in a brick company and that specifications had been drawn by the Highway Advisory Board so as to include bricks made by Diehl's company, but Burgard denied knowing anything about this. Burgard is a friend of John A. Hennessy, and Hennessy said he was one of the men from whom he got information for his campaign speeches. Hennessy aided Burgard in overthrowing Fitzpatrick in Erie County.

In Albany County, it is understood, Mr. Whitman is on the trail of the three State Highway Commissioners who served in 1912, C. Gordon Reel, John A. Bensel, and Duncan W. Peck. James W. Osborne started war on these men about two weeks ago. He believed that he had evidence tending to show that these Commissioners had violated their oaths of office and he asked District Attorney Alexander of Albany County to seek indictments, but Alexander, backed by Attorney General Carmody, took no action. Osborne has announced his intention of getting more evidence against the trio.

In the meantime, however, it is understood, Mr. Whitman may bring out evidence of wrongdoing in Albany County which District Attorney Alexander will be compelled to consider. Such a move, it is asserted, would have political effect in that it would cause annoyance to Attorney General Carmody and through him to Gov. Glynn. Mr. Whitman's idea, however, in bringing evidence of wrongdoing in Albany County is entirely different. He needs some convictions in Albany County, it is understood, to fasten his hold on politicians whom he wishes to prosecute in New York County.

The "graft system" is so well organized that up to the present time there has been no informer. Arthur A. McLean, the only man who has pleaded guilty to charges resulting from the graft investigation, is not likely to make any confession or be of any assistance to Mr. Whitman. What Mr. Whitman wants is to entangle some go-between in the graft scandal. There are four counties in the State where such a go-between may be caught. They are Erie, Albany, Onondaga, and Monroe. Testimony to be given to-day, it is believed, will bear on the graft situation in Erie and Albany Counties, and will lead one of the "inner ring's" up-State go-betweens nearer to the District Attorney's net.

GET CARLISLE'S "PIE BOOK."

It Shows How Highway Patronage Was Allotted to Politicians.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—The "pie book" which ex-Congressman Theron Akin of Montgomery County last week declared Highway Commissioner John N. Carlisle kept has been found. It was placed in the hands of Commissioner James W. Osborne without a subpoena, said Arthur T. Warner, his assistant, to-night.

Mr. Akin testified at Mr. Osborne's inquiry into highway irregularities that Mr. Carlisle kept a book which contained the names of men to whom patronage was allotted.

"I certainly want that book," Mr. Osborne exclaimed. According to Mr. Warner, in the book were listed the names of State Senators, Assemblymen, Congressmen, county political leaders, and a number of employes.

GOT ANOTHER'S FURNITURE.

Dr. and Mrs. Lazarus Held on Suspicion of Larceny.

Dr. Bernard Lazarus and his wife, Florence, of 147 West Sixty-sixth Street, were arrested yesterday by Police Inspector Dwyer on suspicion of grand larceny. Miss Alice Dorr of 152 Columbus Avenue, the complainant against Dr. Lazarus and his wife, alleged that they were holding furniture belonging to her.

In the West Side Court yesterday Inspector Dwyer told Magistrate Deuel that Miss Dorr had given money to a man to purchase furniture, and that this man, instead of sending the furniture to the address which Miss Dorr gave him, sent it to Dr. Lazarus. The man, it was stated, is now on Blackwell's Island, serving a term for another offense. Nothing developed in court yesterday as to the larceny charge. The physician and his wife were arraigned on a short affidavit, and held by Magistrate Deuel in $500 bail each for further examination to-day.

NEWSBOYS SEE MOVIES.

Witness "Les Miserables" in New Hall at Their Club.

About 600 newsboys, many of them accompanied by their mothers, gathered at the Newsboys' Home Club at Second Avenue and Eleventh Street, last night, to witness the opening of the new moving picture hall on the home's first floor.

The boys sat for more than two hours while nine reels of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," as dramatized for the movies, were flashed upon the screen. They quickly discovered in Jean Valjean a likely hero, whom they proceeded to cheer each time he appeared after the second reel.

Before the moving picturt show commenced Richard S. Crummy, house director of the Newsboys' Home Club, explained that the club had grown until it now included 2,000 newsboys in its membership. He said that its friends were doing their utmost to raise $10,000 with which to equip the clubhouse, so that it would be of the greatest possible usefulness to the boys.

DEATH UNITES OLD CHUMS.

Two Aged Physicians, Who Were Boyhood Friends, Die on Same Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Feb. 1.—A telegram received here to-night announced the death in Hartford of Dr. Charles E. Froelich, a lifelong friend of Dr. Garwood H. Attwood of Woodbury, who also died to-day. Dr. Froelich was wealthy and had traveled extensively. He lived for forty years in Hartford and was known there as a recluse. He was 70 years old.

Dr. Attwood was 82 years old and was a Yale graduate. He left Woodbury ten years ago and since then had lived with a daughter here. He knew "Peter Parley" and his articles on old Woodbury were of great interest because he had practiced there for nearly fifty years.

Daintily Garbed Baby Found in Hall

A baby boy, 3 months old, was found in the hallway at 218 East Fifty-second Street late yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Bradley of the East Sixty-first Street Station. The baby was carefully and daintily dressed in silks and laces and was wrapped in an expensive pink blanket. There was nothing about the child's clothing to indicate who its parents are. It was sent to Bellevue Hospital.

IN NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.—John Danenhauer, 43 years old, of 54 Stevens Avenue, went to his houseboat yesterday, and taking a gun which he thought was not loaded, put his left hand in front of the barrel and pulled the trigger. The load of shot tore his hand so badly it will have to be amputated.

NEWARK.—Fire did $2,000 damage yesterday to the plant of the Meyer Undergarment Company at 34-36 Green Street.

HACKENSACK.—Michael Hertz, 24, a chauffeur, who has frequently been in trouble for reckless driving, while badly intoxicated on Saturday night crashed into a telephone pole, wrecking his taxicab and breaking his nose. He will have a hearing before Justice James Bratt.

MONTCLAIR.—Mrs. K. A. Bennett of this town has purchased the large residence of Peter J. Carey on South Mountain Avenue. The price is said to have been about $40,000.

PATERSON.—Two large mass meetings were held yesterday under the auspices of the Law and Order Committee of the Paterson Ministerial Association. The city was practically "dry" yesterday. Detectives were busy looking for evidence of violations of the Sunday laws.

RED BANK.—A man whose object seems to be to peep into bedroom windows, has been going around this town. He carries a ladder which he places at windows. Dr. W. D. Sayre of Maple Avenue shot at him several nights ago, but the man escaped.

TRENTON.—Finding his salary of $450 a year inadequate for the support of himself and family, the Rev. Lyman B. Rice has resigned as pastor of the Chambers Street Methodist Episcopal Church. He told his congregation he should have $1,000 annually, and quit when it was not forthcoming.

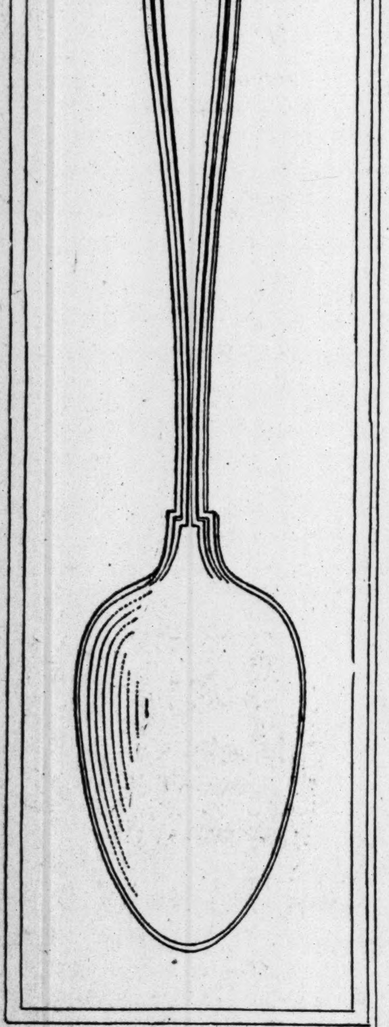
The Etruscan

In ancient times, it seems, there was no distinction between beauty and utility. Beauty was of use, and because a thing was designed to be useful was no reason why it should not be beautiful.

From this philosophy sprang a rich heritage of art—an inheritance that barbaric vandals of the Middle Ages scattered and sadly marred, but could not wholly destroy.

As the age of modern appreciation dawned, fragments of the ancient arts and crafts have been gathered and studied and classified according to time and place of origin. Thus have been revealed those schools or periods of Grecian art before which all the world does reverence.

The Etruscan development of Grecian art lived again in the classic revival of Great Britain, particularly during the Adam period, and its influence was felt in the American colonies about the same time by transmission from the mother country. Therefore, the selection of details of this period for a pattern of Gorham silver is peculiarly suited to classic and colonial dining rooms.



The Etruscan is offered in a complete line of knives, forks, spoons and fancy individual and serving pieces.

AUTO DEATH TOLL SHOWS BIG GROWTH

Motor Cars Killed More in This City in 1913 Than All Other Kinds of Traffic Combined.

580 KILLED BY VEHICLES

Highways Protective Society Contrasts This Figure with 532 Deaths in 1912 and 423 in 1911.

There were 580 persons killed by vehicles in the streets of New York in 1913, according to the report of the National Highways Protective Society issued yesterday, and of these deaths 302 were due to automobiles. Trolley cars killed 108 persons and wagons killed 170. To show how the peril of the streets is increasing, these 580 deaths must be compared with 532 deaths in 1912 and 428 deaths in 1911.

To show the increase in the number of deaths due to automobiles in this city, a contrast may be drawn between the figures for 1910 and the figures for 1913. It was only four years ago that the toll of lives taken by automobiles was considerably less than that taken either by trolleys or wagons. In 1913 automobiles killed more persons in this city than all the other kinds of traffic combined.

These figures are the tables of fatalities. They take no account of the injured persons who survived the accidents. The number of those both killed and injured in this city last year was 1,485, and this figure takes no account of those hurt so slightly that they needed no medical attention or those whose injuries escaped offficial record.

Without pointing any moral, the society calls attention to the fact that the number of arrests following the 1,485 accidents was 62, or about one in every 25, while in one accident out of every 15 the driver ran away without giving any aid to the one hurt or staying long enough to let his identity become known. There were 102 such cases in this city last year, an average of two a week. The fact that to escape in this way is a felony has not stopped the practice, and in the few cases in 1913 where the fugitive drivers have been captured there is no record of any subsequent conviction.

The Board of Coroners, in making their annual report yesterday, urged that the drivers in all cases of persons killed by vehicles be arrested as in any other kind of homicide. The present system off letting nearly all of them off with a summons to appear when wanted tends to keep automobilists careless, in the opinion of the Coroners.

While the percentage of runaway drivers was slightly higher in New Jersey for the year, the New Jersey authorities more than made up for it by making three times as many recaptures as the New York authorities both in this city and up-State. The street fatalities in this city for the last three years are shown in this table:

	1911.	1912.	1913.
Automobiles	142	221	302
Trolleys	109	134	108
Wagons	172	177	170
Total	423	532	580

The highway killings for the last three years in the rest of the State are shown in this table:

	1911.	1912.	1913.
Automobiles	132	127	149
Trolleys	67	79	79
Wagons	31	28	32

The Coroners have records of 2,656 violent deaths in Manhattan in 1913, or more than 7 a day. Twenty-one deaths by bichloride of mercury poisoning include 15 suicides. There were 111 fatal shootings in Manhattan, and the Coroners recommend the very sort of saloon-to-saloon round-up now being made by the police.

These Coroners' figures are all for Manhattan alone. Fire took 249 lives, of which more than half were those of children.

The year saw 453 suicides in the borough. Gas was the means selected by 173 persons. Eighty-six persons shot themselves, 47 jumped to death, 47 hung themsevles, 4 threw themselves in front of trains, 5 drowned themselves, and 65 swallowed poison.

URGE A TRAFFIC COURT.

Reforms Are Planned to Lessen Perils of the City Streets.

The Committee on Legislation of the Association for the Prevention of Reckless Driving is preparing a bill which it will submit to the Legislature providing for the licensing of all automobile drivers, both owners and chauffeurs, and the suspension or revocation of such licenses for cause. This, according to George P. Le Brun, Secretary of the association, will be the first step in a warfare to be waged against reckless driving in the streets of New York. The Police Commissioner also will be requested to warn patrolmen to enforce strictly the law against violators of the traffic ordinances. The association moreover would like to see a traffic court established, where all violators of the traffic laws could be tried. It is held that the Magistrate would soon know chronic offenders.

Mr. Le Brun said yesterday that twenty-three persons were killed by automobiles in this city last month, seven by wagons and seven by surface cars.

"This shows no decrease in the slaughter of human beings by the reckless operation of automobiles," he said, "and the bad record is due in no small degree to the lack of preventive measures, and the nonenforcement of the present laws.

"Fines have no effect in checking the homicides, and we believe that a suspension of the license would be better even than a short jail sentence. Indictments for manslaughter and long terms of imprisonment, of course, would be beneficial. We had 302 automobile homicides last year and no jail punishment."

Among the members of the association are Mrs. Clarence Burns, Miss Edith Reiffert, Miss Florence Guernsey, Miss Edith Totten, Mrs. Thomas Slack, Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, Isaac N. Seligman, A. Mitchell Leslie, Dr. W. H. Tolman, Coroner I. L. Feinberg and Robert Grier Cooke. Miss Reiffert is President. The organization has headquarters at the American Museum of Safety.

SPECIAL SESSIONS' BIG YEAR.

Children's Court Alone Disposed of 16,506 Cases of Delinquent Minors.

The report of the Court of Special Sessions, which will be submitted to Mayor Mitchel to-day, shows that in 1913 there were 7,533 convictions through pleas of guilty, as compared with 4,662 in 1912.

There was a notable increase in the number of cases of labor law violations. In all there were 2,365 cases of this description; 323 persons were convicted on trial, and 2,013 pleaded guilty; 69 were acquitted, and 29 cases were dismissed for lack of evidence.

The tabulated list of cases shows increases as follows: Assaults, 493; disorderly houses, 163; petit larceny, 469; excise law violations, 170; unlawful possession of revolvers, 179; labor law, 1,139; sanitary code, 1,154.

According to the report, the Children's Court in 1913 disposed of 16,506 cases, as compared with 11,740 in 1912, an increase of almost 41 per cent.

Comparison by counties shows that there were 9,551 cases in New York County, as compared with 7,106 in 1912, an increase of 2,445. In Kings County 5,636 cases were heard in 1913 and 3,924 in 1912, an increase of 1,912 cases. In Queens County 838 cases were heard, as compared with 486 in the previous year, and in Richmond County 231 cases were heard, as compared with 224 in 1912.

DANCES AT WOMEN'S EXHIBIT

Societies Will Give Teas and Invite Their Guests.

Dancing will be one of the features of the Woman's Industrial Exposition which opens at the Grand Central Palace on Thursday of this week, continuing to the 14th, inclusive. Different organizations will have charge of the tea room on different days, and "The Widowed Mothers' Fund Association," Mrs. William Einstein, President, which is in charge on the first day, announces that there will be dancing afternoon and evening. The Association for the Blind, Miss Winifred Holt, Chairman, will be in charge on Saturday with dancing. Among the invited guests of Mrs. Einstein and her committee acceptances have been received from Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Martin H. Glynn, Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, and Commissioner of Correction Davis.

There is to be a miniature "Hall of Fame," at the exposition, and the three attractive paintings by Mrs. Wilson, the wife of the President, which have been on exhibition at the Arlington Galleries, will be placed in it. In the hall of fame will be the work of prominent geologists, inventors, designers, painters, sculptors, architects, and workers in the professions.

Mrs. Julian Heath and the National Housewives' League will for the first time co-operate with the Woman's Industrial Exposition, and there will be many exhibits which will be of interest to the housekeeper and everyone concerned with the question of obtaining good food at moderate prices.

FOR FIGHT ON TAMMANY.

Committee of 250 Being Formed by Jeffersonian Alliance.

Bert Hanson, Chairman of the Anti-Tammany Jeffersonian Alliance, issued the following statement relating to the organization last night:

"More than 200 representative Democrats already have accepted invitations to become members of a committee of two hundred and fifty, whose duty it shall be to form a Democratic organization in sympathy with the progressive Democracy of the city, State, and nation.

"Another meeting of the tentative committee of forty-seven will be held within a few days to pass upon additional nominations which have been made for the larger committee and to make arrangements for the calling of the first meeting of the committee of two hundred and fifty."

DR. GAYLORD UNFAIR, SAY FISH EXPERTS

State Board Answers His Report on Cancer and Says He Sought a Place for His Son.

STAMPING OUT THE DISEASE

Goitre Already Eliminated from Six of the Eight Hatcheries in the State, Van Kennen Reports.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—The State Conservation Commission announces that it has eliminated cancerous conditions from six out of the eight State trout hatcheries, and that in the other two only sporadic cases exist. Dr. Tarleton H. Bean, State fish culturist, believes that goitre in the fish is due to water pollution. The remedy which the department suggests is for the State to own the land surrounding the hatcheries.

The statement, issued by Albert E. Hoyt, Secretary of the commission, is in the nature of a reply to the report of Dr. H. R. Gaylord of Buffalo, Director of the State Institute for the Study of Malignant Diseases, which was published by THE NEW YORK TIMES on Jan. 25. In this report Dr. Gaylord said that the disease prevailed in a high percentage in all the trout hatcheries of the United States.

A letter was made public here to-day which George E. Van Kennen, Chairman of the Conservation Commission, wrote to Gov. Glynn on Jan. 2, relative to Dr. Gaylord's charges that "the general attitude of the commission had been to minimize and to overlook the significance of this research work. Mr. Van Kennen said in his letter that the department gave all possible aid to Dr. Gaylord in his research work so far as it pertained to the hatcheries, but that he had not taken the trouble to report the result of his investigations to the commission. Mr. Kennen asserts that Dr. Gaylord sought to have his son employed by the commission, and quotes a letter to that effect which he says was written by Dr. Gaylord.

Mr. Van Kennen's letter to the Governor is in part as follows:

> It was arranged that Dr. Gaylord was to send his representative to our Bath hatchery for the purpose of securing specimens of fish in which the disease was suspected, the same to be forwarded to his laboratory for examination. The date for making such investigation was to be fixed to meet the convenience of Dr. Gaylord.
>
> Permit me to emphasize the fact that the chief purpose in view was that Dr. Gaylord was to give us the results of his investigations as to the cause and cure of goitre in fish. He has never done so.
>
> At our suggestion the conclusions reached at the conference were to be embodied by Dr. Gaylord in a letter to be written to this commission. This letter was written to us on July 19, 1912. After this determination was reached, the Doctor disclosed to us that he intended to apply to the Legislature for an appropriation to equip an experimental station, in connection with his institute, for further research. He asked for the co-operation of this commission to assist him in securing such appropriation and insisted that we view a proposed site near Buffalo, which he considered suitable for the purpose, and Commissioner Fleming did visit such site at the time.
>
> Upon our return to Albany we discussed the matter with Dr. Bean, our fish culturist, and made careful investigation regarding the present condition of our hatchery fish, and learned that for several years past experts in fish culture had recognized the existence of this disease in certain species of hatchery-bred fish, and that for some years past every effort had been made by this department to control and eradicate the disease.
>
> On the same day, July 19, 1912, on which the above letter was written, Dr. Gaylord wrote a second letter to Commissioner Fleming in which occurs this significant statement:
>
> "I would state that after giving the matter careful consideration the only person who is available to undertake this work is Bradley J. Gaylord, my oldest son, who has had two years' experience in this work at the Government fish hatchery at Craig Brook, Me."
>
> He further stated in this letter that he would expect our commission to pay for such services rendered by his son and also pay his expenses connected therewith.
>
> This was the first intimation that we had received that the Conservation Commission would be called upon to employ and pay for the services of his representative in doing this work. We thought that, inasmuch as the State was annually making large appropriations for the institute of which Dr. Gaylord is the Director, he should pay out of his appropriation the necessary expenses of his representative in connection with this research work. This commission did not assent to the employment of Dr. Gaylord's son for this work; but thereafter, and on the 18th day of October, 1912, by mutual arrangement, Dr. Tarleton H. Bean, our fish culturist, met a representative of Dr. Gaylord at the Bath hatchery and about twenty-five or thirty specimens of fish were carefully selected and preserved and forwarded to his laboratory at Buffalo for examination. Nothing further was heard from Dr. Gaylord until about Dec. 19, 1912, when he requested that we forward to his laboratory twenty-five or thirty more fish from the Bath hatchery. We immediately complied with this request, and these fish were delivered to him on the thirtieth day of the month.
> Although it was distinctly understood that we were to be advised if a goitrous condition existed, and what should be done to remedy the same, we have never from that day to this received any word whatever from Dr. Gaylord with respect to the conditions which he found upon his examination of the specimens of the fish which were sent him.

In closing his letter to the Governor the Chairman of the commission says:

> In the light of the foregoing facts, on what ground can Dr. Gaylord assert that "the general attitude of this department has been to minimize and overlook the significance of his research."
>
> If Dr. Gaylord seeks to create the impression that this commission is not in full sympathy with all research which may result in the betterment of existing conditions in connection with fish culture and has not made every effort to eradicate and control this disease, he misstates the facts.
>
> If, on the other hand, his charge means that we have displayed some lack of interest in securing appropriations for his institution, or have "overlooked the significance" of employing his son in this work, I presume we are obliged to plead guilty.

FALSE, GAYLORD'S RETORT.

Van Rennen Piqued Over His Report to Glynn, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Feb. 1.—Dr. Harvey P. Gaylord, head of the State Laboratory for the Study of Malignant Diseases here, replied to-night to the charges made by George E. Van Kennen, Chairman of the State Conservation Commission, in his letter to Gov. Glynn. Dr. Gaylord did not hesitate to say that some of the statements were false and that Mr. Van Kennen's animosity has been aroused on account of a report on the State fish hatcheries which was submitted to Gov. Glynn in October.

"The letter shows the calibre of the man," Dr. Gaylord said. "In slang words he is sore because I stated facts to the Governor which crushed his toes to the extent that he was forced to stoop to personal affairs to attack me."

Dr. Gaylord further said that in 1912 Mr. Van Kennen wrote to him asking him to send some person to the State hatcheries to gather specimens of fish afflicted with goitre and other malignant diseases.

"I told him," Dr. Gaylord said, "that I had no one at the laboratory available except my son, and that he was at the disposal of the State if desired. Mr. Van Kennen replied that the arrangement was satisfactory.

"My son was never appointed and there have been no additional specimens gathered for scientific purposes. The Governor was evidently impressed by my report, for he at once summoned the Chairman of the State Conservation Commission and demanded an explanation. Mr. Van Kennen evidently was irritated. The commission has evidently had no desire to tackle this job right. I rode a short time ago for an hour with Commissioner Fleming, and he never once mentioned the subject."

Dr. Gaylord said he intended to go to Albany and lay the whole matter before Gov. Glynn. He says he sought no employment for his son, but merely suggested that his services might be obtained.

TAKE TEN IN COCAINE RAID.

Young Men Fined and Poolroom Proprietor Held for Trial.

Complaints from mothers of young men living in the Bronx that their sons were losing money and using cocaine in poolrooms led to the arraignment yesterday before Magistrate Barlow in the Morrisania Court of ten youths, from 18 to 25 years old, on charges of disorderly conduct. The young men were rounded up by Detectives Gaffney, Burgoyne, and McClunn of Inspector Lahey's staff in a Bronx poolroom, where gambling was alleged to be going on.

The detectives testified that they found some cocaine in the poolroom, and saw the young men engaged in a game of chance. Magistrate Barlow fined eight of the youths $5 each, another $10, and held Herman Fried of 414 East 141st Street, the alleged proprietor, in $1,500 bail for further examination to-day.

ARTILLERYMEN PLAN CIRCUS

National Guard Regiment Will Give a Show in Its Armory.

The First Regiment of Field Artillery, N. G. N. Y., commanded by Col. H. H. Rogers, will give a circus and Wild West show at the armory, Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, on Friday and Saturday evenings, Feb. 6 and 7. In addition to the regular performances, there will be exhibitions of jumping horses and military mounts. Col. Rogers has offered a large cup for the military class and the regiment has offered another cup for jumpers.

The officers of the regiment will give a Mexican ride in costume. This will reproduce some of the picturesque festivals of Old Mexico. There will be "Wild West" exhibitions, including performances by Sioux Indians and rope throwers. There will be a matinee performance at 2:15 o'clock on Feb. 7.

Falls Before Train, Escapes Death.

Paul Nubernuith, 44 years old, a laborer of 28 Second Street, fell to the tracks as a northbound local train approached the platform of the Brooklyn Bridge Subway station yesterday morning, and was hurled ten feet when the first car struck him. The motorman put on his brakes, and the wheels of the train did not touch the man. He was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, where it was found that he had a fracture of the left leg.

She Didn't Know She was Married and when she found out—well, the story is told in Zane Grey's new novel, "The Light of Western Stars," just published. She was a New York girl and things happen from the minute she gets off the train in the little cattle town just this side the turbulent Mexican border. "The Light of Western Stars" is not rip-snorting border fiction by any means, but a man's size novel—a swinging tale of reality—every incident natural, and for that reason all the more exciting. It reveals a life you would like to live yourself. It all happens to-day—and this is the best day to get this new novel.

Don't be an Eskimo!

Don't spend your winter days bundled up and huddled up in an ash-dust and coal-gas laden atmosphere, breathing the devitalized air of close, stuffy rooms warmed "in spots" by old-fashioned heaters. People are not at their best where the climate is too cold or hot. A house with primitive heating methods is a poor place for rest or mental preparation for the family bread-winners.

AMERICAN & IDEAL

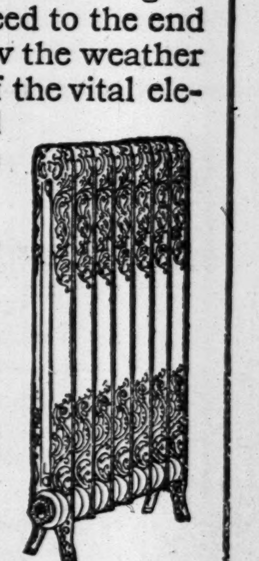
are 20th-century heating outfits, built in accordance with the highest modern standards of comfort, health-protection, fuel economy, ease in care-taking, safety, and will last as long as the building in which they are placed—large benefits and economies guaranteed to the end of your days. With IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators, no matter how the weather storms outside, you can enjoy warmth as balmy as a perfect June day. None of the vital element is taken from the air—no injurious ash-dust, soot and coal-gases are carried into rooms to menace health or to injure the furnishings. Our outfits free the women from lifting, sifting and cleaning drudgery.



IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators change any house into a home.

IDEAL Boilers consume less screenings, pea coal, run-of-mine coal, etc., to heat the whole house than stoves or hot air furnaces used to heat a few rooms "in spots." IDEAL Boilers also burn coke, lignites, wood, gas, oil, etc. Every known improvement and many exclusive features make IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators the most efficient and economical in the world, yet our enormous volume of sales in America, Europe, Australia and Japan enable us to put the price within reach of all—no higher than asked for ordinary types. Accept no substitutes!

A No. 1118 IDEAL Boiler and 215 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $120, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

RAZE LUDLOW JAIL, SUGGESTS SHERIFF

Grifenhagen Asserts That Each Prisoner There Costs the City $8.63 Daily.

MUCH CELL ROOM WASTED

Expenses of His Own Office Are Excessive Also and Can Be Cut, Sheriff Says.

Sheriff Grifenhagen has taken the promised step toward correcting the evils attending upon the maintenance of the old Ludlow Street Jail. Last Friday he sent to the Sinking Fund Commission a letter recommending that the present jail building be razed, and on a portion of the site another jail, having only twenty-five cells, be erected, and that the remainder of the land be used by the city for other public purposes or that it be sold for private use.

The Sheriff also discusses his own office at 299 Broadway. He says he has a large number of rooms aggregating about 7,300 square feet, at an expense to the city of $12,500 a year. He says he does not need so many rooms because cutting the space up in the way it is makes it inconvenient for the transaction of public business and causes waste. He wants one big room, where he may sit with his deputies, his counsel, and his Under Sheriff.

In his letter to the Sinking Fund Commission Sheriff Grifenhagen says that upon assuming the duties of his office his attention was called to the expense of maintaining the jail. He says there are fifty-two cells in the jail, some of them being double cells, and that the total capacity of the jail is between eighty and ninety prisoners. Then he says:

"The building is antiquated, the cells are dark and are lighted by candles. Prior to Sept. 15, 1904, Federal criminal prisoners were committed to the jail. No Federal criminal prisoners have been sent there since that date. I find upon inquiry that since that date the number of prisoners has averaged about fourteen. The largest number in the jail at any one one time since Sept. 15, 1904, was twenty-six on one single day.

"A very simple calculation," he says, "indicates that based on an average of fourteen prisoners and including interest on capital invested in land and buildings and loss on taxes, it costs $8.63 per day to take care of these prisoners."

Here are the figures of the Sheriff:

Salaries of employes, food supplies, fuel, &c., annually		$26,718.36
Interest at 5% on investment:
Value of land	$185,000
Value of building	65,000
	$250,000	12,500.00
Loss of taxes		4,275.00
On this basis approximate monthly expense		3,624.45
Approximate daily expense		120.81
Divided by average number of persons, 14, equals, per day		8.63

The old jail was built in 1868. It was used at one time for poor debtors. Warden Kiernan, in the eighties, cheered it up a bit with wine and song for the entertainment of Ferdinand Ward, who was connected with ex-President Grant in some business ventures. William M. Tweed was one of the noted prisoners who spent some time within the jail, and as far back as 1874 it became famous as the cage where Lady Cook, who was Miss Tennessee Claflin, and her sister, were confined for inciting persons to disorder in the interest of militant suffragism.

Sheriff Julius Harburger tried to make the jail comfortable. Whenever a musician was locked up there he could play his instrument as much as he pleased, and those who could sing were allowed to do so. Under his rule, and for the two years preceding it, the jail became known as "Alimony Hall" because it was used mainly to imprison those persons who defaulted in the payment of alimony.

Many scandals have settled upon its roof, and occasionally some public official would rise and call attention to its uselessness and recommend that something be done to rid the city of the expense of supporting it. On April 27, 1913, the Commissioner of Accounts recommended its abolition, and pointed out the fact that the salary of the Mayor was $15,000 a year, and that the Sheriff of the county got as his half share of the proceeds of his office during the six months from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1911, $23,919, and for the six months from June 1 to Jan. 30, 1912, $30,447.30.

ANTIDOTES FOR THE TANGO.

Y. M. C. A. Director Has Prescribed Sailor's Hornpipe Successfully.

The sailor's hornpipe and the Irish lilt now are taught at the West Side Y. M. C. A., Eighth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, and have won dozens of young men away from the tango, according to the Physical Director, Dr. Louis R. Welzmiller. Old folk dances have been popular in the men's department throughout the Winter. The Highland Fling, it is asserted, has made several converts from the tango.

"Men of character are glad to quit the tango," said Dr. Welzmiller, "for a substitute that gives them the enjoyment of music, and muscular exercise. The tango leads to reversion to type and savagery. It is the human race returning to the barbaric revels of our half wild ancestors. It is the law of evolution turned back upon itself."

SAY TYPHOID CASES ARE MISMANAGED

Bureau of Municipal Research to Give Its Report to New Health Commissioner.

MANY WERE NOT REPORTED

If 1911 Epidemic Had Been Properly Handled, It Would Not Have Recurred in 1913, Bureau Says.

The Bureau of Municipal Research issued yesterday a statement criticising the Health Department for its methods in handling typhoid fever. The bureau analyzed 1,133 cases in 1911 and 948 cases in 1913, and says that had the defective methods of 1911 been corrected the 1913 epidemic would have been impossible and that $100,000 a year could easily have been saved to wage-earners, in doctors' bills and funeral expenses due to preventable typhoid.

"Belated examinations," says the report, "during 1913 showed that in the 1911 epidemic the Health Department knew which milk supply should be shut off three weeks before it was shut off; that during this time misleading explanations were given to the public by the department; that too few facts about sources of contamination were sought and recorded; and that too little work, too little promptness and too little efficiency were required of inspectors.

"The defects shown during the epidemic of 1913 could easily have been corrected after the epidemic of 1911 had not the department fought to the highest courts the citizens' rights to see how typhoid cases were being handled or mishandled."

Another primary factor in the spread of the epidemic, according to the Bureau of Municipal Research, was the failure to prosecute those who did not report typhoid cases, and that in September, 1913, thirty-two cases not previously reported were found by inspectors in hospitals, having been there from two to thirty days.

"Many cases are never reported," continues the statement, "and if the proportion of cases to deaths is what the department estimates namely, 10 to 12 per cent., the unreported cases are nearly half the total number. Out of 948 cases in 1913, thirty-one were found which were not reported except through death certificate."

The Bureau also states that Dr. Billings, Chief of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases, at a conference agreed that the Bureau's findings were correct as to departmental methods. Fourteen recommendations were agreed upon for the improvement of the service, mainly directed to remedying the defects pointed out above. The Bureau will submit its detailed reports on food inspection and typhoid protection to Dr. S. S. Goldwater to-day, when he begins his duties as Health Commissioner.

Dinner of Sun Alumni.

The Sun Alumni Association, an organization now 200 strong composed of former members of the editorial and reportorial departments of The Sun, will celebrate its tenth anniversary with a dinner at the Waldorf on Friday, Feb. 13. Among those expected at the dinner are Walter Clark, ex-Governor of Alaska; Congressman Edward W. Townsend, Willard Bartlett, Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals; George W. Hinman, President of Marietta College; Chester S. Lord, former managing editor; S. M. Clarke, Daniel F. Kellogg, and George Barry Mallon, former city editors; Robert S. Yard, editor of The Century; Samuel Hopkins Adams, Williard H. Olmsted, O. K. Davis, Will Irwin, Jesse Lynch Williams, and Magistrate Paul Krotel.

EXCHANGE BUFFET E.B. 1885 RESTAURANT

The restaurant that has multiplied itself 22 times!

TWENTY-EIGHT years ago in the shadow of the Old Stock Exchange Building, the first Exchange Buffet Restaurant was opened.

The busy bankers and brokers, tired of paying excessive prices for a lot of things they didn't want, welcomed it with delight.

They took their friends to this new and different kind of restaurant. Its reputation spread all over the city. Ten years ago additional locations were opened in various business centers convenient for business men.

Today there are twenty-two Exchange Buffets. The secret of their success is plain enough—the choicest, finest foods on the market, rightly cooked and promptly and courteously served at reasonable prices. There probably is one near you. Look it up below and try it this noon. Good cigars; no liquors.

"A Restaurant for Business Men"

Loeser's
Good Morning!

We begin today several sales in which you and your family will be interested.

Home sales.

When people wonder that so great a store as Loeser's should have grown up outside of Manhattan, we know that those people are not aware how closely Loeser's is in touch with the homes of Brooklyn.

Now the subway brings many Manhattan people here.

Heads of families find it convenient to run across, perhaps at the luncheon hour, and help their wives choose new furniture and other home things in a store that is always dependable and always fair priced.

Also the Loeser Restaurant is a perfectly good place in which to have luncheon.

February Furniture Sale begins this morning.

It is practically all NEW furniture, just from the factories and in the best designs.

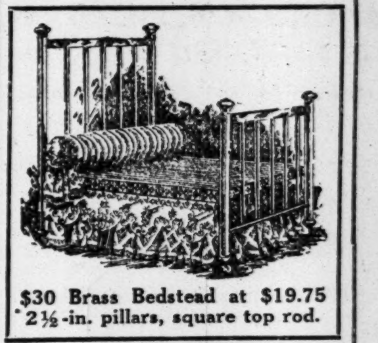
Any man who looks through these three furniture floors must be proud that American craftsmanship can turn out such fine work.

A large percentage of it was made for us under special contracts through which we are able to get prices down to a new low level.

Loeser Furniture is always priced conservatively. During the sale that starts today you will be able to buy any kind of Furniture at ten to thirty-three and a third per cent. saving.

In other words, on every $100 worth purchased there is a definite saving of $10 to $33.33.

Our whole stock, except sectional book-cases, goes into the sale at these reductions.



$30 Brass Bedstead at $19.75
2½-in. pillars, square top rod.

Annual China Sale also begins.

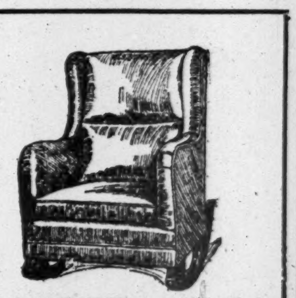
A hundred thousand dollars in china, cut glass, lamps, clocks, bric-a-brac, all at greatly reduced prices.

In some ways this is the best sale we ever held—and for about twenty years now, Loeser annual China Sales have been getting bigger each year.

Oddly enough, the subway that makes Loeser's the handiest good store for lower New York, brought us some of the best values.

A leading China importer found that his warehouse was to be taken for subway extension work and to save the labor, expense and breakage of repacking his stock, sold it to us for a fraction of usual prices.

As a result we have pretty china here today for the lowest prices within our memory.



$48 ROCKER at $36.75.
Goatskin leather, fine upholstery work.

The home sales beginning today are important, but they form only one side of the Store's interest to many people.

Spring fashions are ready in considerable variety.

We invite you to come in and see them.

The Mid-Winter
FURNITURE SALE
Opens To-day

It is one of the most important Macy events of the entire year, viewed from any standpoint. Note particularly that there are—

Savings of One-Fifth to One-Half; Furniture for Every Use in the Home

There are no pyrotechnics, boosts, boasts or "circus stunts" to force interest in this Sale or to distract attention from the main issue, which is the ECONOMY to be effected.

The trend of much of the advertising of to-day is toward exaggeration. The tendency of Macy advertising is away from exaggeration. Macy's deals in facts rather than in rhetorical furbelows.

The Furniture we present for your consideration in this Sale must have service-giving qualities up to a high standard. Our pruning knife is used on costs, on wastes, and on reducible overhead charges, never on quality—

Every day in the year you will find Furniture at Macy's selling regularly, day-in-and-day-out, at prices lower than elsewhere in the city. In this Mid-Winter Furniture Sale we concentrate for a month; we practice the most intensive store-keeping. The benefits are ideal, in that they are mutual. The customer buys under the most favorable conditions, at the lowest price-ebb of the year, from the widest assortment at a time when the Furniture Store is keyed to concert pitch. We do a vast volume of business in a period that used to be dull, under conditions that make possible a considerable saving in "over-head cost."

This is the Only CASH FURNITURE SALE in New York

(We Quote from Yesterday's Papers)

"That this is strictly a CASH SALE is one of the very important features of the Event. This Sale with which we open each February is the only one of its kind in the city, in that we pay CASH for the thousands of dollars' worth of Furniture especially bought for it, and we sell for CASH ONLY.

"What this means in buying power and prices in the first instance, and what it means in avoiding the losses inevitably incident to a "charge account" system, must be patent to every one who gives the matter a moment's thought.

"This DUAL ECONOMY, which establishes minimum cost at the source of supply and the elimination of loss at the selling end, is reinforced by the wise selection of lines of Furniture, a thoroughly well organized corps of men who KNOW Furniture to wait upon and advise with you, and a prompt and careful delivery service."

It is possible only to give a suggestion of the amplitude of our collection of Furniture for this Sale. You have the assurance that from this vast stock, expertly assembled, any Furniture requirement of the simplest or most pretentious apartment or house may be met to the complete satisfaction of the purchaser.

A DECISION WHICH DOES NOT DECIDE.

The Interstate Commerce Commission declined to enter an order in the "tap line" or "plant facility" cases, but expressed the opinion that the cost of them should be borne by the shippers, who in these cases are the owners of the branch railways, rather than by the main line of the railways. The burden thus shifted is put by the Commission at $15,000,000 annually, say the return on $300,000,000 capital. Another estimate was given in the lumber cases, where it was shown that the facilities in a single trade in Louisiana cost $9,000,000, apart from the cost of operation. That is a low average for the entire country, and represents for the country a half billion or so of plant, over which traffic was carried without capital cost to the railways. If the branch lines be regarded as giving the plants access to the railways, the plants ought to bear the entire cost. If the branch lines be regarded as giving the railways access to the traffic originating on the plant facilities the railways ought to bear the cost. In practice the plants usually have borne the capital cost, and have been reimbursed by a division of the rate. The question is whether or not they have been more than reimbursed, the excess being a covert rebate. If those are the conditions they are indefensible and should be remedied. The Commission declares that the conditions are such, but it does not remedy the grievance, although it would seem that remedying such matters is the especial function of the Commission.

This decision is the result of a rehearing which was ordered after the Commerce Court reversed the findings of the Commission. The Commerce Court has expired, but the word of the Commission does not, therefore, become the last word. The Circuit Courts have recovered the jurisdiction which was vested in the Commerce Court, and the prospect now is that the various Circuit Courts may render various decisions, one for the lumber industry, another for the iron trade, and so on. Ultimately these cases will meet in the Supreme Court, and order will evolve out of the conflict of jurisdictions, and the varying views they take of differing facts.

The difference between the Commission and the Commerce Court arose from the dual character of the tap lines. They accept general traffic, as well as the special traffic of the plant which builds them. They cannot both be common carriers and not common carriers, or common carriers as to some traffic and not common carriers as to other traffic. If the tap lines are railways and under the Interstate Commerce Commission for one purpose they are for all purposes, and it is the duty as well as the function of the Commission to regulate their rates and traffic. The nature of the business done is a better test of the status of the tap lines than the ownership of the stock of the companies, which may not be what it seems. Neither will the effect of the Commission's opinion be what it promises. The transfer of $15,000,000 costs from the railways to the industries will not cheapen the product. The railways will be relieved from the $15,000,000, but they will have to find the capital to build such lines, or the lines will not be built. So far as these industrial facilities stimulate production the prevention of their construction would be an impediment to trade, and the trade is more important than the division of the rate. The consuming public can rely upon the fact that it must pay for the service, if the service is to be furnished, and that the transfer or redivision or subdivision of the $15,000,000 will not supply the facilities at the cost of anybody else.

Probably the reason why the Commission did not make an order was out of respect for the argument of the Commerce Court. That decision, which was voided by the decease of the court, was to the effect that the Commission should regulate what it attempted to forbid. The Commission lacks the power to forbid allowances by the trunk lines to the branch lines, or to forbid the making of joint rates. If the division was wrong the Commission should make the division right, whereas the Commission assumed to forbid an established course of trade, which was beneficial in itself, and has a right to exist if divested of abuses. The court did not pass upon the alleged abuses for the assigned reason that it was administering a statute, and the statute did not forbid the practice which is of commercial advantage.

MR. WHITMAN AND THE LAW'S DELAY.

Mr. WHITMAN's address to the lawyers at Buffalo is not the less interesting or important because it presented little that is novel. His long and varied experience, his good faith and energy in the complex business of public prosecution, his skill in avoiding or in dealing with the many obstacles to the swiftest procedure consistent with justice, give especial weight to his forcible plea for the improvement and simplification of that procedure.

The main object—indeed, the only object—of a criminal trial is to bring to the minds of the jury as clearly, completely, and quickly as possible the evidence of guilt. If that evidence is sufficient, or if it be insufficient, both the people and the accused should have it presented promptly and disposed of. Needless delay tends strongly to the defeat of justice. Witnesses disappear or their memories become dim, or they may be tampered with. Such delay, for the most part, is secured through recourse to technicalities of procedure. Mr. WHITMAN would prevent this by the employment of "masters specially competent to deal with procedural matters," "so that "only the matters really in issue will "be presented to the trial tribunal, "and all this should be speedily, inex-"pensively, and effectively done." Another suggestion in the same line is that appeals should be allowed only on points involving the merits of the case and that appellate courts, where an error is found, should be authorized, at their discretion, to correct it, instead of ordering a new trial.

These are questions that must be taken up at the approaching Constitutional Convention. There will be no subject of greater importance to engage the attention of that body. Not only is an enormous amount of money wasted by our "topheavy" administration of law, but incitement and advantage are given to a powerful and baleful criminal class, which really, in a substantial sense, is a privileged class.

OBSTACLES TO BE REMOVED.

It so happened that the firemen in fighting the fierce blaze at Seventh Avenue and Forty-third Street last evening were not greatly hampered by the huge advertising signs on the roof. If the flames had eaten through the roof or had spread to the adjoining building, however, these big superstructures would have impeded the work of the firemen. That their presence might greatly increase the peril was an uppermost thought in the minds of many persons in the crowd who watched the fire when it was burning fiercely. Some day a great loss of property, and perhaps of life, will be due to these incumbrances unless steps are taken to decrease their size or prohibit their erection altogether.

This matter, we understand, is to be brought up again in the Board of Aldermen, and this time the objection to the glaring disfigurements of the centre of the town is not to be based solely on aesthetic grounds. The testimony of fire experts and building inspectors will be used to secure the passage of an ordinance, the enforcement of which will tend, assuredly, to improve the appearance of our thoroughfares, and will also remove a dangerous obstacle to the quick extinguishing of big fires. What a fire in the heart of this city can be was very clearly shown last evening. Within ten minutes of the first alarm the building was enveloped in flames. The rapid and effective work of the Fire Department cannot be too highly praised.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

The contest between LLOYD GEORGE and Mr. CHURCHILL as to a cessation of navy building has been adjourned for the present, but the situation out of which it arose continues to be discussed with intense interest on the Continent, and particularly in France. So far it seems that Mr. GEORGE has failed in his first assault. Mr. CHURCHILL has modified his plans only in detail, and not materially, and Mr. GEORGE has turned his energies to the land question.

But the French are disturbed, and not without reason. They say that Mr. GEORGE represents a radical, nonconformist, pacifist element in the Government party which, if it be not dominant, is at least indispensable, and that if it should insist that navy building cease, without regard to the action of Germany, the Government would be forced to yield. If it did yield, the essential force of the Triple Entente would be destroyed. They point out that Mr. GEORGE's argument is that Germany is strengthening her army far more rapidly than her navy and that it is the German Army, not the navy, which France has to fear. As the British Army is relatively weak, the only aid England could give France, if aid were needed, would be by attacking Germany on the sea. For this purpose England must keep her navy stronger than that of Germany. Conversely, the chief aid France could give England if aid were needed would be on land. She has accordingly made great sacrifices to reinforce her army, in order to meet the like policy on the part of Germany. The French journals, with great courtesy of tone but very soberly, are bringing these facts and arguments to the attention of their readers. The public opinion of France is unquestionably affected by them.

There is another point in which the French press is keenly interested. It is the extreme development of the arbitrary sentiment of the army, as shown in the Zabern affair and its treatment by the Government. They see in it a menace to peace, and not without reason. It has, for one thing, undone much of the work of conciliation done in Alsace during the last twenty years, and has aroused a degree and kind of irritation there that may prove very disturbing. The Rhine border at best is likely to be the scene of agitation and disorder on one side of it or on the other. It has been the aim generally of both Governments to reduce the risk from this source as much as possible. Obviously, the risk is aggravated if the Prussian officers are to be allowed to ignore and insult the civil authorities at their pleasure. Since the German Government has failed to check the excesses of the military, and in some degree has condoned and even encouraged them, the difficulties in the way of a policy of peace are increased. The French think that the time is ill-chosen by an English Cabinet officer to urge a course that would lessen the value of British friendship in case of trouble with Germany.

We incline to think, however, that the French publicists do not quite see to what extent Mr. GEORGE's latest manifestation is a party device purely for home consumption. The Liberal Government is sadly bothered by two matters, home rule, with the ugly possibilities in Ulster, and the heavy cost of the social betterment measures put forward by Mr. GEORGE. That gentleman is as expert and subtle a politician as our Mr. ROOSEVELT, and has as keen an appreciation of the value of a "red herring" judiciously drawn across the trail of a disturbing public sentiment. He has shown his skill, as well as his audacity, in dealing with the question of navy building. In the long run it is quite improbable that any British Government will abandon the policy of adequate naval defense until adequate security on the side of Germany is attained.

DO WE DRESS CARELESSLY?

The London dancing master who describes us as a nation negligent in dress may not be so wide of the mark, after all. Perhaps we have all been too willing to accept the assertion that the American man is the best-dressed man in the world, and the American woman the most tastefully gowned woman, without looking into the matter as closely as we might. Anyhow, dancing masters know something about clothes, and this London authority has a right to his own opinion. If it is founded on extended observation it is worth heeding.

We do not like to be called negligent in dress; some of us pride ourselves a little too much on the cut of our garments and their appropriateness. If an observant foreigner, with a keener eye for sartorial things than ordinary men, has really formed the opinion that we dress carelessly, we must at least admit that there is no better place in the world to judge of the dress and manners of Americans than the British capital in the season. America is fitly represented there, not only New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago, but the whole country. Perhaps the dancing master has noted Americans on Piccadilly wearing baggy trousers when tight ones are in vogue, shapeless cloth hats instead of the prescribed headgear of well-dressed men, jackets when the hour calls for skirted coats. If most of the Americans he observes are thus defiant of the conventions, is he not justified in assuming that the nation is negligent in its dress? He is not compelled to take note of the correct attire of an insignificant minority.

On the whole, we must confess that we have not been favorably impressed of late with the tendencies noted in men's attire. Even here in New York, where the tailors and haberdashers pride themselves on their aesthetic influence, there is a marked preponderance of shapeless garments and shockingly bad hats. In evening dress there is a lamentable disposition to cultivate "individual taste," which is often abominable. We are not considering now the feminine fashions, which always demand a separate chapter, but we are trying to point out that while a large number of well-bred Americans do really dress with good judgment and carefully, a much larger number show a growing fondness for queer clothes, or habitually wear in the busy town clothes designed for rural outings. We do not care much for the London dancing master's harsh judgment of our new dances, but he may not be altogether wrong about our dressing.

THE SICK IN THE HOME.

Of the 21,000 patients visited during the last year by the nurses of the Henry Street Settlement, 11,066 were children, and of these 3,377 had pneumonia. Because of popular distrust of hospitals, nine-tenths of the sick poor remain at home, wretchedly attended save for the ministrations of visiting nurses. The efficient service maintained by the Henry Street Settlement resulted in 200,000 calls on the 21,000 patients in Manhattan and the Bronx. The Settlement has made this service, which compares with that for the 20,320 patients treated in three of the foremost hospitals of this city during the past year, accessible to people who can pay nothing at all, or can pay but a small fee.

There is a minimum of red tape. The nurses answer calls from the private doctor, the free doctor, hospitals, charity workers, neighbors, the families of the sick, the street sweeper, and the janitor. Besides the immediate care of the patients the propaganda of the nurses is educational, with tactful instruction in sanitation of the homes they enter. Theirs is the gospel of preventing further illness. The service is well organized, and it is carried on as far as the money available to the Settlement will permit. Checks may be sent payable to LILLIAN D. WALD, 265 Henry Street.

NEW OFFENSES.

Talking French, even when you can talk German but poorly, and keeping your hats on in the presence of a "royal Prussian Major," these seem to be the latest offenses that Prussian officers have invented and sought to punish, according to The Berlin Tageblatt. In the case reported, however, which occurred in the little town of Montigny, near Metz, it must be added that the Major confined himself to knocking off the cap of one of the offenders, who was safely held by some non-commissioned officers. Then the civilians were arrested, turned over to the police, and afterward released. They were not locked up in a cellar overnight, and they did not have their heads cut open with a sabre—all of which shows, perhaps, a slight modifying of the "royal Prussian" spirit.

It is a pity that the Kaiser cannot by orders make his officers acquire a rudimentary sense of humor. It would save them and him a great deal of trouble.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Highly Trained Nurses and Others.

According to a report just made to the Board of Estimate by the committee which has been investigating hospital conditions, the supply of competent, well-trained nurses for these institutions is far from adequate. In all of them, it is more than intimated, the result is that each nurse has to care for too many patients, the number ranging from sixteen to forty-two—a difference in itself proving that something is seriously wrong.

The report declares it to be "an open question" whether or not the need can be met by providing instruction which, without enabling its recipients "to encroach upon the field of the highly trained nurse," will yet make them highly useful in cases of ordinary sickness. Apparently the members of the committee, for one reason or other, did not care to express an opinion on this question. Others are not so timid.

Vehemently upholding one side of it stand the nurses already trained, certificated, and registered. They deny all competency to those less competent than themselves, and are pressing for legislation that would forbid them to use the ancient name of "nurse" in proffering their services.

Were this demand only for protection from the rivalry of nurses falsely claiming to be fully trained, no objection would be possible. Somewhat too obviously, however, the object is not to guard the public from deception, but to keep up wages at the point where they have been fixed by united action and agreement of the graduates from hospital schools. The successful attainment of that end would put outside nursing of any sort beyond the reach of people in narrow circumstances, impose cruel hardship on those of moderate means, and in effect restrict it to the rich.

The alternative is a grading of nurses —and of salaries—according to the amount and quality of training they have received. There would be no protest against keeping the grades strictly separate, or against giving to the member of each a distinctive name and making her stick to it till she earned a higher one. Then the employer of a nurse would know exactly what he was getting, and pay a fair price for it, large or small.

In nursing as in everything else we all want the best, but rather than do without altogether most of us take something less for the good reason that we must. Certainly, until the trained nurses show, as they have never done yet, the doctor's willingness to serve the poor for nothing, they cannot decently claim the doctor's professional dignity or his right to the exclusive use of his title.

At Least It Is an Answer.

At the recent meeting of unemployed women in Cooper Union, after many pathetic stories of suffering and hardship had been told, somebody in the audience asked the pertinent question why it was that those in such desperate need of work did not seek it where the demand for workers is almost equally desperate—in domestic service.

The only reply was made by one of the managers of the meeting. "There must be," she said, "some very good reason why the girls all prefer to work in factories or shops, even under the worst conditions, rather than to go into people's houses."

The inquiry deserved a better answer than this, and it is not met, as several of our correspondents have tried to meet it, by scolding "the girls" for their preference and declaring them unworthy of sympathy.

Help toward a solution of the puzzling problem presented by the very general objection to domestic service may be found in recognition of the fact that housework, which usually means the doing of many and widely diverse tasks, demands an amount and kind of intelligence that is not required for the efficient performance of the single, simple task imposed on the worker in shop or factory. Of course there are other reasons, and they have been rehearsed a thousand times, but this one, if it be valid—as most will deny on first thought and admit on second or third—goes deeper than any of the rest. It is also kinder, which is not a fault.

One can safely predict that it will receive a warmer welcome from the "hired girls" than from their somewhat scornful sisters who do not "go into people's houses" to be in, but not of, the family.

THE COLLEGE STUDENT.

Is $700 Enough to Meet All Reasonable Needs?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter which I wrote and signed "College Student" was in response to the statement that no college student ought to spend more than $700 per year. The statement was made without reference to place or conditions, and the estimates which different colleges published were given in part for proof that that was a sufficient allowance. I simply tried to point out that there were hundreds of little things which were a necessary part of life that were not published in the college estimate of expenses for the year. No one tries to deny that the things I mentioned, as well as hundreds of others which go to make up college life, if they are tolerated, have to be paid for by the student body. I am not here to say that the college could not get on without these things, but I should like to know of the college that does get along without them.

Moreover, I still maintain that every college should have its extra-curriculum activities and that the students should participate in them in a moderate degree if their means will allow it. Regardless of criticism, I maintain also that the "bookworm" who "grinds" and "grinds" only, perforce, or by choice, is not the man who gets the best that college life has to offer.

It is true, no doubt, that a student can fare sumptuously on $700 per year at Hanover; it is true that a student can have all the diversions he may desire on $500 per year in some of the Western and Southern colleges if his tastes are not too extravagant, but that is not so in New York City. I may say, too, by the way, having had undergraduate work outside of New York City, that the difference in the cost is more than made up by the difference in the advantages to be had and the opportunities which the city has to offer.

COLLEGE STUDENT.

New York, Jan. 30, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am enrolled in one of the most expensive colleges, in one of the most expensive universities, in one of the most expensive cities of the country—the Pulitzer School of Journalism. I will have completed the entire year upon $500 in all probability, because for the first semester I have spent but $240.

I occupy the least costly room in one of the best dorms. I engaged it early last March, and was persistent in obtaining the one I wished. It does not lack for conveniences. Half of the past semester I took meals at a regular boarding house; during the latter half I was fortunate in securing a position with an orchestra, playing one hour a day for my board. Books and recitation paraphernalia have cost me as much as the average.

I have attended at least ten plays of high class, two grand operas, and various other paid entertainments. Not one "comp" ticket have I received, either. Christmas vacation I visited friends 250 miles away, dispensing with some cash during that period. Several articles of clothing have been purchased, among which was an evening dress suit. The university bursar demands full tuition. No scholarship for mine.

But there are those who will answer, "He earned part of his board." Granting that, I would still be getting through easily on $600 without the job—and this an expensive school. I hope that by thus taking myself as a homely illustration I will have thrown light upon some of the problems of college expenses to the interested and curious.

Civil War Anagrams.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If you would like some additions to the lists of anagrams which you have been publishing lately, I send some which appeared soon after the outbreak of our civil war, formed from the letters of "United States":

In te Deus stat.	God stands in thee.
Inde tute stas.	Hence thou standest safely.
Desiste, untat.	Desist, (or, as it was freely translated, "Hands off,") it (i. e., the Union, 1861,) totters.
Nudat te setis.	He strips thee of bristles.
Siste, nudat te.	Stop, he strips thee, (alluding to Floyd, then Secretary of the Treasury, who diverted considerable sums to the use of the South about the time that hostilities began.)
Et ista desunt.	They, (the Indian bonds) also are wanting.

ELIZA M. WILEY.

East Orange, N. J., Jan. 29, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with your recent anagram revival, I wonder if any of your readers know that the word "incomprehensible" is convertible into "problem in Chinese"?

Words with Few Vowels.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of your correspondents hopefully challenges us all to name an English word of seven consonants and one vowel, and another promptly gives the intended answer, "strength." But "twelfths" fills the bill just as well, and workers in several lines are familiar with "strengths" in the plural —eight consonants and one vowel.

To keep the ball rolling try this. It is, of course, understood that it is hard to say rapidly "She sells sea-shells" or "Gaze on the gay gray brigade" without a slip, but most of us imagine we can pronounce ordinary business words. Yet, in fact, how many of your readers can say "five-sixths" without either pausing over it or omitting a consonant sound that they really intended to include?

Goethals Line Distinguished.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the name of Goethals is under discussion, it may be of interest to note how ancient and how distinguished is the Flemish family from which those that bear the name are descended.

"La Noblesse de France aux croisades," by P. Roger, printed in Paris in 1845, says the house had its origin in the ninth century, from which the line is unbroken to the present time. Gerrem Goethals, Lord of Uine, was one of the leaders in the first crusade. Henri Goethals of Ghent entered the Church, where he was associated with St. Thomas Aquinas, and became "one of the greatest geniuses of the thirteenth century." And among the long list of Goethalses who were distinguished for their military prowess we find George Goethals, a Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, who was Chamberlain of the famous Duke of Burgundy, Philip the Bold.

The family motto plays upon the name Goethals. It is "In als goet."

The Servant Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My wife tells me that the demand for household servants is much greater than the supply, and that all of the unemployed women in these parts could find work in good homes at good wages if they wanted it. Of course, I do not know whether she is quite correct in this, but my own observations lead me to believe that housewives find it difficult to get servants and also to keep them.

Why is this? And why do the suffragists insist on solving the industrial problems of the future when here is a problem hundreds of years old and essentially feminine which might better demand their attention?

ARBITRATION.

An Instance of Its Usefulness and Economy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An attorney of good standing lately called on me to ask whether the Chamber of Commerce Arbitration Committee would be disposed to take a case involving a dispute between his law office and a client, who is President of a bank in this city. The lawyer's bill for services rendered was $5,000. The client claimed the service was not worth more than $375. The lawyer told me that the client was not disposed to leave the matter to arbitration, for he viewed the matter with increasing irritability and was determined to allow the matter to go to court if necessary. The lawyer and the client, I learned, had ceased to be on speaking terms, and negotiations therefore could be carried on only by my calling upon the client personally. This I did.

I found further that the attorney did not like to have the matter come into court. The client, too, knew that a number of his private matters would have to be aired and publicly exposed in a courtroom, and for that reason he would be pleased to see it kept out. I also discovered that the chief objection by the client to allow the matter to come to arbitration was that he felt he was no match—as he understood arbitration—for the lawyer in presentation of the matter, being layman against lawyer. It became evident that, if he could be assured of legal advice and representation at the hearing before the arbitrators, he would look upon arbitration more favorably. I, therefore, suggested that he be represented at the hearing by counsel, and that the attorney also be represented by counsel.

With this understanding an identical submission of the dispute was made and accepted—the committee deciding that it was a commercial transaction, and the dispute one that involved facts rather than points of law.

Foreseeing that the case might be dragged out beyond what we consider a reasonable time in our arbitration work, I determined that each side should call no more than two professional witnesses (lawyers) for the purpose of enabling us laymen judges to come to a proper determination of the worth of the legal services rendered. This agreement being made, it was decided that owing to the importance of the case, and also because it was apt to put our whole system to an unusual test, the entire committee of seven sit as arbitrators.

The hearing proceeded in the usual manner and ended in an award arrived at after a session of two days, taking in all ten hours.

Barring one incident, which I do not mind recounting, the manner of all participants during the hearing was courteous. The decorum observed by both sides was most gratifying under the circumstances. The one exception mentioned was when one of the lawyers started to abuse the other side in a manner which is not infrequent in courtrooms. He was quickly checked and informed that personalities were not tolerated at our hearings. He apologized and sat down. The lawyer on the other side arose to say that he moved the striking from the records of the objectionable remarks; but as we all had heard them, and knew what was meant, we could not erase them from our knowledge, but we told him if he wished to be particular about it that we would try to satisfy him by giving him the privilege of abusing the other side for the same length of time—about thirty seconds. A laugh followed and the incident was closed.

The award was satisfactory to both parties. Both sides wrote expressing their appreciation of the courtesy and dispatch, the tact and fairness exhibited at the hearing. I might add that since the case above described has become known most of the cases that we are getting have been steered to us by law offices who are, it seems, beginning to realize that we can save their clients time, trouble, and money, and without interference with their practice, help them to a more economical administration of their profession.

Bulkheads Without Doors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The loss of the Monroe is another terrible reminder of the necessity of a reform in collision bulkhead construction. At present, when the supreme test comes, many bulkhead doors do not work for one cause or another.

It seems to me that the various compartments of a ship should be made separate units by bulkheads without doors. This would inconvenience passengers and crew in going from place to place on the ship, as they would have to use the various stairways to the deck first, but when the pinch came the water could not possibly get beyond the affected unit, and the necessity for some one's thought of closing the doors or for the automatic device which may or may not have been disabled is done away with.

This plan seems feasible, though it is such a simple one that it may have been considered and rejected by shipbuilders for cause.

An Importer's Grievance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Have the people no rights which the United States Government is bound to respect?

I have just received an importation of two dozen whole goose livers truffled in tins, costing about $2.10 per tin. One of these tins was opened, presumably in the Custom House, and, of course, destroyed. In a previous importation of two dozen tins, one was missing.

These livers were put up by a Bordeaux firm of the highest standing, established in 1824. They were imported through a New York house of more than fifty years' standing. There was no possibility of any fraud in these importations.

Has the United States Government a moral right wantonly to destroy my property? The Customs officials assume such a right and the victim is absolutely without redress.

Recipe for Pumpkin Bread.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago I saw in the correspondence column an inquiry about "pumpkin bread." I was looking through an old cook book a few days since and came across a recipe for pumpkin bread, which I append, thinking the inquirer would like it:

Stew and strain some pumpkin; stiffen it with Indian meal; add salt and yeast. It makes a most excellent kind of bread.

The cook book was published in 1846 and was written by Miss Catherine Beecher.

Oh, give me not Forgetfulness
Nor dim my vision of the stormy Past;
Think not to soften Grief nor Loss,

This memory is all I have—
Oh, keep it bright, altho' the price be tears!

WILSON TO HEAR WOMEN.

Workers from Ten States Will Ask His Views on Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Working women from ten States will march to the White House to-morrow to urge President Wilson to express himself in favor of woman suffrage. Miss Alice Paul, head of the Congressional Union, the organization that organized the movement, arrived to-day from Boston and held a conference with Miss Lucy Burns and her other lieutenants.

A special train this afternoon brought delegations from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. A Virginia delegation, led by Mrs. H. I. Ikberger and Miss Mabel Greaser of Norfolk, arrived early in the morning. The Maryland delegation will arrive to-morrow.

The visiting delegations went to the Brighton Hotel, where a preliminary demonstration was held this afternoon, speeches being made by Representative William J. MacDonald of Michigan, Mrs. Charles Edward Russell, Miss Margaret Hinchey and Miss Rose Schneidermann of New York, and Miss Dorothy Miller and Mrs. F. H. Cothron of Brooklyn.

The suffrage workers will hold a meeting at the Public Library to-morrow morning, but at noon, headed by a brass band and carrying banners inscribed with phrases from "The New Freedom," President Wilson's book, they will march to the White House. The spokeswomen before the President are to be Miss Melinde Scott, Miss Rose Winslow and Misses Hinchey and Schneidermann.

The leaders of the demonstration hope to draw from the President a declaration of his attitude toward the suffrage movement. The speakers will urge the creation in the House of Representatives of a special committee on woman suffrage, and will criticise the action of the House Rules Committee in refusing to allow such a committee to be appointed.

In the New York delegation are many women who have been prominent in work for factory operatives. Miss Schneidermann is Vice President of the National Woman's Trades Union League. Miss Winslow is a former weaver, whose appeal at the recent convention here of the National Woman Suffrage Association caused a great stir.

In the Pennsylvania delegation are Reba Freden of the Cigarmakers' Union, Rebecca Stein of the Cloth Finishers' Union, and Miss H. Bresius of the Shirtwaist Workers.

FOR SOUTH AMERICA TRADE.

Fifty Illinois Manufacturers Sail Saturday on Long Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—To lay the foundation for a great extension of trade with Latin America fifty members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association will sail from New York next Saturday for a three months' trip to the principal South American countries. Their object is supported by Secretary Bryan and Secretary Redfield.

Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, a prominent manufacturer, who heads the party, has been asked to make a report on South American banking and credits for the benefit of the Department of Commerce. The new banking and currency act permits national banks to establish foreign branches. It is expected by the Administration that these institutions will follow the swiftly increasing export trade of the United States with South America, and that American exporters and importers will not be so completely dependent upon German and English banks. It has been estimated that English banks now derive $5,000,000 a year from the transaction of American business with Latin-American countries.

The purpose of the journey is not to sell goods, but to obtain a better understanding of South America, thus paving the way for future business, not only in sales to Brazil, Argentine, Chile, Peru, and other countries, but also to ascertain what raw materials may be advantageously purchased in those markets.

The party will sail on the Vauban. The first stop will be for a single day at the Barbados. Bahia, Brazil, will be the next port of call. Rio Janeiro will be reached on Feb. 24. Montevideo and Buenos Aires will next be visited, and those who desire to return to New York on the Vauban will leave Buenos Aires on March 19. Some members of the party will cross the South American continent to Chile, and return to Buenos Aires. Others will go north on the west coast, touching at ports of Chile and Peru and visiting the Panama Canal, and returning to New York by way of the Caribbean.

TO RECALL CASSIDY TO-DAY.

Ex-Boss Has Dinner Outside Jail—Long Conference with Lawyers.

The trial of Joseph Cassidy, ex-boss of Queens County, and Louis T. Walter, Jr., for conspiracy in procuring for William Willett, Jr., a nomination for the Supreme Court in 1911, will be resumed to-day before Supreme Court Justice Jaycox in Brooklyn. Cassidy, whose testimony had not been completed when court adjourned on Saturday, will be recalled to the witness stand and will be subjected to some further grilling by District Attorney Cropsey. The case should go to the jury to-night.

The one-time Democratic leader of Queens and Walter did not have to spend all of yesterday behind bars in the Raymond Street Jail. They had dinner outside the prison, and late in the afternoon, by permission of Justice Jaycox, conferred with their counsel, Robert H. Elder and Robert M. Moore, in the Law Library in the County Court House. The conference lasted about two hours. Speaking of it last evening, Mr. Elder would say only that the evidence in the case had been gone over and the summing up in the trial discussed. After the talk with their counsel, Cassidy and Walter returned to the jail in charge of two Deputy Sheriffs.

The day was also made as pleasant as possible for the jurors. By direction of Justice Jaycox, those who wished to attend church were permitted to do so, under the watchful eyes of court attendants, and in the afternoon all were taken for an automobile ride.

GOLDWATER BEGINS TO-DAY.

Will Take Over the Office of Commissioner of Health.

Dr. Sigismund S. Goldwater enters upon the duties of his new position as Commissioner of Health to-day. The Directors of Mount Sinai Hospital, where he has been Superintendent, have granted him an indefinite leave of absence, and have given him the privilege of retaining his home on the hospital premises.

Dr. Goldwater is the editor of The Medical Journal and an architect, having drafted the plans for the newly erected laboratory of Bellevue Hospital and many other similar institutions. He has been particularly successful as a business man and an organizer.

SWEAR IN WILLIAMS TO-DAY.

New Currency Controller Takes Office—Hearings at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 1.—William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, announced here to-day that John Skelton Williams, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of fiscal affairs, would take office as Controller of the Currency to-morrow, and that Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary, would then take Mr. Williams's position. Mr. Hamlin will be Acting Secretary in the absence of Secretary McAdoo.

Mr. McAdoo said that on his return to Washington a new Assistant Secretary in charge of customs would be appointed. He declined to indicate his choice for this position.

Secretaries McAdoo and Houston arrived here to-day from Portland, where they have been holding hearings relative to the location of regional banks under the new currency law. They will begin hearings here to-morrow.

They were entertained to-night by the Press Club of San Francisco.

GIVES $20,000 TO AID HEBREW INSTITUTE

Donation from Adolph Lewisohn Helps Endowment Required to Obtain Loeb Memorial.

MORE MONEY IS NEEDED

Tdae School Faces an Indebtedness of $35,000, Statement by President Buttenweiser Shows.

President Buttenweiser announced at the annual meeting of the Hebrew Technical Institute at 34 Stuyvesant Street, yesterday, that Adolph Lewisohn had agreed to give $20,000 as an additional endowment for the institution. The gift was of importance to the institute, President Buttenweiser explained, because it would aid in obtaining $120,000 offered toward the cost of a new building by the family of the late Dr. Morris Loeb, a former President of the institute. Mr. Buttenweiser in his report for the year said:

"The family of Dr. Loeb, wishing to erect a suitable memorial to the loved one decided that, as our school was so near and dear to him and he so very near and dear to us and to it, a new building on the vacant corner plot, which the school owns, would be a most fitting expression, not only of their love and veneration for their dear one, but also of his active interest in this institute during his life time. Accordingly they promised us $120,000, which, together with the Bloomingdale Fund created by the widow of Joseph B. Bloomingdale in his memory, will cover the cost of the new structure.

"The building is to be used not for our school alone but also as a social centre for our coreligionists of this section of the city. The building will be so planned that it can be utilized to its fullest capacity from early morn till late at night. Negotiations are well advanced by which sister institutions will conduct classes for the training of Sabbath school teachers, for Hebrew Free School classes and for social settlement work of all kinds.

"The only condition the generous donors have made is the very wise and proper one that we the Directors of the Hebrew Technical Institute, shall, within sixty days, increase its annual income sufficiently to cover our deficit and to pay for its share of the running expenses of the new building. We, of the Technical Institute and the entire Jewish community owe an inexpressible debt of gratitude to those donors for their munificent and useful gift. Half of the time has about elapsed, and we have succeeded in raising about half of the added income required."

In speaking of the gifts which have been made to meet this condition, Mr. Buttenweiser said:

"I shall not give a complete list of those who so kindly responded to our call, but I cannot refrain from naming the two most liberal. Our good friend, Mr. Adolph Lewisohn, whose benefactions place him among the foremost of our philanthropists, has promised us $20,000 as an endowment fund. This donation will increase our annual income by almost a thousand dollars. This subscription is in addition to a promise Mr. Lewisohn made during the past year to donate for five years $1,000 a year toward our running expenses. Mr. Lewisohn has indeed been most generous to this institute, and we thank him more than lies in our power to express. We recently amended our by-laws so that those paying $100 or more shall be donors. Judge Lehman, our esteemed Vice President, has accordingly consented to increase his annual dues as donor from $100 to $1,000. Four other donors promptly increased their contribution from $100 to $250.

"Only thirty days remain to meet the condition which will secure to us and to this community this much coveted and needed prize. I sincerely hope that the philanthropically inclined will respond quickly and liberally, realizing that every dollar they now give is worth ten times that amount given at any other time."

In speaking of the finances of the institution, he said:

"Again I must call attention to the unsatisfactory condition of our finances. The report of our Treasurer and of our Membership Committee give no cause for congratulation. In spite of exercising every economy we are again compelled to face a deficit of more than $5,000, which, added to the deficit of previous years, brings a total indebtedness of $35,000 to our permanent fund."

A brief statement of the finances showed that the receipts were $48,505 and the expenditures $53,817. The membership was increased by ninety-nine in the year, but subscriptions fell off about $400. Bequests of $1,000 or more were received from the estates of these persons: Morris Loeb, $25,000; Benjamin Guggenheim, $10,000; Bertha Goldman, $3,000; Nathan Herrmann, $2,500; Charles Schoolhouse, $1,000. There were other smaller bequests amounting to about $3,000. Dr. Loeb left also $25,000 to the Teachers' Retirement Fund. Taking up the work done in the school, President Buttenweiser's report said:

"We have 1,121 living graduates, from 1,057 of whom we have recently heard. Their reports show that 76 per cent. are engaged in mechanical pursuits, thus translating into practical work the theoretical knowledge they acquired while under our care. A brief reference to their earnings may not prove uninteresting. The graduates of last year receive an average of $8 a week; those five years out of school receive $21; those ten years out $31; those fifteen years out receive $40; those twenty years out receive $50, and the average earnings of some classes, notably the seventeen graduates of 1889 and the nineteen of 1886 receive an average weekly salary of $60. I question whether any institution of learning—elementary, high, technical, or collegiate—can equal this record. Remember, if you will, that our boys are the sons of the poor, sons of a race that through many centuries of oppression and repression was denied the opportunity of mechanical pursuits, and hence was supposed to be, and probably was, unsuited to the higher forms of skilled manual labor.

"The Evening School continues to be a feature of our work, producing results which we think fully justify the expenditure therefor. On three evenings in the week, from Sept. 15 till May 1, there was an average attendance of 48 young men who, although working in shops the entire day, are willing and anxious to spend their evenings in acquiring a training which will make them better and more intelligent workmen. The total cost of the evening school was $3,685, of which, as in previous years, $1,450 were contributed."

There are now 291 pupils at the school, 112 in the junior class, 94 in the middle class, and 85 in the senior class. Among the trades in which instruction is given are tool making, instrument making, pattern making, mechanical drawing, architectural drawing, wood carving, and electrical construction work. A special feature of the work has been inspection trips to plants throughout the city.

Mr. Buttenweiser was re-elected President yesterday. The other officers chosen were: First Vice President, Judge Irving Lehman; Second Vice President, Eugene E. Spiegelberg; Treasurer, Mortimer L. Schiff; Secretary, Edward I. Shire; Principal, Dr. Edgar S. Barney.

RURAL ROUTE IN THE CITY.

Douglaston and Little Neck to be Served by It.

New York City has to-day a real rural free delivery route such as is maintained in country districts throughout the United States. This route was established by A. J. Kennedy, Postmaster of Flushing, to deliver mail to the residents of the Little Neck and Douglaston sections. The fourth-class Post Offices in both these villages were abolished yesterday, and in the future the two villages will be under the jurisdiction of the Flushing Postmaster.

A branch office has been established at the Douglaston railroad station, and a place for the sale of stamps has been opened at Little Neck. Two carriers, one mounted, have been assigned to cover the two villages. Postmaster Kennedy promises two deliveries a day.

LEAVES A FORTUNE FOR DESERTED WIFE

Women Friends of J. H. Clarey Pleaded in Vain with Him to Will It to Them.

ACCEPTED AS A BACHELOR

But He Had Left a Wife and Family in Vermont in 1892 When He Was Poor.

James H. Clarey, principal owner of the chain of bakeries run by James H. Clarey, Incorporated, died of pneumonia at the age of 55 years at St. Vincent's Hospital on Jan. 25. During the twenty years in which he had been engaged in the bakery business in this city he had acquired a comfortable fortune. To his friends and business associates here he had represented that he was a bachelor and had no family connections.

After his death, however, a search of his effects in his apartment at 230 West Ninety-ninth Street, which he leased from Mrs. Nellie Staring, revealed evidence that at one time at least Clarey had had a wife and children. Yesterday Thomas P. de Graffenried, of 140 Nassau Street, a lawyer for the estate, went to Burlington, Vt., with letters of Clarey and pictures believed to be of his children, taken years ago.

Last night dispatches were received from Burlington that his family had been found. His wife, whom he had deserted, it is said, shortly before the World's Fair at Chicago in 1892, was found to be a restaurant waitress in Burlington. In 1892 the couple were in poor circumstances, and had four children. One of them has since died. The eldest is now a man 31 years old living in Boston.

Mrs. Clarey said that she received no communication of any kind from Clarey from the time he left Burlington in 1892, and had no knowledge of his after life until Mr. de Graffenried came from New York in search of her.

The first clue among the effects of Clarey that indicated that he might have a family somewhere was discovered in his savings bank books. There were seven, and each showed deposits of $3,000, the limit allowed by savings banks. Clarey had these seven accounts under different names, and four were in the names of the children he had deserted at Burlington. Further search among his papers produced other evidence of a family. No will was found.

When Mrs. Staring, Clarey's landlady, was notified last night that Clarey's family had been found, she said:

"I am glad that the family has been found and I do not think they will have any difficulty in proving that they are entitled to the estate. It is probable, though, that they have had a narrow escape from legal trouble.

"When Mr. Clarey was on his deathbed at St. Vincent's Hospital, two sisters, one a married woman and one single, to whom he paid a good deal of attention, pleaded with him to make a will leaving his property to them. He refused to do this, although I do not believe that even when he was dying he let it be known that he had a family. I know about the efforts of the two women to persuade him to make a will because they told me about it themselves. They had been in his company a great deal for several months before his death.

"Mr. Clarey rented rooms from me for the last six years. He had always called himself a bachelor, and it was a great surprise to find evidences that he had had a family at one time. He came to New York eighteen or twenty years ago, started a bakery, began to make money, opened one bakery after another until he owned a large business, and had acquired a large fortune."

THREE LARGE CONCERTS.

Crowds at the Hippodrome, the Metropolitan and the Century.

There was opportunity for something like a census of the concert-goers of the city last night. At the Hippodrome the Tetrazzini-Ruffo concert brought out about 5,000 persons to pack the auditorium and the stage, and at the Metropolitan Opera House the Sunday night capacity of 4,000 was taxed. This is without taking into account the crowd at the Century Opera House concert, or, in another direction, the fair-sized audience that cared enough about chamber music to go to the concert of Isabel Hauser, and the Saslavky Quartet at the Belasco Theatre.

The familiar scene was re-enacted at the Hippodrome by the audience which is so much part of a concert by Luisa Tetrazzini or Titta Ruffo. Mme. Tetrazzini sang the aria "Ritorno Vincitor," from "Aïda"; Ophelia's "mad scene" from "Hamlet," and the Polacca from "Mignon," with several encores. Mr. Ruffo's set numbers were an aria from "Wilhelm Tell," the prologue from "I Pagliacci," and an aria from "Dinorah." At the end they sang together the duet from "The Barber of Seville." Nahan Franko and his orchestra played several numbers, and Yves Nat, the accompanist, was successful with a solo number. That there was much enthusiasm goes without saying.

At the Metropolitan Opera House it was a Puccini night, with the programme made from the works of that composer. The soloists were Anna Case, Bella Alten, Bernice de Pasquali, Pasquale Amato, Paul Althouse, and Italo Cristalli. The orchestra was under the direction of Richard Hageman. The operas presented were "Le Villi," "Edgar," "Manon Lescaut," "La Boheme," "Tosca," and "Madama Butterfly," which gave a historical perspective on the composer up to but not including "The Girl of the Golden West," his latest.

At the Century Opera House Orville Harrold made his first Sunday night appearance at the regular concert. He sang Fay Foster's "Nocturne" and Charles Gilbert Spross's "To-day and Yesterday," adding an Irish song as an encore. Others who sang solo numbers were Louis Kreidler, Alfred Kaufman, Beatrice La Palme, Thomas Chalmers, and Morgan Kingston. Emil Rosset played Dvorak's "Humoresque" as a violin solo. An orchestral novelty was a set of dances from classic to present days, illustrating the history of the dance. The concert closed with the sextet from "Lucia," sung by the Misses Carson and Latham and Messrs. Bardsley, Chalmers, Kaufman, and Davis.

SAYRES LEAVE WASHINGTON

President's Daughter and Her Husband Go to Williamstown, Mass.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—President Wilson went to two Presbyterian churches to-day. In the morning he attended regular service in the Central Presbyterian Church, his usual place of worship, and in the afternoon he went to the annual exercises of the Society of Colonial Wars, at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Just before going to the latter service, the President, with Misses Eleanor and Margaret Wilson, went to the station with Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, who left here for Williamstown, Mass. Mr. Sayre is to be assistant to President Garfield of Williams College.

When Mr. and Mrs. Sayre left the White House to-day they took none of their valuable wedding gifts with them. All the gold and silver presents will remain at the White House for the present, as the young couple will only temporarily occupy the house to which they are moving.

MIRA EDGERLY WEDS.

She Becomes the Bride of Frederick Burt at Quiet Wedding.

The marriage of Frederick Burt of New York and Miss Mira Edgerly took place at 1 o'clock yesterday at the home of Herbert L. Griggs, 1 East Eighty-sixth Street, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Slicer of All Souls' Church. Neither Mr. Burt nor his bride had any attendants. Miss Edgerly, who wore a blue Chinese robe, beautifully embroidered, was given in marriage by Mr. Griggs. Less than a dozen relatives were present, and there was no reception. Shortly after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Burt left for Washington. On their return here they will sail for France. Later they will go to Scotland, and will eturn to New York in the Autumn to live.

Mrs. Burt returned a short time since from Ottawa. While there she painted an ivory miniature of the Princess Patricia. She has spent some years abroad studying and painting. When in New York she lived at the National Arts Club in Gramercy Park. Mr. Burt is a writer, sculptor, and painter.

Miss McCreery to Wed.

Miss Mary McCreery, who inherited a large fortune from her father, Samuel McCreery, is to be married on Wednesday to William Hill Bleecker, a real estate dealer of 86 Sanford Avenue, Flushing. Mr. Bleecker and Miss McCreery procured their license on Saturday. Miss McCreery has been active in charitable work in Flushing for some years, and is Secretary of the United Workers. Mr. Bleecker, who is a widower, is connected with the Flushing Hospital Aid Association.

Miss Elizabeth Spear to Wed.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Spear, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Hudson Spear, to F. Montague A. Stafford of Toronto, Canada. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. Jermain Slocum, Jr., Fox Lane, Flushing, on Feb. 16. Mr. Strafford was graduated from Princeton in 1909.

Obrechts' Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Obrecht will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary to-day at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Francois Cluzelle at Hastings-on-Hudson. Mr. Obrecht was born Nov. 27, 1839, and Mrs. Obrecht on Sept. 16, 1841. They are Alsatians, and came to this country in 1891.

NEWS OF NEWPORT.

Tobin-Harper Wedding To-day—Plans for Polo Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 1.—The wedding of Miss Florence Tobin of Denver and William Harper, Jr., of New York will take place to-morrow evening at the cottage of the bride's aunt, Mrs. James J. Brown. Only relatives will be present. A dinner at the Muenchinger-King will follow, with Mrs. Brown as hostess. Among the guests here are Mrs. Mortimer Carroll of Chicago, sister of the bride, and her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George Benzinger of New York.

The bride will wear rose point baby Irish lace, trimmed with maribou in princess effect, and a tulle veil, held with a tiara of pearls and diamonds, the latter a part of the Elizabethan collection Mrs. Brown purchased in Europe two years ago, and a gift to the bride.

In polo circles it is understood that the American and English international teams will have their early practice this Spring and play some preliminary matches on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould at Georgian Court, Lakewood. Harry Payne Whitney is improving his stables here, where he will keep some of his ponies during the polo season at Newport and Narragansett Pier. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney will return from Europe in April.

Officers of the Annapolis Naval Academy here are having an extension of the Naval War College's lectures. The first was given last week by the President of the college, Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight. To-morrow evening Lieut. Commander William S. Pye will give the second lecture.

The property on Price's Neck which Commodore Arthur Curtiss James recently purchased, and which District Attorney and Mrs. Charles H. Whitman will occupy next Summer, will be in the contractor's hands for improvement to-morrow.

Miss Borland of New York is visiting in the cottage colony.

Miss Ogden Jones of New York is visiting her aunt, Miss C. Ogden Jones.

Mr. Frederick Busk will sail for Europe on Wednesday.

GEN. JAMES WILSON DEAD IN 82D YEAR

Noted Warrior and Writer Passes Away in St. Luke's Hospital—Served on Grant's Staff.

KNIGHTED BY QUEEN REGENT

Married Friend's Widow When 75—Knew a Host of Famous Men and Women — His Biographies.

Gen. James Grant Wilson, warrior, writer, and a worker in the cause of universal peace, died at 7 o'clock yesterday morning in St. Luke's Hospital, after a month's illness. He was 81 years old. Little hope had been entertained for his recovery because of his advanced age.

Gen. Wilson had been in the public eye for more than half a century. He knew personally Lincoln and other great men of his time, including Thackeray, Gladstone, King Edward, William Cullen Bryant, Washington Irving, Charles Dickens, Grant, Sherman, Farragut, and Fitz-Greene Halleck. His home, 157 West Seventy-ninth Street, is a museum of objects priceless because of their association, and his mind was a storehouse of anecdotes of the famous men and women who had called him friend.

Gen. Wilson was born in Edinburgh, April 28, 1832, son of William Wilson, a Scotch poet and publisher. His parents moved to Poughkeepsie while young Wilson was a child. He received his education in College Hill, Poughkeepsie, and under private tutors. His education completed, he traveled for a time in Europe. He returned in 1857 and went to Chicago and established The Chicago Record, a literary journal. It was discontinued in 1864.

In 1857 Gen. Wilson was commissioned a Major in the Fifteenth Illinois Cavalry, and he served on Gen. Grant's staff in the Vicksburg and other campaigns until July, 1865, when he resigned with the rank of Brigadier General.

Knighted by Queen Regent of Spain

His resignation accepted, the General returned to New York City and engaged in literary pursuits. He was prominently identified with many movements that had for their object civil betterment. He was Chairman of the Maine Monument Committee, and his last appearance in public was at the unveiling of the Maine Monument. He was Vice President of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee. For his activities in erecting a statue to Columbus in Central Park he was knighted by the Queen Regent of Spain.

Last year he planted an English oak in the spot on the Mall, in Central Park, where the Prince of Wales planted an oak in October, 1866. The Prince of Wales's oak died three years ago. It was on the steps of his home, 15 East Seventy-fourth Street, that Bryant fell when stricken with his last illness.

"The first distinguished man I ever met," the General related the story to a friend, "was Henry Clay. When I was 9 years old he came to Poughkeepsie, where my family lived, and on the morning of his arrival I saw a large crowd going into town. I followed them with a small boy's curiosity.

"When I came to the hotel I saw a number of men, my father among them, entering, and I entered, too. I saw that they were walking in single file, and so I got into line.

"When I reached the drawing room I saw the distinguished Kentuckian standing beside Senator Talmadge, who was presenting the people to him as they passed. I was so small that Mr. Talmade did not notice me. Mr. Clay saw me, and put out his hand, which I enthusiastically took.

"'Who are you, my little man?' he asked.

"'James Grant Wilson,' I said, 'and I'm a Henry Clay Whig.'

"Mr. Clay burst out laughing at this."

Gen. Wilson's Treasures.

Gen. Wilson wore a pair of gold sleeve links that George Washington presented to Benedict Arnold shortly before the battle of Saratoga. Another of his valued possessions was a ring which contains a lock of Washington's hair, a wisp from the head of Alexander Hamilton, one of Lincoln's locks and side by side in the ring a lock of Napoleon's hair and another of Wellington's.

The General's first wife was Miss Jane Emily Searle Cogswell, a descendant of Mme. Bayard, sister of Governor Petrus Stuyvesant, whom he married in 1869. She died in 1904. The General was married a second time, in 1907, to Mrs. Mary H. Nicholson, widow of Rear Admiral Nicholson, who served with Farragut at New Orleans and was an intimate friend of the General. The Admiral was a member of a famous naval family, his grandfather being Commodore Samuel Nicholson, a Lieutenant under Paul Jones. Mrs. Wilson survives the General.

The General had one daughter, child of his first wife, Mrs. Frank Sylvester Henry, from whom he was long estranged. In 1912 he sued her, alleging that an income of $2,000 a year, interest of a trust fund left him by his first wife, was no longer paid to him.

These are some of the positions he held: President of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, American Authors' Guild, the American Ethnological Society, and the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; member of the Board of Visitors of the United States Naval Academy and the United States Military Academy; editor of Appletons' Cyclopedia of American Biography.

Some of his works are "Great Commanders Series," "Memorial History of the City of New York," "The Poets and Poetry of Scotland," "Memoirs of an American Lady" "Sketches of Illinois Officers," "Mr. Secretary Pepys and His Diary," "Life of Fitz-Greene Halleck," "Sketches of Illustrious Soldiers," "Bryant and His Friends," "The World's Largest Libraries," "Love in Letters," "Life of Gen. Grant," "The Presidents of the United States," and "Thackeray in the United States."

He had also written many addresses on Lincoln, Grant, Bishop Provoost, Col. John Bayard, Commodore Hull, and Admiral Farragut.

Reimers Heard in New Songs.

The third private subscription concert of the Society of the Friends of Music was given yesterday afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton. Florent Schmitt's piano quintet was played by Edouard Dethier, and Doval Sanders, violin; Samuel Lifschey, viola; Paul Kefer, 'cello, and Gaston Dethier, piano. Then came three groups of songs, sung by Paul Reimers, with Mr. Flint at the piano, heard for the first time in this country. They were "Nocturne," "Je ne chercherai pas," and "Le grande jardin d'azur," by Blair Fairchild; "Le Passant," "L'ane blanc," and "La fille du roi Chine," by Georges Hue, and "Lament," "Song of the Nile," "Lethe," "Priere," "Moonbeams," and "Song of Youth," by Courtlandt Palmer.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ben Greet was the guest of honor of the Salmagundi Club last night.

Roszika Dolly, who is now appearing at the Winter Garden, will be known as Roszika only after 5:30 P. M., Thursday, Feb. 12.

William Faversham and members of his company arrived in New York last evening after a short preliminary tour through Canada in "Othello." Mr. Faversham will present his Shakespearean production at the Lyric Theatre next Monday evening. Included in the company are Cecilia Loftus, Julie Opp, Constance Collier and R. D. MacLean.

Arrangements have been made for a revival of "The Girl from Kay's," with Sam Bernard playing the stellar role.

MUSIC NOTES.

A concert was given at the University Settlement Hall last night by Miss Zoe Cheshire, harpist; Mrs. Edna Clemens, soprano; Miss Charlotte Moloney, violinist; Miss Mera Schkolnick, 'cellist, and J. Philip Dunn, pianist. Max Wellerson also assisted at the piano.

Alan MacWhirter will give a recital of traditional folksongs of Great Britain and Ireland at the MacDowell Club on the afternoon of Feb. 10.

PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

A Programme of Beethoven and Wagner—Mme. Culp, Soloist.

The Philharmonic Society's Sunday afternoon concert was devoted to the performance of music by Beethoven and Wagner, which suggested compliance with the provisions of Mr. Pulitzer's princely bequest to the society. It was, of course, a willing compliance, and there was no need of a bequest to induce the Philharmonic Society to put the works of both those composers on its programme, where they have so long occupied prominent places, and have so long delighted its audiences.

The Beethoven numbers were the overture to "Fidelio" and the Eighth Symphony for orchestra, and the song "Adelaide," and "Frendvoll und Leidvoll," and "Die Trommel gerühret," from "Egmont," sung by Mme. Julia Culp. Of Wagner there were the Prelude and final scene from "Parsifal," the death music of Siegfried from "Götterdämmerung," and the overture to "Tannhäuser."

The playing of the orchestra was highly praiseworthy, and the performance of the symphony showed careful study and elaboration, a mastery of most of the externals and some of the deeper significances of the music. Mme. Culp's singing had the beautiful qualities that have so often been admired in it. It was at times, however, so free in tempo and in treatment of the rhythm that Mr. Stransky found some difficulty, very naturally, in following her closely and completely with the orchestral accompaniment. The audience was heartily enthusiastic.

DVORAK'S MUSIC PLAYED.

Isabel Hauser and Saslavsky Quartet in a Concert of His Works.

The first of two concerts by Miss Isabel Hauser and the Saslavsky String Quartet was given last evening in the Belasco Theatre. The Saslavsky Quartet is composed of Alexander Saslavsky and Nathaniel Finkelstein, violins; Jacob Altschuler, viola, and Jacques Renard, violoncello; Mr. Saslavsky being the concertmaster and Mr. Renard the first violoncellist of the New York Symphony Orchestra. They are excellent players, and have before now attested their quality. The programme last evening was made up entirely of the music of Dvorak: it included the "American Quartet" in F, that Dr. Dvorak wrote in Spillville, Iowa, while he was at the head of the National Conservatory of Music in New York; music that, with the "New World" symphony and the string quintet in E flat, also composed in this country, embodies his conception of what might be done with elements of negro music as material for American art.

Miss Hauser and Mr. Saslavsky then played Dvorak's sonatina, Opus 100, for piano and violin, and she joined the quartet in a performance of his quintet for piano and strings, Opus 34. The playing of the quartet was marked by plenty of vigor and animation.

BIX SIX BAND WILL PLAY.

Union's Musicians Make Plans for Ball and Entertainment.

The Big Six Band of the Typographical Union will give a concert and ball at the Murray Hill Lyceum to-morrow night. William Fullerton, a member of the Typographical Union, as are all the musicians in the band, will give a Scottish act which contains original songs and stories. Fullerton recently returned from England and Scotland, where he appeared in the music halls with success. George H. Hanford is the leader of the band.

Among the other entertainers will be Miss Rose Fisher, Leon H. Rouse, Great Dail, the Man of Mystery; Miss Grace Francis, and Miss Pearl Palmer, who apeared as Kitty in "Little Boy Blue."

SOCIETY AT PALM BEACH.

Judge Gary Among Arrivals—Golf Tournament Begins To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 1.—Society spent a quiet Sunday here.

The chief feature of the day was the opening of the Poinciana Garden grill in the evening.

Among those who gave dinners were Judge and Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, who arrived from New York to-day in their private car, and are at the Breakers, where they will remain for several weeks. Judge Gary will spend much of his time fishing.

Mrs. Ward Ames gave a dinner in the grill for Mr. and Mrs. David D. Tenney and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Beckwith of Minneapolis.

E. Clarence Jones, who reached here from New York last night for his annual visit, entertained several friends at dinner, as did Harry Erwin Hoy, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Brinkerhoff, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Conners.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich gave a dinner of nine covers at the Beach Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Cragin were at home at Reve d'Ete this afternoon.

A large number of the social colony spent the afternoon in the water. Mr. and Mrs. John C. King took a party of friends aboard their yacht, Skip-along, to the Sunrise Inn at Port Sewall, for luncheon, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Schoonmaker, Mrs. A. Sydney Carpenter, and Miss Grace Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lee Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Kent Bolton, and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Sterry spent the day fishing at the inlet, catching several hundred pounds of red snapper. Harlan Scott of Wilmington was similarly successful.

Mr. and Mrs. St. John Wood, who reached here yesterday from New York, made a trip to Hobe Sound with several guests in their boat Pinau.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, with their families, also took a lake trip.

The houseboat Naxos, with her owner, T. P. Ordway, arrived to-day, and the Saranac, belonging to Samuel Loomis of New York, cast anchor in Lake Worth.

The golf tournament begins to-morrow with an entry list of seventy-five well-known players. Walter J. Travis is the favorite for first honors.

BIG CROWD AT TUXEDO.

Skating and Racquet Features of the Day—Heckshер Wins Match.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, Feb. 1.—Tuxedo is still very lively notwithstanding the lateness of the season. A large number came out last night for the weekly dance of the Tuxedo Club, and there were numerous dinners. After the rain yesterday the weather turned cold, and there was good skating to-day.

The first-class handicap racquet final match was played on the court of the Tuxedo Tennis Club to-day between C. C. Pell and G. Maurice Heckscher. Mr. Heckscher won three sets to one with a score of 8—15, 15—10, 15—7, and 15—4. Next week the national matches for the gold racquet will be played.

Among those who gave luncheons at the Tuxedo Club to-day were Mrs. J. Lee Tailer, who entertained for her daughter, Miss Marie Tailer.

Madison Grant entertained Miss Mitchel, Miss Turnbull, and Nicholas Tilney.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Weekes chaperoned Miss M. Emery and Miss F. B. Sturgis over the week-end at the Tuxedo Club.

Others who had luncheons to-day were George Isham Scott, Mr. and Mrs. G. Maurice Heckscher and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Auchincloss.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Morris spent Sunday at the club.

Other arrivals were Floyd Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, Cecile St. George, Edward Robinson, J. C. Fargo, Jr., Miss Fargo, H. C. Drayton, A. Eugene Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Foster Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Weekes, Francis Ormond French, Frederick F. Freylinghuysen, and Mrs. G. L. Tailer.

Tea for the Davidsons.

Sir Charles and Lady Davidson were entertained at a tea yesterday by Mrs. William Allen of 51 East Sixty-fifth Street. They came down from Montreal in their private car several days ago, and Sir Charles was the guest of the New York Bar Association during his stay here. They returned last night to Canada.

English Leader Plans to Slip Back to England, Says Mrs. Dorr.

Mrs. Rheta Child Dorr, the American militant suffragist, who has been working for the cause in England with Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Carmania, and will stay about six weeks in this country. She came over with Mrs. Pankhurst last October, and went to Ellis Island with her, and was with the English leader when she was arrested in December on arrival at Plymouth on the Majestic.

"Militancy is growing in this country," said Mrs. Dorr. "We are going out next season to defeat the Democratic majority of seven that President Wilson has now in the Senate. If we can oust men like Martine of New Jersey and elect Progressives in their places it will make the Government sit up and take notice."

Mrs. Dorr said she saw Cristobel Pankhurst in Paris.

"She has learned to dress in France, and has developed into a very beautiful woman," she said. "Society women in England are becoming militant in the cause of suffrage. They will not go out and smash windows, but they are going to bother the King, and are arranging for a deputation to go to Windsor Castle to see him.

"King George makes a mistake in not seeing the leaders of the suffragists as President Wilson did. He might at least tell them that under the Constitution of England he can do nothing for them. I was in the box at the opera at Covent Garden, London, when the suffragettes, after barricading themselves, shouted to the King through a megaphone that at that moment a woman was being done to death in an English prison. While suffragette pamphlets flooded the orchestra stalls the audience laughed at the frantic efforts of the police to break open the door of the box. The King and Queen sat like statues in the royal box.

"I saw Mrs. Pankhurst after she was released from Holloway Jail, where she had been doing a four days' hunger, thirst, and sleep strike. She looked very bad, and we were afraid that she would not rally. When I saw her on the Continent, however, just before sailing, she had recovered her health and spirits. She is a most wonderful woman.

"When Parliament opens Mrs. Pankhurst will go back to England and be present at a mammoth meeting. I know how she plans to get back, and I believe that she will elude the police as easily as she did when she left for the Continent."

Mrs. Dorr said that she would go to Washington to-day.

Baroness Hélène de Forster, a young American woman married to a Hungarian nobleman of Budapest, arrived on the same steamer. She is strongly anti-suffrage. She is going to visit her mother, Mrs. Sydney A. Sage of Wyckoff, N. J., who was at the pier to meet her.

6,500 ACTORS IN DRAMA.

Percy Mackaye to Help Produce Historical Pageant for St. Louis.

Percy Mackaye, Joseph Lindon Smith, who is associated with Mr. Mackaye not only as a producer but also as an actor in the "Bird Masque"; Frederick S. Converse, who collaborated with Mr. Mackaye in the writing of two operas, and Dr. Thomas Wood Stevens, head of the dramatic school at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, are to produce for the City of St. Louis the largest drama yet staged in America.

The St. Louis drama will have in its cast a total of 6,500 actors. The piece will be entitled "The Pageant and the Masque of Saint Louis." It will be given the last week in May in a natural amphitheatre in Forest Park to celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of St. Louis. To carry out the details of the drama, the city is now engaged in raising by popular subscription a fund of $100,000. The cost of the stage alone, upon which work has been begun, is estimated at $20,000.

EX-SENATOR CULLOM BURIED

His Body Rests Between the Graves of His Two Wives.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 1.—The late Shelby M. Cullom, ex-United States Senator from Illinois, was buried at dusk to-day in the family lot at Oakridge Cemetery. His body rests between the graves of his two wives, Hannah and Julia Fisher, who were sisters. In the same plot are the resting places of their five children.

Funeral services were held in the hall of Representatives in the State House, where the memorial sermon was preached by the Rev. Duncan C. MacLeod, and eulogies were delivered by Gov. Dunne, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, and Clinton L. Conkling. The congregation included all of the Governors of Illinois now living who followed Mr. Cullom into the gubernatorial chair.

The coffin, in a great mass of flowers, rested under the rostrum and between paintings of Lincoln and Douglas which hung on either side of the hall. The 2,200 seats were quickly filled and hundreds were turned away.

Part of the road to the cemetery followed by the funeral procession was that over which the body of Abraham Lincoln, Cullom's close friend and preceptor, was borne nearly half a century ago.

EDWARD WASSERMANN DIES.

Well-Known Broker Ill for Three Months—In 56th Year.

Edward Wassermann, a well-known broker, and member of the firm of Wassermann Brothers, 42 Broadway, died early yesterday morning at his home, 33 West Fifty-sixth Street. He had been ill for three months, and had undergone two operations. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Wassermann was born in San Francisco, the son of August and Regina Wassermann. He was graduated from Heidelberg in 1830, and soon afterward married Miss Emma Seligman, daughter of Jesse Seligman, one of the founders of the banking house of J. & W. Seligman & Co. Mr. Wassermann and his brother Jesse in 1885 established the present firm of Wassermann Brothers. He is survived by two sons—Jesse A and Edward Wassermann, Jr.,—and one daughter, Miss Renee H. Wassermann. Mrs. Wassermann died in 1908.

What the Equitable Building means to you

IT means that you will be in the biggest, the most modern, and the most efficiently conducted building in existence, located in probably the most prosperous and certainly the most potential community in the world, surrounded by the most representative business institutions on the American continent, and in actual daily contact with the most influential forces in national business.

Added to which, we have not included in the rent any charge for these advantages.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

KHEDIVE OF EGYPT ATTENDS BALL GAME

Previously Entertains Tourists at Reception—Game Near Pyramids To-day.

By JOHN J. McGRAW, Manager of New York Giants.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1914, by John J. McGraw.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 1.—Royally entertained by the Khedive of Egypt, Abbas II., our first day's visit at Cairo stands out as one of the most pleasant we have had since the world's tour began. We reached Cairo this morning, after a trip of eight hours by rail from Suez, and the royal courtesy began as soon as we stepped off the train. Through the intervention of this ruler, the customs officials were ready to facilitate everything, and it was only a short time before all were ready to enjoy the novel sights of this great city.

Our first duty was a visit to the royal palace, at the special invitation of the Khedive. Messrs. Comiskey, Callahan, and myself, as leaders of the party, and Jim Thorpe, in whom the Khedive had evidently formed a strong interest, were invited to call and told to bring all the women in the party. Abbas II., who is a graduate of the University of Vienna, speaks English perfectly, and in his college days he was noted for his liking for athletics. Our visit with him was alike interesting and entertaining. He assured us how pleased he was that we had come to Cairo, and impressed upon us that the keys of the city were ours while we remained. This afternoon he attended the game, with his entire staff in uniform, and after the game we had an informal reception at the clubhouse. American and Egyptian flags were much in evidence.

The voyage from Colombo to Cairo proved to be one of the most interesting of the whole trip to date. It was a pleasant and smooth sail across the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea to Aden, and thence up the Red Sea to Suez, at the eastern end of the great canal. We were close enough to land to get fine views of the coasts of Africa, Arabia, and Egypt, and could also distinguish Mount Sinai. We disembarked at Suez, and from that city we made the trip to Cairo by rail. The railroad runs alongside the canal to Ismailia, and then across the desert to Cairo.

Touring parties were made up during the morning, and we traveled about the city in automobiles. Everybody was anxious, of course, to view the Sphinx and the Pyramids. Some distance from these noted monuments we had to get out of the automobiles and finish the trip across the sandy deserts on the backs of camels or mules. This part of the journey furnished great amusement for all in the party.

We will spend two more days in Cairo, and we are looking forward to them with much interest. To-morrow we will play the game "in the shadow of the Pyramids," the contest that has long been looked upon as the most notable of the entire journey. In the morning we are to visit the tombs of the Caliphs, the mosques, and the shops of the city. On Tuesday we are to be the guests of honor at a reception to be tendered by Consul General Olney Arnold, the United States representative here.

Our game to-day resulted in a tie, being called at the end of the tenth inning, on account of darkness, with the score 3 to 3. While at sea the players trained regularly, and all were in fine shape for the contest. The health of the entire party has continued exceptionally fine. Our journey from Colombo to Suez was brightened by a gala entertainment on the ship Friday night, this being of the same nature as that which we had on Thanksgiving night while crossing the Pacific.

We have been obliged to call off the visit which we had planned to make at Port Said, and we will board ship again at Alexandria for the trip to Europe.

There are always men enough in and around New York who know us and the character of our stuff to appropriate the advantage of a Sale like this—they only need to be told about it.

This is the second day. Saturday, the first day, 7205 suits, Winter and Summer weights, lined up like this—

353 were $16.00.
953 were $18.00.
1571 were $20.00.
1749 were $22.00.
1817 were $25.00.
591 were $28.00.
171 were $30.00.
$15 now.

4724 other suits reduced proportionately the same are now $20.

All sizes—32 to 52 chest.

POPE TO RECEIVE TOURISTS.

American Baseball Players to be Honored by Pontiff in Rome.

ROME, Feb. 1.—The American baseball players of the National and American Leagues, who have been on a round-the-world tour, are expected to reach here Feb. 10.

They will be received in audience by the Pope, and will play an exhibition game at the Stadium, which seats 100,000 spectators.

BASEBALL MEETING ENDS.

Many Rumors Regarding Outcome of Pittsburgh Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Feb. 1.—The National League baseball officials, with the exception of Gov. John Tener, the league's President, to-night folded their tents and silently stole away. It was reported earlier in the evening that the Governor might have a statement to make supplementary to his statement of last night, when he said that all necessary steps would be taken to protect organized baseball's interests as well as those of the public, but if the Governor had anything on his mind he failed to divulge it.

The usual number of rumors are afloat. One is to the effect that National League capitalists will put an International League team in this city, and that its President will be a man now prominently identified with the management of the local club.

Another story said that it was believed in baseball circles that President Ban Johnson and Connie Mack, while here, were scheming to strengthen the Cleveland and St. Louis American teams in case the raids made on the two teams by the Federals got by. Mack has several players he could dispense with, and Cleveland needs pitchers, now that Blanding, Kahler, and Falkenberg have jumped. Mack can supply that need, and it is believed that Johnson has induced him to pledge himself to do so. The same proposition applies to St. Louis, which is rather weak now.

Whatever happens, Pittsburgh will probably be the storm centre of much of the war. No effort is to be spared to keep the Federal League out of the big cities. "We are in this fight to win," said a man high up in the councils of the Pirates to-night. "The National League has millions invested in a sport which it has fostered while keeping faith with the public. You don't imagine we are taking any chances on imperiling these millions, do you?" and he voices the sentiment of every National League owner and Director.

Pittsburgh Federals After Cree.

SUNBURY, Penn., Feb. 1.—Manager Gessler of the Pittsburgh Federal League Baseball Club came here to-day in an effort to induce Birdie Cree, the New York American outfielder, to sign a three years' contract with the Federals. Cree declared that he had been offered $30,000, and that the Pittsburgh manager had presented a certified check for half the amount in advance. He said he had not yet signed a contract with the New York team, and that he had taken Gessler's offer under consideration. It was reported last week that Cree had been offered $5,000 a year for three years by the Pittsburgh Federals.

Flynn-Levinsky Bout Postponed.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The boxing bout between Jim Flynn and "Battling" Lavinsky, set for to-morrow night, has been postponed until Feb. 9. Flynn is ill.

'GROUP ATHLETICS' FOR COLLEGE MEETS

The I. A. A. A. A. Wants More Students to Participate in Competitive Sports.

So that athletics in the colleges will have a wider scope, in the sense that more students will participate in competitive sport, the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America proposes to amend the by-laws of the association looking to this end.

Gustavus Town Kirby, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the I. A. A. A. A., upon the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the association, yesterday announced a proposition which declares for group tests as embodied in probably the most important of all the proposed amendments to the I. A. A. A. A. by-laws which will be submitted at the annual meeting Feb. 28 in this city.

The principal of these provides for an indoor athletic meeting, and in substance reads as follows:

The association shall hold each year on the evening of the first Saturday in March an indoor athletic meeting. The object of this meeting shall be, not for the purpose of ascertaining the champion member of the association, or of awarding a championship or championships, but for the purpose of bringing together each year in some central locality the athletes and their supporters in an athletic and social gathering.

The eligibility for contestants in this meeting shall be the same as that for contestants in the annual track and field championship meeting.

There shall be no championship cup for this meeting, and, except for the purpose of ascertaining the prize-winning teams in the various events, there shall be no points scored on any basis for or against the members of the association competing therein.

There shall be prizes or tokens given to all members of teams winning first, second, and third places. These prizes, however, shall not be of the same design as those given at the annual track and field championship meeting, although they shall have thereon a reproduction of the Borghese gladiator, the insignia of the association.

It is thought that such meets will bring out more men for track and field sport than ever before. While the group scheme is not a new one in institutional athletics, it will probably be a factor toward the upbuilding of the physical side of many students who are generally onlookers at the games.

In conjunction with the plan to have an indoor meeting will be embodied an amendment which will read in substance that at the games the number of entries shall be unlimited, but no member of the association shall start more than one time in any one event, and before the meet shall select its team and present the names thereof to the referee.

The first new article will provide for the following events in which no member of the association will be permitted to have more than one team with the competitors on each team to be from the same member of the association: Relay race, teams of five men, each man to run 150 yards. Relay race, same provisions, 300 yards per man. Relay race, 500 yards per man. Relay race, teams of four men, each man to run 1,000 yards. Relay race, four men, each to run 2,000 yards. Relay race, teams of four men, in relays of 200 yards, 300 yards, 500 yards, and 1,000 yards.

Running high jump between teams of five men. Same provisions as to eligibility as in relay events, and points to be scored as in the cross-country runs, namely, first place to count 1; second, 2, and so on up the scale.

Pole vault and 16-pound shot put, with similar conditions as those governing the high jump as to eligibility, scoring, &c.

The distances set down for the different relays are intentionally unusual, the motive being to bring men into competition at distances which will not enable any one to have superiority over another at one of the well established distances now competed for at the intercollegiate championships outdoors.

It is also proposed to amend the rules which govern the awarding of the championship cup for the annual field meeting, so that a first place shall count 5 points, a second 4, a third 3, a fourth 2, and a fifth 1 point.

In conformity with this change, that portion of the article touching on the annual field meeting is to be changed to read: "The best six (now five) competitors in each field event shall be permitted to compete Saturday afternoon, and on that afternoon the competitors in the weights and running broad jump shall be allowed three, and the best five (now four) competitors of the two afternoons three additional trials.

It is also proposed to amend the article now known as Article XI, so as to add to the semi-finals and final heats in the hurdle races to be competed on Saturday a semi-final or final heat for fifth place when the width of the track is such as to make the same necessary.

In his statement in regard to the proposed amendments Mr. Kirby in part said: "Since the time of the organization of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. in 1876, when first places alone counted in the score of the championship meeting, and especially during the period covered by the Columbia indoor meets, the spirit of the athletic contest, and especially of the training for competitors therein, has been gradually changing from the exclusive effort to produce one or more stars to an effort to produce a well-rounded team of many good competitors, and to encourage a more general participation in athletics by all the students."

College Basket Ball Standing.

Although Dartmouth's victory over Pennsylvania at Hanover on Saturday night settled, for the time being, at least, the disposition of the Green in the race for the intercollegiate basket ball championship, there were other changes of position in the intercollegiate standing. Three games are scheduled for this week. Dartmouth makes its second invasion of the southern teams, meeting Columbia at New York on Friday night, and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia on Saturday. Simultaneously Yale will play Cornell at Ithaca, and the outcome of these three games will determine to a greater or lesser extent the final standing of the teams engaging in them. The standing of the teams:

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Columbia	3	0	1.000	Cornell	1	1	.500
Yale	3	1	.667	Dartmouth	1	3	.250
Princeton	3	2	.600	Penn	0	3	.000

O'NEIL LEADS HARRIERS.

In a closely contested race J. O'Neil, Ozanam A. A., with a mark of 2 minutes 30 seconds, captured the four-mile handicap run of the Catholic Athletic League held over the course of the St. Anselm's A. C., finishing the course in 22 minutes 32 seconds. The Presentation Athletic Club captured the trophy for points with a total of 47. The College Point Y. M. C. L. was second, and the Ozanam first team third. The novice prize went to A. Craw of the Presentation A. C.

More than fifty hill-and-dale athletes took part in the run, which was one of the best of the season. C. De Stefano, Ozanam A. C., started from scratch and finished twenty-first, but made the best time over the course. O'Neil and R. A. Hogg, Presentation A. C., started with the same handicap, and kept together throughout. In the brush at the finish O'Neil won the honors by a small margin.

P. Blum of Rutgers Place Athletic Association won the weekly road race of the Sheridan Athletic Club yesterday over the four-mile course. Blum ran a good race and finished seventy-five yards ahead of C. Nelson of the Madison A. C., who in turn was about the same distance ahead of H. Harris of the home club, who was third. The order of finish: P. Blum, Rutgers Place A. A.; C. Nelson, Madison A. C.; H. Harris, Sheridan A. C.; M. Greenberg, Sheridan A. C.; J. Flynn, unattached; B. Cooper, Sis-a-Me Club; M. Kirchner, unattached; S. Baker, Sheridan A. C.; T. Fazio, Hoboken Turn Verein; V. Di Clemente, Brooklyn Evening High School; J. Smith, Norman Club; A. Bonti, Brooklyn Evening High School; C. Rosenthal, Sheridan A. C.; I. Pensky, Rutgers Place A. A.; W. Siemsen, Hoboken Turn Verein.

After a gruelling contest M. Cannarsa and W. Burkhard, both of the Bronx Church House, finished together in the five-mile run of the Bronxdale A. C. yesterday. A good field of harriers started in the run and Cannarsa and Burkhard went into the lead shortly after the start. They kept within a few yards of each other throughout the contest, and breasted the tape at the same time. The first ten men to finish were: H. Cannarsa, Bronx Church House; W. Burkhard, Bronx Church House; W. Boak, Trinity A. A.; W. Brockwell, Long Island A. C.; R. Mannering, Raymond Lyceum; H. McGown, Bronx Church House; D. Goldman, Bronxdale A. C.; R. Readding, Bronxdale A. C.; P. Holmer, Boffer Club; J. Flanning, Bronxdale, A. C.

G. Becker of the Royalton A. C. of Jersey led home a large pack of harriers in the weekly road run of the Pennant A. C. yesterday. J. Haneter of the Federal A. C. finished second, just nosing out A. Rostaing of the Royalton A. C. The day was an ideal one for cross-country running, and a large field answered the call of the starter. The finish: G. Becker, Royalton A. C.; J. Haneter, Federal A. C.; A. Rostaing, Royalton A. C.; F. Griswald, Pennant A. C.; W. P. Saul, Irish-American A. C.; O. Rettig, Pennant A. C.; N. Anhalt, unattached; C. Kertiokos, Greek-American A. C.; H. Reynolds, Federal A. C., and G. Kuppler, Greek-American A. C.

Vic Voteratus of the Greek-American A. C. won the 12-mile road run of the Pennant A. C. in the good time of 1:06:48. Harry Nye of the Mohawk A. C. romped home second, followed by H. Parkinson of the Bradhurst F. C. J. F. Fitzgerald, coach of the Federal A. C., who is to compete in the twelve-mile pro race next Saturday night, started one minute after the pack. The finish: V. Voteratus, Greek-American A. C.; H. Nye, Mohawk A. C.; H. Parkinson, Bradhurst F. C.; W. Rozette, I. A. A. C.; C. Timmons, Morningside A. C.; O. S. Weeks, unattached; J. J. Cullen, unattached; G. Hagerstraw, Glencoe A. C.; F. Kuppferer, Pennant A. C.; J. Keane, unattached.

SOCCER CLUB PROTESTS GAME.

For the third time this season the Brooklyns defeated the Clan McDonalds by a score of 2 goals to 1 in a National League game at Marguatto Oval, Brooklyn, yesterday in the presence of 1,500 spectators. It was the seventh straight win credited to the Brooklyns in this series.

To have protested a game at half time, and to continue to play in the second half and eventually win out, is what happened to the I. R. T. Strollers in their replay in the Metropolitan League Cup tie series with the Hamilton F. C. at Macomb's Dam Park yesterday afternoon. The protest came near the end of the first half, when Referee Donald Stewart ordered McGuire, the I. R. T.'s centre, off the field for rough playing. The Strollers protested the game, but continued to play with but ten men.

Refusing to leave the field when ordered to do so by the referee following a foul committed by him caused the forceful removal by the joint efforts by two policemen of J. Duffy of the New York Celtics in the United States of America Football Association Cup tie game, played at Lenox Oval yesterday afternoon. The actions of Duffy, who can play good football but has a habit of resorting to questionable tactics when being beaten, and has been cautioned before, may lead to his suspension. Play was resumed, each side playing with ten men. Ten minutes later Waters, right full back for the New York Celtics, displayed a similar streak of stubborness, and, upon his refusal to leave the grounds when directed to do so, the referee called the game.

On a heavy field the Subway soccer eleven took the White Rose team of Astoria into camp by the score of 5 goals to 2.

With a large crowd witnessing the contest and ideal soccer weather prevailing, the Camerons trounced the Clan McKenzies by the score of 4 goals to 1 at New Bronx Oval yesterday afternoon. A feature of the game was the scoring of a goal by a goalkeeper.

In a Metropolitan League game at Manhattan Field yesterday afternoon the St. George F. C. trounced the Germans by the score of 6 goals to 1.

Parker Wins Three Races.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 1.—George L. Paker, the California sprinter, to-day won three challenge matches—the 50 yards in 5 3-5 seconds, 75 yards in 7 4-5 seconds, and 100 hundreds in 10 seconds.

RACING SCHEDULES FOR CUP DEFENDERS

Yacht Owners and Managers to Discuss Plans This Week for Trial Contests.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 1.—With the construction of three aspirants for America's cup defending honors well under way at Bristol, R. I.; Bath, Me., and Neponset, owners and managers will gather in New York this week to discuss and probably arrange a racing schedule for the season. The meeting will be held at the New York Yacht Club, of which nearly all those interested in the three boats are members.

It is expected that the yachts will be overboard by the first or tenth of May and that the racing will start in upper Long Island Sound during the first week in June, though there is a possibility that the first meeting of the candidate boats may be on the regular cup course off Sandy Hook. Some of the cup yachtsmen want at least one trial off the Hook, preferably before the Shamrock IV. arrives. The yachts are likely to be found in New London about June 19, for the Harvard and Yale boat races. The greater part of the racing will be off Newport, and it is from old Brenton's Reef Lightship that the trial races are likely to be held about mid-August or ten days after the cruise of the New York Yacht Club.

Of the trial boats the Half Moon at Briston is farthest advanced, and stands to-day 28 per cent. completed, while the other two yachts are between 5 and 8 per cent. along, with their lead keels just cooled off, after the pouring.

The Half Moon is in frame, a number of her bronze plates have been bolted on, and some of the longitudinal work has been started. Much of her rigging is well in hand, while duck specially woven has arrived from Lowell and will soon be cut up into sails. The professional talent on the Half Moon next Summer will be Norwegian from Capt. Chris Christiansen to the masthead man. The first mate will be John Christiansen, a distant connection of the Captain. The second mate will be George Lisberg. Nearly every member of the crew hails from the Island of Bergen, on the northwest coast of Norway. All are naturalized Americans.

The lead bulb of the boat being built at Neponset for A. S. Cochrane, from designs by William Gardner, was run last week. It is reported that it contains a bronze shell for the centre plate. As soon as the lead is smooth, the work of attaching the bronze keel plate or fin will begin. The shed in which the work is carried on is guarded day and night, and only accredited workmen are permitted inside. So far as known, the name of the boat has not been selected.

At Bath, the Defiance, under construction for a syndicate of Boston, New York, and Philadelphia yachtsmen, from designs by George Owen, shows less progress than the Cochrane yacht, for her lead bulb is scarcely cool.

The building of the three cup yachts has given yachting, both in the sailing and power divisions, an impetus, and nearly every shipyard on the New England coast is more active than for many years.

Eligibility of High Jumper Richards

The question of the eligibility of Alma W. Richards, formerly of Brigham Young University, Utah, who is now a student at Cornell University, has been a matter of controversy among local and collegiate athletes since it was learned that he was to enter this year's intercollegiate games. Last Summer at the senior championships of America in Chicago and while representing the Illinois Athletic Clubs, Richards won the American high jump championship.

Last Fall Cornell and New York friends of Jack Moakley, the Cornell trainer, were made aware that the wonderful high jumper was to be the nucleus of a team which was to annex the point honors which the Ithaca University held in 1905, 1906, 1908, and 1911. Richards is a wonderful all-around man, and it is generally agreed that he would be a thorn in the side of any man he might take issue with in any event he elected to compete in.

It was pointed out that Moakley must be in error if he fancied that Richards could be eligible, and the precedent was cited that some years ago W. A. Shick, Jr., of Harvard became ineligible for a similar reason.

The rules which bar Richards are "If a student has represented any college or university as a competitor in any field meeting or cross-country run in which two or more colleges have participated and has won a first or second place in such meeting or run he shall not be eligible to represent in the annual field meeting or cross-country run any other college he may attend until he has attended such college one full calendar year and shall have attained in the annual examination upon his work given during that period a satisfactory standard of scholarship.

"No one shall represent any college or university as a competitor in the annual field meeting or cross-country run who has won a first, second, or third place in any field, track, or cross-country event open to competitors from two or more organizations until he shall have resided one full calendar year at the college or university he represents, &c."

Rowing Coach Nickalls Arrives.

Vivian Nickalls, the British rowing coach, with his wife and two daughters, arrived in New York yesterday on the Cunard liner Carmania. Nickalls, who has been engaged to train the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen, will leave at once for Philadelphia to take up his new duties.

BOXING BOUTS THIS WEEK.

Empire A. C. Again Has Leading Card—Tournament for Amateurs.

The Empire A. C., at 107th Street and Lexington Avenue, again comes to the front in boxing this week after a week of inactivity. The Garden A. C. will be out of the field owing to the Motor Boat Show, but the sport will be resumed at the big amphitheatre one week from Thursday night, when Mike Gibbons and Packey McFarland come together. Gibbons is expected here early this week to finish his training at the New Polo A. A., and McFarland will arrive Saturday or early next week.

Three ten-round bouts make up the entire card, two of them being of the star bout variety. In one of these bouts Johnny Dundee and Johnny Lore, west side lightweights, will do the honors. The other will bring together Tom McMahon of Pittsburgh and Battling Levinsky. In the opening ten-round bout Freddie Hass and Eddie Smith will be the principals.

The National Sporting Club will put on the show of next importance to-night at the Forty-fourth Street clubhouse. The contestants will be Porky Flynn of Boston and George Rodel, who has been substituted for Jack Geyer, the Denver heavyweight.

At the Olympic A. C. of Harlem Johnny Daly and Young Ritchie will be the headliners to-night. The other ten-round bouts will show Young Monday of the east side vs. Danny Burns of Harlem, and Jimmy Dempsey vs. Willie Sherman. The Military A. C. of Brooklyn will also be busy to-night with Fighting Joe Hyland and Johnny Dohan of Brooklyn as the contestants in the feature bout.

At the Atlantic Garden A. C., Canal Street and the Bowery, to-morrow night Kid Alberts of New Jersey, recent conqueror of Phil Cross, will oppose Frankie Madden, the veteran Bowery lightweight, in the main event.

The Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn, with an arena second in size to Madison Square Garden among local boxing clubs, will open to-morrow night. The clubhouse is at Halsey Street and Broadway. Soldier Kearns and Fred Fritts, the former navy heavyweight, will be the headliners. In the other ten-round bouts Tommy Teague will oppose Battling Larry Ryan, and Percy Aubrey of England will mix with Bobby Gair of Brooklyn.

The New Polo Athletic Association will put on a special show of three ten-round bouts to-morrow night. Johnny Schumacker and Johnny Harvey will be the headliners. The other bouts will bring together Joe Farmer vs. Jimmy Duffy, and Wee Barton vs. Joe Jackson of Boston.

At the National Sporting Club of Brooklyn Thursday night the card calls for three ten-round bouts as follows: Young Rector of Jersey City vs. Young Joos, Fighting Fitzpatrick vs. Willie Rothwell, and Henry Thiel vs. Bobby Gair.

Amateurs will have their chance in a tournament at the Cathedral Club of Brooklyn this week. The preliminaries will be held Wednesday night, and the finals on Friday night. The tournament is for boxers of 112, 125, 135, and 145 pounds.

The usual week-end shows will be held Saturday night at the Fairmont, Sharkey, and Atlantic Garden Clubs of New York, the Irving, Gowanus, National, Vanderbilt, and Cypress Hills Clubs of Brooklyn, the Queensboro Athletic Club of Long Island City, and the West Brighton Athletic Club of Staten Island.

NEW RULES FOR GOLF.

American Amateurs Will Face Novel System of Play in England.

The American golfers who compete in the British open championship next June will face a system of play unusual both in this country and England. According to a recent decision of the managing clubs the entrants will play qualifying rounds on one or more courses, and the 100 returning the best scores will be eligible for the championship play on the Prestwick links June 18 and 19. This innovation will be of particular interest to Jerome D. Travers, Heinrich Schmidt, Francis Ouimet, and Fred Herreshoff, the quartet of United States players planning a golfing invasion of the British Isles this Summer.

Announcement has not been made of the courses to be used for the qualifying rounds, but it is believed that the St. Nicholas and Troon courses will be selected for the preliminary tests. The constantly increasing entry list, with its attendant congestion when the entire tournament is played over one course, made the change in the rules necessary and caused the adoption of the following conditions:

"The qualifying rounds will be held on courses other than the championship course.

"All competitors will play one round on each course, and the 100 returning the best scores will play in the championship proper four rounds of the green.

"Any ties for the last place will be played off on Saturday, the 13th of June, and will be decided by one round of 18 holes on the championship course.

"Players who qualify will have the privilege of practicing on the championship course on the 13th, 15th, 16th, and 17th of June.

"The championship will be played at Prestwick on June 18 and 19; the qualifying rounds, on courses to be named later, on June 11 and 12."

FOREIGN GOLFERS COMING.

Britishers Anxious to Learn Date of National Open Championship.

One of the first matters the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association will have to settle when Robert C. Watson, the President of the association, returns from a trip South this week, will be the selection of the time for the national open championship, which will be held this year at the Midlothian Country Club, near Chicago.

Shortly after the annual meeting of the parent organization Watson was called South on a business trip, but in the interim various matters have accumulated. It is understood that George Duncan will be here, and that J. H. Taylor, despite his dread of the sea, and James Braid will come along. If no definite word has been received, the cables will be set to working, for the professional golfers are anxious to hear of the exact dates. After the desired information is obtained a mail vote will be taken.

The desired information with regard to the national handicap list is coming in rapidly at the office of the secretary, John Reid, Jr., and in the course of another three weeks or a month it is expected that all necessary data will be at hand. The task is much easier this year than last, for the reason that only men handicapped at five strokes will be rated, as compared with six last year.

FIGHT FOR HOCKEY LEAD.

St. Nicholas and Hockey Club Will Break Tie on Wednesday Night.

The final game of the first series in the Amateur Hockey League struggle for the championship on Wednesday night at the St. Nicholas Rink will find the St. Nicholas and Hockey Club teams engaged in an effort to break the tie for the lead, both having come down to this period without the loss of a single game.

The same conditions of things existed a year ago when the Hockey Club and St. Nicholas teams found themselves tied for the honors when the schedule brought them together for their first game. The Hockey Club won and eventually captured the championship.

The game between the Crescents and Wanderers on Thursday night will be the first game under the new order, and the hockey factions which were divided upon the merits of adopting this six-men rule when the question almost disrupted the league, will have an opportunity to observe the practical working of it. With the teams composed of faster skaters than heretofore, the opinion prevails that under the six-men rule the game will be more spectacular and allow for more brilliant individual playing than was heretofore possible with so many players on the ice.

Amateur League follows:

Club.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Hockey Club	3	0	1.000
St. Nicholas S. C.	3	0	1.000
Crescent A. C.	2	2	.500
Irish-American A. C.	1	3	.250
Wanderers H. C.	0	4	.000

Supremacy's New Two-Year Record

EL PASO, Feb. 1.—Supremacy, a two-year-old from the Butler stables, clipped a fifth of a second off the world's record time for three and one-half furlongs at the Juarez race track to-day, running the distance in 0:39 1-5. The record was formerly held by Calisse, a Texas bred mare.

Iron Mask, six-furlong-record horse, failed to-day in his attempt to lower the record for the mile made twenty-four years ago by Salvator. His time was 1:39 2-5, four seconds slower than that of Salvator.

Certain-teed
ROOFING
GUARANTEED

The General says:—

Whether it's roll roofing you're buying, for a business or industrial building—or shingles for a residence—the most important thing is, get this Certain-teed label on every roll or crate and know that you're getting

Certain-teed Roofing
Quality Cert-ified
Durability Guaran-teed

When you buy roofing you're buying final protection for your building. There is no advance test by which you can know the wearing quality that's in the roofing you buy, and how long it will last. Proof on the roof is the only test.

Look to the manufacturer for the protection of your purchase. Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed for 15 years—it will last longer. Roofs do not wear out—they dry out.

Certain-teed, built on a soft center asphalt base with harder asphalt protecting surface, dries very slowly, indeed. Asphalt, a mineral, never having been a gas, will not return to gaseous form.

The three biggest mills in the roofing industry are behind the 15-year guarantee on every roll and crate of Certain-teed—that responsibility is the best advance test there is as to how long your roof will last.

Certain-teed is always sold at a reasonable price—by dealers everywhere. There are roofings you can buy as low as one-third less per roll—but they are not worth it. It may save you a few dollars at most, and it is poor economy. If you want quality you must pay for it.

A Certain-teed Construction Roof for buildings of the most permanent type appeals to architects, engineers and builders as well as to owners.

A Certain-teed Construction Roof is a built-up roof and is the modern scientific process of covering—whether a gable roof or a flat roof with poor drainage.

A Certain-teed Construction Roof does away with the smoky tarred felt, no gravel is used, does not crack or rot, the roof is washed clean after every rain. It is a sanitary roof. Costs more, but worth more. Applied only by responsible roofers.

Putting the Modern Roofing Industry on the Map.

By George M. Brown, President General Roofing Manufacturing Company.

Prepared roofing—the modern roofing—has come to stay. It is the natural result of the needs of modern business and modern building methods.

It represents one of the big factors in the "scientific management" of building.

Like every innovation—the first telephone, the first typewriter, the first automobile, the first airship—it bumped smash up against the solid wall of prejudice at the very start.

It was a real struggle—the same real struggle that every new industry undergoes before it gets under way. But this new industry had a real champion.

Certain-teed, the guaranteed-for-fifteen-years roofing.

The quality capable of making good on a fifteen-year guarantee established the faith of the public in the modern roofing industry and set it on its feet.

And Certain-teed roofing—with the tremendous momentum of its broadcast advertising, its aggressive sales policy, its enormous volume of production, and with the three biggest mills in the roofing industry behind its guarantee—is chiefly responsible for this great and rapid success with which the prepared roll and shingle roofing industry has met.

Every manufacturer of modern roofing—every dealer who sells roofing and every user of roofing, has profited by the unprecedented success of Certain-teed.

Thousands upon tens of thousands of dollars have been saved by users of roofing, by the success of Certain-teed roofing—not only the users of Certain-teed roofing, but the users of all good roll or shingle roofings. For, while we contend Certain-teed, the guaranteed-for-15-years roofing to be the best roofing made, we concede that any good ready roofing has many advantages over the old style roof.

And while saving thousands upon thousands of dollars for roofing owners, the success of Certain-teed roofing has made thousands upon thousands of dollars in profits for roofing dealers—not only the dealers in Certain-teed roofing, but the dealers in all good modern roofings. For the success of Certain-teed roofing has meant the very large success of the entire roll roofing industry.

Modern roofing has come to stay. It is a gigantic and successful industry—thanks to the success of Certain-teed—for it is based on modern, scientific methods, efficiency, economy and better service. It means the truest economy for the roofing user—the best protection for his buildings and a better protection for his investment than he has ever had before.

At the same time it means a good, fair profit to the roofing dealer and bigger and better business than he ever did before, with lower prices to the user.

Certain-teed roofing has established modern roofing as one of the longest steps in the scientific management of building—the introduction of modern efficiency methods in the building industry. The success of Certain-teed roofing in this respect has put it on the map.

Junior National Cross-Country Champion a Student at Big School.

Sidney L. Leslie of the Long Island Athletic Club, the lad who performed in such sterling fashion within the last year as a distance runner as well as a cross-country expert, has taken up his studies at Phillips Exeter, where he should be a decided accession to an already strong team. Leslie finished up his metropolitan career for the time being last Wednesday night at the Millrose A. A. games, where he won the two-mile handicap from the 75-yard mark in 9:12 4-5, a performance which showed him to be equal to 9:26 all the way.

Aside from that capital bit of running, Leslie's best work last season was done through the medium of events over hill and dale, particularly at Van Cortlandt Park, where he competed in the metropolitan junior and senior and national junior and senior races. After winning the junior event in 34:46 for six miles on Nov. 8, he went down before Hannes Kolehmainen the week following, although he bettered his previous running by doing 33:58. On Nov. 29 he won the Amateur Athletic Union junior title by doing 34:42, but in the senior race a week later Abel Kiviat defeated him by 20 seconds, Leslie doing 34:12. Leslie was one of the most popular athletes in the district, and usually ran his race, being accorded the distinction of being the best distancer outside of Kolehmainen, Kramer, and Kiviat.

FERGUSON SHOOTS WELL.

Larchmont Y.C. Gunner Wins Three Prizes at Weekly Competition.

Splendid weather conditions made high scores the rule at the Larchmont Yacht Club's traps yesterday. In five out of the nine matches decided full scores were returned, and there were several ties shot off to determine the winners.

Of the fourteen men that faced the traps W. E. Ferguson carried off three prizes. G. W. Lembeck and J. G. Batterson tied him in the match for the first take-home trophy, each returning a full score, but in the shoot-off Ferguson won. His score of 25 was also the highest for the leg on the Visitors' Cup, young Ralph K. Spotts being the runner-up, with 24 breaks. Ferguson's other win was the 125 " bird " handicap match, in which he broke 120 on his handicap of 15. A. L. Burns and A. J. McManus, a professional, tied for second place with 119.

With a handicap of 4 and a full score of 50, T. Lenane, Jr., won the leg for the Accumulation Cup, A. L. Burns and A. W. Fitzegrald being the runners-up, with 49 each. Lenane also won the second take-home trophy with a full score of 25.

A. L. Burns showed excellent form, winning the high-gun prize with a total of 134 out of the possible 150 from scratch and defeating R. L. Spotts by one " bird." Burns won the high-gun prize last week. A. W. Allison won the 10-" bird " scratch.

Good Scores at New Rochelle.

Good scores were returned in all of the five matches contested at the New Rochelle Yacht Club traps yesterday. Fourteen nimrods competed for the prizes, and C. C. Moore captured one of them. In winning the leg for the Accumulation Cup he broke twenty-five with his handicap of five, beating J. P. Donovan and Dr. G. H. Martin by one bird. J. P. Donovan won two prizes, the distance handicap and the Take Home Trophy. Both were shot as one match. C. C. Moore, shooting from sixteen yards, tied Donovan, who shot from nineteen, both breaking twenty blue rocks, but in the shoot-off Donovan won. George F. Pelham won the leg for the Monthly Cup with a full score of 25 and H. S. Bullock won the ten-bird Scratch Prize after a shoot-off with H. H. Todd. The Fifteen-Bird Speewstakes Prize went to Dr. Martin with a full score.

Greenwich C. C. Wins at Traps.

The Greenwich Country Club defeated the Knollwood Country Club of White Plains in a team shoot at the Knollwood traps in White Plains yesterday afternoon. Eight men made up each team and the final score was 631 to 542. F. M. Wilson of the home club was winner in both the monthly and yearly handicap events of 100 birds each, and he also won the handicap match for the F. B. Mackay prize. E. F. Crowe won the Take-Home trophy for members, and Robert Coffin of the Greenwich Club won the Take-Home trophy for guests. Next Sunday the Knollwood team will engage in a shoot with the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club gunners.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

The month which has just closed will be remembered as one which brought a really remarkable transformation in practically all the financial markets of the world, no single feature of the great change for the better being more important in its immediate as well as in its ultimate effects than the great broadening which took place in the investment demand for securities. Last week put the finishing touches to a month's record which is not only notable but encouraging in the highest degree. Interest rates have come down, while the demand for investments has risen rapidly. Over the business world at large has come a change in sentiment which finds reflection in increased confidence for the future, but also in the more tangible fact that important industries are operating at a higher percentage of capacity, and that bank clearings, as one measure of the volume of trade, are showing increases after many weeks of contraction.

Europe played an important part in the further improvement which came about last week. The foreign markets bought American stocks on a very substantial scale. Just how much they did buy was a matter of guesswork, but estimates placed the amount of stocks which were purchased for foreign account during the month of January at 150,000 shares or more. Europe bought its own investment securities with much freedom, subscribed liberally to new issues, Governmental and others, and expressed its hopeful view of the outlook, particularly toward the end of the month, in a general rise on all the principal Stock Exchanges. A sharp contrast is here presented with the conditions which prevailed abroad last year, conditions which were one of the things which dragged on our own market, and which emphasized every unfavorable feature and minimized many favorable facts. The opinion was expressed in banking circles at the week's close that the European investment demand was likely to continue for some time. As much as this was suggested by the overwhelming subscriptions to the $87,000,000 Prussian loan, which was applied for seventy-one times over. Until the last week of the year Paris held more or less aloof from the movement toward renewed comfort in the financial markets, but on Thursday the Bank of France reduced its discount rate to 3½ per cent., and thereafter the open market rate fell as low as 3⅛ per cent., and the Bourse developed noteworthy strength.

A few figures will help to bring out clearly the change which has come about since the first of this year in our own stocks and bonds and in the three great public securities of Europe which are the standard bearers of their respective markets. This is what the record shows:

	Jan. 31, 1914.	Dec. 31, 1913.	Net Change.
Fifty stocks	72.97	67.50	+5.47
Forty bonds	89.24	86.40	+2.84
British consols	76.00	71.00¾	+4.00¼
French rentes	87.20	85.37⅛	+1.82½
German 3s	78.00	75.00	+3.00

A year ago stocks were declining in the early weeks of the year, and as the event proved supplied the keynote to the 1913 record on the Stock Exchanges. By the same token a most encouraging sign has been afforded for the course of business during the year whose first month has just come to a close.

This improvement in securities went hand in hand with an equally notable change in the money markets at home and abroad. Three times did the Bank of England lower its rate during the month, until last week its rate was cut to 3 per cent., giving London the distinction of having the lowest official as well as the lowest working discount rate in Europe. Here is a comparison of loan and discount rates at the close of January, with the end of December rates:

	Jan. 31, 1914.	Dec. 31, 1913.
On call (renewals)	1¾	6
Four months	3 @3¼	4½@5
Sixty days	2½@2¾	4½@5
Six months	3½@3¾	4½@5
COMMERCIAL PAPER (Prime Bills.)
Four to six months	4 @4¼	5½@5¾
Short bills	3½@3¾	5 @5½
EUROPEAN DISCOUNTS.
London	1⅞	4½
Paris	3⅛	3¾
Berlin	3⅛	3⅞

These figures in themselves are eloquent of the change which has come about. When one comes to study them to find in them practical encouragement for the country's business particular attention is attracted to commercial paper. Only for brief periods during the decade has commercial paper been sold at rates materially lower than those at which prime bills were being discounted last week. Trade recession, from which fortunately we are already recovering, has undoubtedly been an important factor in increasing the available supply for funds, but the noteworthy fact connected with the decline in commercial discount rates during recent weeks is that a very large volume of business has been done in such paper. The banks have bought freely, and though the demand has outstripped the supply the volume of paper placed has been very large. One commercial banking house, which has long been prominently identified with the commercial paper market, did more business in this field in January than during any previous first month of the year in its history. This is an indication that much paper has been available, and that in turn suggests that preparations are being made for more business than is now being done, even though the volume has lately been growing.

Tangible reflection of the fact that during January we have been getting away from the decline in industrial activity which occurred during the closing months of last year is not lacking. Figures show that the steel mills are running at considerably increased output, it being estimated last week that they were being operated at an average of 65 per cent. of capacity. The recent record of bank clearings is interesting, in that for the past two weeks they show a substantial upturn compared with the corresponding periods last year after a number of weeks of reduced clearings. Nor is this change for the better in these figures due altogether to the expansion in security trading during the second half of January. This is the record by weeks since the beginning of the year, the figures used being those compiled by The Commercial Chronicle:

		Inc. or decrease. Per Cent.
W'k ended Jan. 3	$3,363,140,178	— 5.2
W'k ended Jan. 10	3,561,922,919	— 3.8
W'k ended Jan. 17	3,587,103,138	— 6.6
W'k ended Jan. 24	3,686,622,395	+ 7.1
W'k ended Jan. 31	*3,279,735,566	+10.0

In our own stock market a large part of last week was given over to profit-taking, accompanied by more or less professional selling on the theory that the previous advance had been so rapid that a period of quiet and possibility of reaction in prices was normally to be expected. Despite the wide extent to which this view was held, prices toward the end of the week turned upward again, and with such vigor that by Saturday a new high level had been reached in the list as a whole. Thus it was on the very last day of the month that the month's highest prices were recorded. The more favorable outlook regarding the relations between Government and business was in no wise impaired last week in the judgment of the financial community. In a similarly hopeful spirit such evidence as came to hand through the quarterly statement of the United States Steel Corporation, and otherwise, of the trade reaction at the end of last year was accepted as a reflection of conditions from which recovery was already under way, and in no wise as a forecast of what is to be the business record of the current year. That this spirit is far from prevailing only on the Stock Exchanges is indicated by the general character of current advices from business quarters, where much optimism regarding the future is being expressed.

Such misgivings as have been voiced in one part or another of the financial community lest the movement in stocks was proving more rapid than second thought would justify have nowhere been applied to the investment market, properly speaking, for there the indications have been many that a broad demand is likely to prevail for a considerable while to come. The new issues of securities during January were in a smaller volume than during the same month in other recent years, when the demand was much less pronounced than it has been this year. Much financing, of course, remains to be done, but so good is the demand that there is ample ground for the belief that filling the needs of borrowers will be far less of a problem than it seemed likely to be when last year came to an end. The fact is, that the investment demand has grown at a pace which has exceeded all expectations. The January record could hardly have been better. The foundation has apparently been laid in several directions for broad-scale improvement later in the year.

LONDON HAS A REAL BOOM.

1 Per Cent. Bank Rate Reduction Takes Market by Surprise.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Stock Exchange revival of January, 1914, was without precedent in both the rapidity and strength of the upward movement of prices. The appreciation in 400 stocks is computed at $5,000,000. Even the most sanguine dealers were taken by surprise. Many firms whose efforts for months past had been devoted to keeping their books even, found themselves short of stock and forced to repurchase whatever stock they had sold. An advance is now regarded as inevitable. The rapidity and strength of the rise surprised even the most sanguine. The boom is now regarded as a process of leveling up after a period of inordinate depression.

The scene when the Bank of England rate was reduced a full point on Thursday showed the optimism at its zenith. Lombard Street and Capel Court both expected a one-half of 1 per cent. reduction, and both were taken by surprise by the action of the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street.

To the Stock Exchange it was a pleasant surprise, but it did not bring unmixed delight to the money market. In fact, it was a smart bit of financing on the part of the Bank of England Directors, who had foreseen the inevitableness of cheap money and had invested big sums in colonial notes, and thus poured out huge amounts into the open market, after which they lowered the official rate. Until the last moment Lombard Street (i. e., the open money market) had striven to keep up the idea that the abundance of money was only temporary and that revenue payments would soon drain the open market's resources. Holding $256,725,000 in other deposits—an unprecedented amount for this season—and knowing that they would be largely augmented by revenue payments, the Bank of England Directors considered themselves as much entitled to employ these deposits as any other banking firm, and thus effected a coup of world-wide importance.

INVESTORS BRACE BERLIN.

Boerse Buoyant by Big Success of Treasury Note Issue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—The outstanding features of the week were a reduction in the English Bank rate and the colossal oversubscription to the new $87,500,000 issue of Prussian Treasury notes. Both incidents exercised a favorable effect on the market and were eagerly interpreted by the professional element as signs of the times for 1914, viz., cheaper money and higher quotations.

The banks share in the Government's joy over the obvious appetite of the public for investment opportunities.

Steels and irons and Hansa shipping shares were buoyant throughout the week. Neither Hamburg nor Lloyd issues have so far suffered a market decline in consequence of the outbreak of the rate war. The reserves of both are thought to safeguard their stocks from disastrous tumbles.

PARIS MARKET BUOYANT.

Favorable London Advices and Cheap Money Induce Optimism.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The most buoyant tone for some time was observed on the Bourse during the entire week. There was a quiet opening, but the activity increased on Tuesday. There was firmness all along the line, partly due to London advices and partly to the abundance of money. There was a slowing down in midweek, but this was quite comprehensible, in view of the nearness of the settlement, and a strong undertone still prevailed. There was a smart rally when it became known that the Bank of England had reduced its rate to 3 per cent. and the Bank of France to 3½, the shorts hastening to cover.

Rentes hardened; Rio Tintos recovered, gaining 16 points, and Mexican Nationals rose 5. The activity in London and the remarkable success of the new colonial loan created a most favorable impression. On Friday rentes rose one-half a point and Rios gained a trifle. The week closed with an upward trend, apparently destined to continue.

These Certificates are issued in a form similar to certificates of stock, but are in effect a perpetual Collateral Trust Bond, being secured by $58,334,700 stock collateral, or nearly three times the par value of the Certificates outstanding. On the securities so pledged, the Certificates have a lien prior to that of $37,000,000 Public Service Corporation of New Jersey General 5's.

The Corporation has outstanding $25,000,000 capital stock, issued for cash at par, and since 1904 has expended for extensions and improvements over $57,000,000. It has control of the gas, electric and street railway business in the principal communities of New Jersey, serving a population of approximately 2,000,000. Its franchises are without time limit.

To the Holders of National Railways of Mexico Prior Lien 4½% 50-Year Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds.

National Railroad Company of Mexico Prior Lien 4½% Gold Bonds.

Mexican Central Railway Company Ltd. Priority Bonds.

Holders of a large amount of the above-mentioned securities have signified their assent to the offer of the Company contained in the notice dated December 30, 1913, to make payment of the coupons on said securities, due January 1, 1914, in the Three-Year 6% Secured Gold Notes of the Company, due January 1, 1917, secured by £595,580 of the 6% Ten Year Treasury Gold Bonds of 1913 of the Mexican Government. To afford an opportunity to other holders of the above-mentioned securities to deposit their coupons and thus make effective a plan which the Company believes to be for the best interests of all concerned, the time for the deposit of coupons is hereby extended until and including SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14TH, 1914.

Pursuant to the Agreement with the Mexican Government under which the said Treasury Bonds were advanced to the Company, if on or before February 15th, 1914, holders to the amount of 75% shall not have deposited their bonds, or otherwise satisfactorily signified their assent to the offer, the Company is bound to withdraw the offer, and if holders to the amount of 85% shall not have so assented, the Company is bound to withdraw the offer if the Mexican Government so requests.

Although the assents given have been most encouraging, the required 85% of assents have not yet been received, and the Company notifies the holders of the above-mentioned securities that, in order to assure the successful consummation of the plan, their coupons must be promptly deposited.

SUCH DEPOSITS SHOULD BE MADE WITH THE GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, EITHER AT ITS NEW YORK OFFICE, 140 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, OR AT ITS LONDON OFFICE, 33 LOMBARD STREET, LONDON, E. C., OR AT DESIGNATED OFFICES IN OTHER COUNTRIES, ON OR BEFORE FEBRUARY 14TH, 1914.

PLAN TO AID TRACTION MEN.

H. H. Vreeland Is Put in Charge of Welfare Work.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough and the New York Railways Companies, announced yesterday that a welfare department had been formed in connection with these companies and had been placed under the supervision of H. H. Vreeland, Vice President of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, who will have the title of Director of welfare work and Chairman of the Welfare Committee.

The Welfare Committee will be made up of the heads of the departments, and will serve as the adviser of the head of the welfare department. Mr. Vreeland, Mr. Shonts pointed out yesterday in a circular to the employes of the two companies, already was a line officer, and, as Chairman of the Welfare Committee, would be a staff officer reporting directly to the President.

For some time past the companies concerned have engaged in welfare work by establishing company stores where employes and their families could obtain household stores at a very small advance over the wholesale price, by publishing the Interborough Bulletin and by maintaining club rooms and athletic associations. All these activities are to be extended and organized in the new department.

P. R. R.'S EARNINGS LOW.

Net for 1913 Was More Than $11,000,000 Below the Previous Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—Net earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad system last year were $11,222,972 less than they were the year before, according to the annual report just issued. Gross earnings, however, were the largest in the history of the system, being $17,800,832 more than in the previous year, which was the best up to that time.

Expenses were more than $29,000,000 above last year's, the increase being largely in wages and repair of flood damages incurred on the lines west of Pittsburgh.

The net earnings in 1913 were the smallest in a decade, but it is not thought likely that the decrease will affect the dividend rate.

The Union Trust Company of New York (established in 1864) has for many years made a specialty of Personal Trusts—under Will or under Agreement—and maintains a carefully organized department for handling them.

Many millions of dollars' worth of property—real and personal—have been entrusted to the company by conservative people, residents not only of New York State, but of other States in which the Union Trust Company is authorized to transact business.

Correspondence or interviews with persons considering the formation of trusts of any kind—for themselves or for others—are solicited.

NEW WATER POWER BILLS AT ALBANY

Conservation Commission Renews Fight for Development of Hydro-Electric Resources.

CAPITAL DISTRICT FIRST

Construction of State Plant on the Mohawk the Initial Project—Two General Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—The State Conservation Commission has prepared three hydro-electric bills, which will be introduced by Senator Velte to-morrow night. The measures are the first of a series the commission is projecting with a view to State-wide development of hydro-electric power.

The commission has redrafted the Bayne bill of 1912. Its purpose is to conserve the natural resources of the State and establish a policy of progressive development of electrical energy from water power under State ownership, control and supervision. Public utilization of the State's hydraulic resources is contemplated both to benefit the public and to provide a substantial increase in the revenue of the State.

To the Conservation Commission by this proposed statute is given power to regulate the flow of the streams of the State and to erect and maintain reservoirs, dams and dykes for utilizing the waters now going to waste. The commission is also empowered to acquire by purchase, contract or condemnation any lands, waters, water rights or power plants which may be necessary to develop, conserve and distribute the energy to be derived therefrom, and to construct or otherwise acquire property of any nature which may be necessary for the development, transmission and distribution of water, water power or electrical energy for municipal, domestic or manufacturing purposes.

A Complete Development Scheme.

The bill also gives the commission jurisdiction to contract with municipalities or public service corporations to supply water, power or electricity for municipal, commercial or irrigation purposes. It establishes a complete scheme for the development of the natural resources of the State, including the right to utilize any surplus or available waters of the barge canal. It carries no appropriation.

The Murtaugh bill, which passed the Legislature last year and was vetoed by Gov. Sulzer, has been redrafted, but in all essential particulars the new bill is identical with the bill of last year. It applies only to the utilization of surplus canal waters for hydraulic power. The bill is general in its terms, and authorizes the commission to develop hydraulic power from the surplus waters of the canals and canalized streams of the State, and authorizes the creation of hydro-electric districts for the purpose of such development and the distribution of such power.

Provision is made in this bill for authorizing municipalities to make application to the commission to be supplied with electrical energy developed by the State from the surplus canal waters. Before a contract is entered into between the commission and any municipality, the contract must be approved by a majority of the electors of the municipality at a special election. Each municipality must pay for electricity supplied under such contract its proportionate share of such sum as will pay to the State an interest revenue of 4 per cent. upon the total investment of the State for construction, and its proportionate share of a sinking fund to repay the State at the end of fifty years for all capital cost, and also compensate the State for line loss, cost of transmission, operating, repairing, and insuring the property. Each municipality is also required to pay to the State an additional charge of 2½ per cent. per annum upon the total investment for construction of the plant.

Commission to Adjust Rates.

The contract betwene the State and the municipality is to contain a schedule of rates at which the municipality shall sell electricity to consumers, and the commission is given the power to adjust the rates annually. Provision is made for the condemnation of property and for compensating the owners in the same manner as provided for barge canal lands. The bill carries an appropriation of $650,000, of which $282,000 is to be made available during the year 1914.

To initiate the scheme the commission is directed to construct a hydro-electric plant and other necessary works at Crescent and Vischer's Ferry on the Mohawk River for the development of electrical power from the surplus waters which are now going to waste at that point. This work is not to be started until the commission shall receive application for sufficient power to warrant such action. The power developed from these dams will be supplied to the Capital district as soon as the cities comprising such districts enter into contracts with the commission as provided in the act.

The third bill to be introduced to-morrow is exactly similar to the Capital district bill, with the exception that it authorizes the commission to construct a hydro-electric plant at any point to be selected by the commission along the line of the canal. For this purpose an appropriation of $700,000 is provided, $300,000 of which is to be made available during the present year.

URGES CHAMPLAIN PROJECT.

Gov. Glynn Wants Uncle Sam to Make Narrows Navigable.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—In a letter addressed to Stephen M. Sparkman, Chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee in the National House of Representatives, Gov. Glynn urges early consideration of the project of the improvement by the Federal Government of the Narrows of Lake Champlain, saying in part:

"The great system of barge canals which New York is building at an estimated cost of about $130,000,000 is planned to connect the ocean at New York City through the Hudson River with Lakes Champlain, Ontario, Erie, Cayuga, and Seneca. All of these lakes, with one exception, are capable of accommodating all possible barge canal traffic. The exception is Lake Champlain. At the upper end of this lake it dwindles to narrow and shallow channels, with several bad elbow curves.

"To enable this fine lake to be utilized as part of the Barge Canal system, it is essential that these channels be deepened, widened, and straightened at the bend, and, as the lake and channels are navigable waters of the United States and boundary waters, it is believed to be fair and proper that the work be done by and at the expense of the United States, and it is earnestly requested that this work be provided for and carried out at the earliest date possible, so that it will be ready for navigation as soon as the State Barge Canal is completed.

"The cost of the project is estimated at $737,000, which is a small sum compared with its importance, with the tonnage which will be benefited by it, and with the amount which the State has and is expending on the Barge Canal, and which, undoubtedly, Canada will expend in connecting by a canal the waters of Lake Champlain with the St. Lawrence, and which it has now under consideration.

"Some very important and expensive commercial undertakings are based on the Barge Canal and the improvement of the Narrows of Lake Champlain, and are waiting for their completion. These relate to the iron mines and works on the west side of Lake Champlain, and the vast amount of pulpwood brought from Canada through the lakes to the great paper mills on the upper Hudson."

MEAT SUPPLY SHORT BY 18,259,000 HEAD

Increased Population Since 1910 Needs This to Keep Up Ratio of Supply Then Existing.

VALUE UP AS NUMBER DROPS

Actual Decline Is 7,305,000 Head, While Populace Grew 7,000,000 —Causes for Shortage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—In the face of an estimated increase of nearly 7,000,000 in the population, there has been a decrease of 7,305,000 food animals in the United States since 1910. This statement is made by the Agricultural Department, and means, it says, that it would take 18,259,000 more meat animals than the estimates show to give the present population the same meat supply known to exist by the census of 1910.

The department's estimates are based on reports from its agents throughout the country. On account of this serious condition the Secretary of Agriculture will direct an investigation into the present meat situation.

According to the department, the shortage in meat animals is due probably to many contributing causes, among them the following:

The encroachment of farms upon the range territory.

The lack of a proper range-leasing law permitting economical management and utilization of ranges.

The shortage in the corn and forage crop due to the severe drought in Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma in 1913, which caused the farmers in those States to dispose of their meat animals.

The increase in the value of land and the increased cost of labor and stock feed, resulting in greatly increased cost of production.

The decline in stock raising on farms in the East and South because of poor marketing facilities, resulting from many local slaughtering establishments having been driven out of business by the competition of the great central slaughtering establishments of the West and Central West.

The temptation to sell live stock at the prevailing high prices rather than to continue to carry them with high-priced stock feed, possible loss from disease or accident, and uncertain prices the following year.

Enormous losses from hog cholera.

The competition of higher prices for other farm products.

Although the number of meat animals is more than 7,000,000 less than in 1910, the value of the present supply is greater. The department estimates that the present value is $1,534,600,000, an increase of $395,487,000. One reason for the increased cost of living is indicated in this fact.

Since 1910 the farm value of beef cattle has increased from $19.07 to $31.13 a head, or 63.2 per cent., an average animal increase of more than 15 per cent. Swine have increased 13.4 per cent. in value, but the price of sheep has decreased slightly.

"This increase in the average value of meat animals," says the department, "does not necessarily mean that farmers or stock raisers are making more, if any, profit. On the contrary, the cost of production has probably increased more rapidly than the increased selling price of live stock.

"The large increased value of meat animals on farms is probably accounted for by the increased cost of production and the increased consumption or demand, arising from the fact that production has not kept pace with the increase in population, and in the case of cattle and sheep has actually declined. It is well known that producers of farm products are the last to receive any benefit from higher prices paid by consumers, yet they are among the first to increase production if there is a prospect of realizing better returns.

"The very fact that there is a present shortage of nearly 19,000,000 meat animals in the United States since the census of 1910 indicates clearly that the business is not profitable to producers; otherwise, every farmer and stock raiser in the country would have increased his herds of meat animals. It should also be borne in mind that the estimated average value of meat animals is their value on the farm, and not the wholesale or retail value. The farm value, or average price received on farms, is much less than the wholesale prices and considerably less than the retail prices to consumers.

"Milch cows on farms have increased in number, however. There are supposed to be 20,737,000 of them in the United States, or about one-half of 1 per cent. more than in 1910. The farm price of milk producers has increased also. The average is $53.94, against $35.79 in 1910, an increase of 50.7 per cent.

"Beef cattle are 19.2 per cent. short of the number necessary to maintain the per-capita ratio of 1910, or 8,536,000 head.

"Sheep are 11.6 per cent. short, or 6,509,000 head.

"Swine are 5.2 per cent. short, or 3,214,000 head."

Ask Aid for Brooklyn Widow.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities applies for $60 to aid a widow who is an invalid and her family, consisting of three children. The mother, owing to her illness, earns only $2 a week, and her 16-year-old daughter has been out of work for two months. The bureau will find a place for the daughter. Contributions should be sent to O 157, Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

NEW PHONE RATES WON'T AID TENANTS

Landlords Will Not Cut Cost of Service for Those Living in Apartment Houses.

LOSE MONEY, THEY ASSERT

Owners of These Buildings Would Abolish Switchboards—Company's Cuts in Effect Yesterday.

When the reduction in rates made by the New York Telephone Company in advance of the inquiry instituted by the Public Service Commission into the physical valuation of the property of the company with a view to fixing its rates went into effect yesterday it was found that the new prices would not affect the amounts paid by apartment house dwellers who received their service through switchboards provided by the landlords. Nor will the lowered rates apply to calls between the boroughs or to public telephone stations.

In most of the large apartment houses and apartment house hotels the tenants have contracts with the owners for telephone service at the rate of 8 cents for each call. The landlords say they are supplying this service now at a loss. Reginald P. Bolton, Secretary of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, which includes among its members most of the owners of the largest apartment houses on the upper west side, gave these reasons for excluding the tenants from any benefit from the reduced rates:

"The switchboard service in practically every apartment house is operated at a loss to the landlord. One of our members lost $8,000 last year on the service he provided for tenants in his houses. There are owners and landlords who average a loss of $2,000 to $3,000 yearly from this source. On one piece of property I owned my loss averaged $200 a year. Between the janitors, tenants, and switchboard operators there are always disputes over responsibility for telepehone calls, and in the end the landlord has to pay the disputed charges.

"The members of the association would like to abolish the switchboard service in all apartment houses, and have the tenants get their service direct from the telephone company. The telephone company says, though, that it cannot provide sufficient cable connections to furnish independent telephone service to so many persons. We have suggested putting slot machines in the apartment houses. The only difficulty with the slot machine is that tenants would receive no calls; that is, they could not hear the calls from their rooms. If the machines were put in the apartments, they might not be profitable. To solve this problem of apartment house telephones we have appointed a special committee to present the subject to the Public Service Commission. Collin H. Woodward, Tax Commissioner for Manhattan, is Chairman of the committee."

John C Coleman, Vice President of the West End Association, agreed with Mr. Bolton that the switchboard service was unprofitable for the landlords.

The Merchants' Association and six other petitioners have joined in an application to the Public Service Commission of the Second District for a general investigation of the affairs of the New York Telephone Company, including the schedules of tolls and charges throughout the city. Breed, Abbott & Morgan are counsel for the Merchants' Association, and M. H. Winkler for the other petitioners.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Certain Metal Brooches Held Not to be Dutiable as Articles of Jewelry.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has decided that metal and celluloid brooches, necklaces, and charms of frail construction are not to be regarded as jewelry dutiable at 60 per cent. ad valorem as returned by the Collector at New York, but may enter at 35 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for toys, in the old tariff. Hamburger & Co., New York, were the importers.

Samstag & Hilder Brothers, New York, have been overruled in a contention regarding the classification under the old law of cotton initials intended to be appliqued upon articles of wearing apparel or table linen. Duty was taken at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 349, while the importers asserted that the rate should be 45 per cent. under the provision for manufactures of cotton.

The claim of W. H. Stiner & Son, New York, has been rejected for duty on merchandise described in the invoices as silk muslin in the gum. The merchandise was returned by the Appraiser as all-silk woven fabrics in the piece, yarn dyed, not weighted, and was assesed for duty at the rate of $3 a pound, but not less than 45 per cent. ad valorem under the provisions of Paragraph 399. Tariff act of 1909.

The board has confirmed duty levied at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem under the old law on cotton bindings imported by Edwin Horrax, New York. The goods, the importers asserted, were dutiable properly at 50 per cent. as partly made wearing apparel. The board ruled that the binding had not progressed in manufacture far enough to warrant its classification under that provision.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Fair weather with moderate temperatures prevailed Sunday in all districts except in the lake region, where light snow continues. The disturbance over Montana Saturday has advanced to the Plains States, but without precipitation of consequence. A continuance of fair weather with moderate temperatures is probable for the next forty-eight hours, except that local snow is probable in the Upper Missouri Valley Monday and rain or snow locally in the Middle Mississippi Valley and rain in the Lower Mississippi Valley Tuesday. Important temperature changes are not anticipated.

Winds for Monday and Tuesday—North Atlantic, brisk west, diminishing; Middle and South Atlantic, light and variable; East Gulf, light southwest to south.

FORECAST TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Fair Monday and Tuesday; not much change in temperature; diminishing west winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey—Fair Monday and Tuesday; light west winds.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair Monday. Tuesday, increasing cloudiness and warmer; moderate west winds.

Western New York—Fair Monday and Tuesday; moderate west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.

CHURCHES WILL AID FOREIGN-BORN HERE

Federation Plans an Aggressive Campaign for the Swarms of Newcomers.

MAY HAVE AIDED FUSION

The New Immigration, Asserts Dr. Laidlaw, Aided Mitchel — Problems Which the Churches Face.

Dr. Walter Laidlaw told the Federation of Churches, at its nineteenth annual meeting in the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, that there were now more foreign-born persons living within a radius of nineteen miles of New York City than there were in the whole United States in 1850. The federation passed resolutions favoring an aggressive campaign among the foreign-born.

Dr. Laidlaw presented figures to support a contention that the new immigration from Southeastern Europe largely was responsible for the election of Mayor Mitchel and the Fusion ticket in general.

"The Tammany strength," said Dr. Laidlaw, "was in the old immigration. Not one Irish district went against Tammany, while every Austrian district, nearly every Russian district, nearly every Italian district, and every German district was for Fusion. New immigration, joining itself with the native-born American voters, brought about the Fusion victory.

"That means, if it means anything, that the new immigration has possibilities which we have not as yet begun to appreciate. The Church must enter among these people on a big basis. In 1870 there was a movement of immigration away from the Eastern seaboard back into the interior. Between 1870 and 1910 there were always more immigrants in the States west of the Alleghany Mountains than in the thirteen original States.

"Then the free homesteads of America became exhausted, and the immigrant tide began to direct its force again against our great cities. The result is that now we face opportunities we have not faced in four decades—opportunities to teach here in the vicinity of New York a majority of all the immigrants who are obtaining their first contact with American culture and ideals.

"New York City, for instance, is the only city in the United States where more than 50 per cent. of the increase reported in the last census was due to new immigration. The volume of increase here, joined with that of Newark and Jersey City, was greater than that of all the other important cities in the United States added together. New York is now the only city in the United States where there are two foreigners to every native-born inhabitant. Washington has 670 native-born Americans to each foreigner. Thus it comes about that the industrial capital of our nation is a city of foreigners, while the political capital is thoroughly American.

"We cannot allow this situation to continue unnoticed. We have got to carry the message of the Church to these newcomers and see to it that they are thoroughly Americanized."

That this task of Americanization, even when extended to Asiatics, would not prove impossible was the assertion of Prof. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell College, Iowa.

"I was once in the company of some distinguished Americans," said Prof. Steiner, "of whom Col. Roosevelt was one, and I heartily disagree with a view he advanced during our conversation. He said that there was a radical difference between the Oriental and the Occidental type of mind, and that for this reason America never could assimilate the Orientals. He even named the exact date back in antiquity when Occidentals and Orientals drew apart to engage in their separate mental processes. I know, however, a young Chinese who was sent her to be educated as a missionary. When he returned home after a number of years in America, he was asked to participate in a church service as an assistant. He found that he hadn't learned the service thoroughly, and he asked the presiding clergyman the rather rough question, 'Say, Bishop, where do I butt in on this?'

"That question never could have come from a home-reared Chinese. This young man's mental processes surely had gained the American quality of directness and lack of ceremony.

"I saw some immigrants at a pier in Italy waiting for a steamship that would bring them to this country. One family, I could tell, had been here before. I knew this because the man carried the bundle instead of the woman. That is an American trait.

"'Why are you going back?' asked the father. 'I tella you, boss,' he said, 'I was in Pittsburgh, and work very hard there. But the big boss he passes me and he say, "Hello, Mike! How's the wife and kiddos?" Now I got a good home here, but nobody says "Hello, Mike!" so I go back to Pittsburgh and work some more.'

"Religionists cannot fold up their tents, start up the hymn, 'Onward Christian Soldiers,' and march to the suburbs of our great cities. We must turn the fight before us in the slums and into the congested east side. I happen to have been born a Slav. Yet to-day I think no Slav could recognize in me any of the Slav traits or characteristics. When I came here, where I could get bread enough to eat and a margin of leisure for study, I soon found every nerve centre in me being built over.

"I have seen young Slavs at work in gymnasiums in the Middle West who deceived the Minister of Education of their own country. When I showed them to him he said they could not be Slavs because the Slavs were docile and not athletic. So I called a boy over and introduced him, using his own language, to the Minister. In his native country such a boy would have been overawed by such an introduction to a great man. But he merely put out his hand, shook the hand of the Minister with a good deal of force, and said 'Howdy, Minister, I'm glad to meet you.' In that one sentence was a whole story of what America is doing for the new immigrants.

"The sluggish Slav was a beardless Slav who lived without hope in a crowded country. Here you make him into a man such as he never could have been at home."

The Federation conference will be continued at the Biltmore, with morning and afternoon sessions, to-day.

Lectures on Self-Criticism.

"The Need of Jewish Self-Criticism" was the subject of a lecture delivered yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman at the Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. Dr. Schulman referred to Ferdinand Kuehn, the wireless telegraph operator on board the Monroe, who took off his life belt and gave it to a woman whose life was saved. "This is a great human soul," he said. "The contemplation of such a life is a great inspiration. This young man was searched and not found wanting, and he had searched and known himself. Self-criticism—that is the essence of religion. We note with satisfaction the change in religion from what was a one-sided emphasis upon individual salvation to the practical, social aspect, which is also the old Jewish point of view."

FILL BROOKLYN CHURCHES.

Pastors' Call "Go-to-Church Sunday" Plan a Success.

It was "Go-to-Church Sunday" in Brooklyn yesterday and reports made last evening were that many persons ordinarily not churchgoers had flocked to houses of worship. The attendance at the church and Sunday school services was the largest since last Easter. The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Chairman of an informal committee of ten clergymen, said last night that ministers throughout the borough had reported great success to him.

The "Go-to-Church Sunday" campaign started in Joliet, Ill., in October last, and has been spreading rapidly. Following the example of Joliet, Worcester, Chicago, and other cities have set certain Sundays apart for general church going, and Manhattan and Bronx ministers now are talking of adopting the plan.

In Brooklyn a city-wide observance now is talked of. It is proposed to set aside the third Sunday in October as "Go-to-Church Sunday" in New York City.

BALTIMORE CHURCHES FULL.

Cardinal Preaches on "Benevolence" —Throngs Out in Chicago.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 1.—The vigorous advertising campaign in this city for Go-to-Church Sunday resulted in a greatly increased attendance at all the principal churches to-day.

At the cathedral, Cardinal Gibbons preached on "The Law of Practical Benevolence." He said in part:

"We are all mutually and reciprocally dependent on one another, just as the organs of our body are sustained by one another. As an injury to one organ involves a shock to the entire human system, so should the community at large feel a practical sympathy for their fellow-beings in any grievance by which they may be oppressed."

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Fully 500,000 Chicagoans renewed their acquaintance with church to-day. It was Go-to-Church Sunday, and the newspaper campaign to encourage the attendance in the 1,200 churches here resulted in at least 100 per cent. increase.

All denominations joined in the movement, and the resultant increase was seen in all the churches. Some pastors reported that an average Sunday attendance of 300 persons became 1,000 in the morning service, while the night attendance showed a similar increase.

AKED ON CHRIST'S BIRTH.

Does Not Accept Miracle Theory as Set Forth by Matthew.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1. — At the First Congregational Church to-day Dr. Charles F. Aked, the pastor, announced by implication that he did not adhere to and would not support the doctrine of the miraculous birth of Christ.

"As to the creed of the miraculous birth of Jesus," said Dr. Aked, "let us examine the books of the New Testament. Mark did not speak of the birth of Jesus; John, who wrote mostly of the death and ascension of Christ, did not speak of His birth. Luke did say that he was of miraculous origin, but it is conceded that Luke got his information from Matthew.

"The latest investigation shows that Matthew contradicted himself. In the New Testament version of the Gospel according to Matthew he says that Christ was of miraculous birth. In an older manuscript which has been discovered and authenticated as being the work of the Apostle, Matthew says that Joseph was the father of Jesus.

"My conclusion upon this question is that the faith of Mark and John and James and Paul is good enough for me. It is good enough for any Christian. These men say nothing about Jesus having come into the world in a miraculous way. I prefer to stand with them. What do we mean, then, by saying He was divine? There is divinity in us, but so much more in Him that I prefer to call Him divine."

RABBIS TO START CRUSADE.

Dr. Hildesheimer and Dr. Walkin Begin Lectures in Cincinnati To-day

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 1.—With the avowed purpose of starting war on the desertion of the younger generation from the orthodox Jewish fold, the two great Jewish educators, Rabbi Dr. Hildesheimer of Berlin and Rabbi Dr. Walkin of St. Petersburg will arrive here to-morrow and spend several days in delivering addresses to their co-religionists.

Dr. Hildesheimer is at the head of the Rabbinical College of Berlin, which was founded by his father. Dr. Walkin is the leader of the Orthodox Jews of Russia.

The rabbis will hold three services here and will lay special stress on the duty of orthodox Jewish parents to afford thorough religious instruction to their children.

The anti-reform campaign by the European rabbis in America is to be started here because Cincinnati, with its Hebrew Union College, is regarded as the centre of Reform Judaism.

DR. PARKS WANTS $2,000,000

St. Bartholomew's Rector Appeals for Endowment.

The Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Church, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, at the service yesterday morning, appealed for an endowment fund of $2,000,000 for the church. It was the tenth anniversary of the incumbency of Dr. Parks, who succeeded Bishop Greer when the latter became coadjutor of Bishop Potter in 1904. The rector said that the parish was now at the height of its prosperity, and could in his judgment raise $2,000,000 with ease. He believed it would do so.

Bishop Greer and the Rev. John F. Steen united yesterday in asking for an endowment fund of $50,000 for the Ascension Memorial Church, Forty-third Street, near Eighth Avenue. Many actors are among the communicants of this church, and the children of the theatrical people attend its Sunday School. It was on this ground in part that the Bishop and the rector based the plea. Yesterday was the forty-fourth anniversary of the rectorship of of Mr. Steen.

HEAR REV. GEO. W. ARMS.

New Pastor of New York Presbyterian Church Preaches First Sermon.

The Rev. George W. Arms, Jr., preached his first sermon yesterday morning as pastor of the New York Presbyterian Church, Seventh Avenue and 128th Street. He was formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Denver. It was not the size of the collections which counted, he said, so much as the spirit in which they were given, and then he added:

"If I can make that spirit a willing and a Christian one, while I am your pastor, I will feel that I have done my geatest service for Christiainity.

"I have a reputation for building churches, but I shall bend my efforts while here to the work of strengthening this church and aiding in the support of te foreign missions."

MISSION GATHERS IN BOWERY DERELICTS

Dominican Fathers Preach to 1,000 Men at Close of a Week of Special Services.

CLASS OF 25 CONFIRMED

Larger Quarters for Holy Name Mission Made Necessary by Successful Campaign.

Nearly 1,000 homeless and unemployed gathered at the Holy Name Mission, at 319 Bowery, yesterday, at the close of a week of special services held by the Dominican Fathers. A class of twenty-five was confirmed.

In order to accommodate the men temporary chapels had been provided on the ground floor and second floors in addition to the regular chapel on the third floor. Three sermons were preached to the men simultaneously by the three Dominican Fathers who had conducted the mission.

The Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack, auxiliary Bishop of New York, went to the mission, and starting at the chapel on the top floor, made brief addresses to the men gathered in each chapel. Following these services, Bishop Cusack confirmed a class of twenty-five men who had been prepared for the Sacrament of Confirmation during the week.

Under the direction of the Rev. Father William J. Rafter, assisted by the Rev. Father John J. A. Murphy, the Holy Name Mission has had such great success that it will be forced to move to larger quarters. It is in that part of the Bowery district in which there are in round numbers 20,000 homeless unemployed men. Last year the mission gave free lodgings to more than 6,000 men, and free meals to a number equally as large. The communions last year were more than a thousand, but that number has been exceeded by the communions held in the week's mission just ended.

Just before New Year's Day the Holy Name Mission sent out an appeal for support to all its friends. That appeal asked, "What will $1 do at the Holy Name Mission, 319 Bowery, New York City"? The question was answered in this way: "Provide ten hungry men with a meal, or give free lodgings to eight deserving men for one night, or lodge one man for the first week he obtains employment, or help to feed the man who is starting to work and has not a penny."

One of the little printed cards bearing that appeal fell into the hands of the Dominican Fathers attached to the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. The Dominican Fathers were interested in the appeal, and instead of contributing money, they decided to offer the services of two of their most eloquent missionaries, Fathers Healy and Stanton, who volunteered to hold a week of services.

The offer of the Dominican Fathers was accepted by the fathers in charge of the mission, and the latter until Jan. 25 spent most of the time getting word to all the men in the lodging houses and along the Bowery. In a few days the mission was crowded with men who had never been there before, as well as with men who had been lost sight of for a long time. It was found necessary to improvise a chapel on the ground floor for an overflow meeting, and still the men continued to flock to the mission in greater numbers. At last a third chapel was provided on the second floor where were the club and reading rooms, and even this was soon filled to its capacity. In order to conduct the services in the three chapels, the Holy Name Mission had to obtain a third missionary from the Dominican Fathers, and this time it was Father O'Connor. So it was that at the end of the week the mission had begun to appeal to something like 1,000 men.

Speaking of the work of the Holy Name Mission yesterday afternoon, Father Rafter said: "It is our endeavor to deal with the individual rather than with the assembled body. The mission is non-sectarian, and we never ask a man to leave his faith unless he desires to. In the last two years we have had only two converts.

"Frequently men come here who are able to obtain work through their own efforts, only to find themselves face to face with another difficulty, that of obtaining board and lodging without any visible means before the pay they expect to receive at the end of their first week. We have solved this problem for the man by giving him a ticket for meals and lodging until his pay day arrives. I want to say right here that there are exceptionally few or practically none at all who fail to reimburse the mission for the money it advances for their lodging and meals.

"The work is for men who commonly are looked on as outcasts of society who are utterly worthless. It is commonly supposed that they came to their misfortune through their own fault, but close association with the men shows the error of this common opinion."

NEW PLANS FOR CHARITIES.

Cardinal Farley Starts United Catholic Works Organization.

Cardinal Farley formally launched his new United Catholic Works plan yesterday through sermons at all masses in St. Patrick's Cathedral in the morning, and a public service yesterday afternoon. The new Solicitor General, the Rev. Vincent de Paul McGean, who is also a fire chaplain, was the speaker and preacher, and stated that the new plan is not to start new charities, erect new buildings, or set up new machinery, but to reinforce existing Catholic agencies.

"Many of these agencies," said Father McGean, "are supported meagrely, and by many Catholics not at all."

The new organization is to promote and aid settlements, nurseries, homes, employment bureaus, fresh air and Summer outings, probation work in the courts, social reform, protection of immigrants in their faith and make them true Catholics as well as true citizens, and finally a centre for the extension of relief work methods for charities. Branches are to be established in parishes.

The plan given out is for visits by Father McGean to all parishes in the archdioceses, and there to secure pledges of $1 a year from as many people as possible. A part of the plan is to care in some measure for some 300,000 Catholics coming here as immigrants, representing some twenty nationalities, every year. Another part of the plan is the drafting of volunteer workers.

HAILS DAVIS APPOINTMENT.

Woman Correction Head an Epoch in Civilization, Says Dr. Abbott.

A sermon, inspired by the appointment of Dr. Katherine B. Davis as Commissioner of Correction for this city, was preached yesterday by Dr. Lyman B. Abbott, editor of The Outlook, at the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, Fifty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue. He said he regarded the selection of Dr. Davis by Mayor Mitchel as an acknowledgment that the world for centuries had held mistaken theories of the administration of rewards and punishment.

"The appointment of Dr. Davis," said Dr. Abbott, "marks an epoch in our civilization. It is not the first attempt to cure crime by faith, hope and love, but it is the first attempt officially. It is the first recognition of the power of affection and sympathy working on the mind of the individual."

The speaker said that penalties should be adjusted to the criminal and not to the crime. The sins of omission in dealing with the offenders of society were quite as deplorable as the sins of commission which stamped many fairly good men as criminals, the preacher asserted. Dr. Abbott spoke of the work at Bedford Reformatory, and in that connection praised Dr. Davis highly.

CARDINAL WILLIAM H. O'CONNELL, in a recent sermon scoring the modern woman, said:—
"We need be neither prude nor Puritan to see and realize that something is passing in the hearts and minds of women to-day, which is leaving them hard and unwomanly. We are bored to death of theories which never solve anything and always breed confusion."
This is exemplified every night at the Gaiety Theatre, where Mabel and Edith Taliaferro are appearing in Rachel Crothers' play "Young Wisdom." Two innocent young girls imagine they have advanced ideas in this delightful comedy, which is refreshing to all classes of people, whether suffragettes or anti-suffragettes, and they proceed to exploit these ideas, but at the critical time, when it comes to a real test of their honor, they go back to their wholesome family training, showing the healthful influence of their father and mother, and marry in the good old-fashioned way.
